THOUGHTS

UPON

B Slavery I mean, Domestic Slavery, or that of a Servant to a Master. A late ingenious Writer well observes, "The variety of forms in which Slavery appears, makes it almost impossible to convey a just notion of it by way of Definition. There are however certain Properties which have accompanied Slavery in most places, whereby it is easily distinguished from that mild domestic Service which obtains in our Country #."

- 2. Slavery imports an obligation of perpetual Service, an obligation which only the confent of the Master can dissolve. Neither in some countries can the master himself dissolve it, without the consent of Judges appointed by the law. It generally gives the Master an arbitrary power of any correction, not assecting Life or Limb. Sometimes even these are exposed to his will: or protected only by a fine, or some slight punishment, too inconsiderable to restrain a Master of an harsh temper. It creates an incapacity of acquiring any thing, except for the Master's benefit. It allows the Master to alienate the Slave, in the same manner as his cows and horses. Lastly it descends in its sull extent from parent to child, even to the last generation.
  - * See Mr. Hargrave's Plea for Somerset the Negro.

    B 3. The

3. The beginning of this may be dated from the remotest period, of which we have an account in history. It commenced in the barbarous state of Society, and in process of time spread into all nations. It prevailed particularly among the Jews, the Greeks, the Romans, and the ancient Gegmans: And was transmitted by them to the various kingdoms and states, which arose out of the Roman Empire. But after christianity prevailed, it gradually fell into decline in almost all parts of Europe. This great change began in Spain, about the end of the Eighth Century, and was become general in most other kingdoms of Europe.

rope, before the middle of the Founteenth.

4. From this time Slavery was nearly extinct, till the commencement of the Sixteenth Century, when the discovery of America, and of the Western and Eaftern coasts of Africa, gave occasion to the revival It took its rise from the Portuguese, who to supply the Spaniards with men, to cultivate their new possessions in America, procured Negroes from Africa, whom they fold for flaves to the American Spaniards. This began in the year 1508, when they imported the first Negroes into Hispaniola. In 1540, Charles the Fifth, then King of Spain, determined to put an end to Negro-Slavery: Giving positive orders, that all the Negro Slaves in the Spanish dominions should be set free. And this was accordingly done by Lagasca, whom he fent and impowered to free them all, on condition of continuing to labour for their mafters. But soon after Lagasca returned to Spain, Slavery returned and flourished as before: Afterwards other nations, as they acquired possessions in America, followed the examples of the Spaniards; and Slavery has taken deep root in most of our American Colonies.

II. Such is the nature of Slavery: Such the beginning of Negroe Slavery in America. But fome may defire to know, what kind of country it is, from which the Negroes are brought? What fort of men, of what temper and behaviour are they in their own country? And in what manner they are generally procured, carried to, and treated in America?

1. And

1. And first, What kind of country is that from whence they are brought? Is it so remarkably horxid, dreary and barren, that it is a kindness to deliver them out of it? I believe many have apprehended. so: But it is an entire mistake, if we may give credit to those who have lived many years therein, and could have no motive to misrepresent it.

2. That part of Africa, whence the Negroes are brought, commonly known by the name of Guinea, extends along the coast, in the whole, between three and four thousand miles. From the river Senegal, (Seventeen Degrees North of the Line) to Cape Sierra Leona, it contains seven hundred miles. it runs Eastward about fifteen hundred miles, including the Grain-Coaft, the Ivory-Coaft, the Gold-Coaft, and the Slave-Coaft, with the large Kingdom of Benin. From thence it runs Southward, about twelve hundred miles, and contains the Kingdoms of Congo and Angola.

3. Concerning the first, the Senegal coast, Mons. Brue, who lived there fixteen years, after describing its fruitfulness near the sea, says, " The farther you go from the fea, the more fruitful and well-improved is the country, abounding in Pulfe, Indian Corn, and various fruits. Here are valt meadows, which feed large herds of great and small cattle. And the villages, which lie thick, shew the country is well peopled." And again: " I was furprized to fee the land fo well cultivated; scarce a spot lay unimproved: The low lands divided by small canals, were all. fowed with rice: The higher grounds were planted with Indian Corn, and Peas of different forts. Their beef is excellent; poultry plenty, and very cheap, as are all the necessaries of life."

4. As to the Grain and Ivory-Coast, we learn from eye-witnesses, that the soil is in general fertile, producing abundance of rice and roots. Indigo and Cotton thrive without cultivation. Fish is in great. plenty; the flocks and herds are numerous, and the trees loaden with fruit.

5. The

5. The Gold-Coast and Slave-Coast, all who have seen it agree, is exceeding fruitful and pleasant, producing vast quantities of rice and other grain, plenty of fruit and roots, palm-wine and oil, and sish in great abundance, with much tame and wild cattle. The very same account is given us of the soil and produce of the kingdoms of Benin, Congo and Angola. From all which it appears, That Guinea in general, is far from an horrid, dreary, barren country, is one of the most sruitful, as well as the most pleasant countries in the known world. It is said indeed to be unhealthy. And so it is to strangers, but perfectly healthy to the native Inhabitants.

6. Such is the country from which the Negroes are brought. We come next to enquire, What fort of men they are, of what temper and behaviour, not in our Plantations, but in their native Country. And here likewise the surest way is to take our account from eye and ear-witnesses. Now those who have lived in the Senegal Country observe, it is inhabited by three nations, the Jalofs, Fulis and Mandingos. The King of the Jalofs has under him several Ministers, who assist in the exercise of Justice. The Chief Justice goes in circuit through all his dominions, to hear complaints and determine controversies. the Viceroy goes with him, to inspect the behaviour of the Alkadi, or governor of each village. The Fulis are governed by their Chief men, who rule with much moderation. Few of them will drink any thing stronger than water, being firich Mahometans. Government is easy, because the people are of a quiet and good disposition; and so well instructed in what is right, that a man who wrongs another is the abomination of all.—They defire no more land than they use, which they cultivate with great care and industry: If any of them are known to be made flaves by the white men they all join to redeem them. only support all that are old, or blind, or lame among themselves; but have frequently supplied the necesfities of the Mandingos, when they were distrest by famine.

7. The Mandingor, says Mons. Brue, are right Ma bometans, drinking neither wine nor brandy. They are industrious and laborious, keeping their ground well cultivated, and breeding a good stock of cattle. Every town has a Governor, and he appoints the labour of the people. The men work the ground defigned for corn; the women and girls, the riceground. He afterwards divides the corn and rice, among them: And decides all quarrels, if any arise. All the Mahometan Negroes constantly go to public prayers thrice a day; there being a priest in every village who regularly calls them together; and it is furprifing to fee the modelty, attention and reverence which they observe during their worship ---These three Nations practice several trades; they have Smiths, Sadlers, Potters and Weavers. And they are very ingenious at their feveral occupations. Their Smiths not only make all the instruments of iron, which they have occasion to use, but likewise work many things neatly in Gold and Silver. It is chiefly the women and children who weave fine cotton cloth, which they dye blue and black.

8. It was of these parts of Guinea, that Mons. Adanson, Correspondent of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Paris, from 1749, to 1753, gives the following account, both as to the country and people. "Which way foever I turned my eyes, I beheld a. perfect image of pure nature : An agreeable folitude, bounded on every fide by a charming landscape; the rural fituation of cottages, in the midst of trees; the ease and quietness of the Negroes, reclined under the shade of the spreading foliage, with the simplicity of their dress and manners: The whole revived in my mind the idea of our first parents, and I seemed to contemplate the world in its primitive state. They are generally speaking, very good-natured, sociable and obliging. I was not a little pleased with my very first reception, and it fully convinced me, that there ought to be a confiderable abatement made, in the accounts we have of the favage character of the Africans." He adds, " It is amazing that an В 3. illiterate.

illiterate people should reason so pertinently concerning the heavenly Bodies. There is no doubt, but that with proper infiruments, they would become excellent astronomers."

9. The inhabitants of the Grain and Ivory Coast are represented by those that deal with them, as sensible, courteous, and the fairest traders on the coasts of Guinea. They rarely drink to excess: If any do they are severely punished by the King's order. They are seldom troubled with war: If a difference happen between two nations they commonly end the dispute amicably.

The inhabitants of the Gold and Slave-Coast likewise, when they are not artfully incensed against each other, live in great union and friendship, being generally well tempered, civil, tractable, and ready to help any that need it. In particular, the natives of the Kingdom of Wbidab, are civil, kind and obliging to strangers. And they are the most gentleman-like of all the Negroes, abounding in good manners towards each other. The inferiors pay the utmost respect to their superiors: So Wives to their husbands, Children to their Parents. And they are remarkably industrious; all are constantly employ'd; the mea in agriculture, the women in spinning and weaving cotton.

to. The Gold and Slave Coasts are divided into several districts, some governed by Kings, others by the principle men, who take care each of their own town or village, and prevent or appease tumults. They punish Murder and Adultery severely; very frequently with Death. Thest and Robbery are punished by a fine proportionable to the goods that were taken.—All the natives of this coast, though heathens, believe there is one Gop, the Author of them and all things. They appear likewise to have a confused apprehension of a suture state. And accordingly every town and village has a place of public worship.—It is remarkable that they have no Beggars among them; Such is the care of the chief men, in every city and village, to provide some easy labour, even for the old and weak. Some are employed in blowing the Smith's bellows; others in pressing palm-oil; others in griading of colours. If they are too weak even for this, they sell provisions in the Market.

11. The natives of the Kingdom of Benin are a reasonable and good-natured people. They are fincere and inoffentive, and do no injustice either to one another or to strangers. They are eminently civil and courteous: If you make them a prefent, they endeavour to repay it double. And if they are trusted, till the ship returns the next year, they are fure honestly to pay the whole debt. Theft is punished among them, altho' not with the fame severity as Murder. If a man and woman of any quality, are taken in adultery, they are certain to be put to death, and their bodies thrown on a dunghill, and left a prey to wild beafts. They are punctually just and honest in their dealings; and are also very charitable: the King and the great Lords taking care to employ all that are capable of any work. And those that are utterly helpless they keep for God's Sake : fo that here also are no Beggars. The inhabitants of Congo and Angola are generally a quiet people. They discover a good understanding, and behave in a friendly manner to strangers, being of a mild temper and an affable carriage. - Upon the whole therefore the Negroes who inhabit the coast of Africa; from the river Senegal to the Southern bounds of Angola, are so far from being the stupid, senseless, brutish, lazy barbarians, the fierce cruel, perfidious Savages they have been described, that on the contrary, they are represented by them who have no motive to flatter them, as remarkably sensible, considering the few advantages they have for improving their understanding: As industrious to the highest degree, perhaps more fo than any other natives of so warm a climate: As fair, just and honest in all their dealings, unless where White men have taught them them to be otherwise: And as far more mild, friendly and kind to strangers, than any of our Fore-stathers were. Our Forestathers! Where shall we find at this day, among the sair-saced natives of Europe, a nation generally practifing the Justice, Mercy, and Truth which are found among these poor Africans? Suppose the preceding accounts are true, (which I see no reason or pretence to doubt of) we may leave England and France, to seek genuine Honesty in Benin, Congo, or Angola.

III. We have now feen what kind of Country it is, from which the Negroes are brought: And what fort of men (even White-men being the Judges) they were in their own Country. Enquire we, Thirdly, in what manner are they generally procured, carried to, and treated in America.

1. First. In what manner are they procured? Part of them by fraud. Captains of Ships from time to time, have invited Negroes to come on board and then carried them away. But far more have been procured by force, The Christians landing upon their coasts, seized as many as they found, men, women and children, and transported them to America. It was about 1551, that the English began trading to Guinea: At first for Gold and Elephants teeth, but soon after for Men. In 1556, Sir John Hawkins failed with two ships to Cape Verde, where he fent eighty men on shore to catch Negroes. But the natives flying, they fell farther down, and therefet the men on shore, " to burn their towns and take the inhabitants." But they met with fuch resistance, that they had seven men killed, and took but ten Negroes. So they went still farther down, till having taken enough, they proceeded to the West-Indies and sold them.

2. It was some time before the Europeans sound a more compendious way of procuring African Slaves by prevailing upon them to make war upon each other, and to sell their Prisoners. Till then they seldom feldom had any wars : but were in general quiet and peaceable. But the white men first taught them drunkenness and avarice, and then hired them to sell one another. Nay, by this means, even their Kings are induced to fell their own subjects. So Mr. Moore (Factor of the African Company in 1730) informs us, "When the King of Barfalli wants Goods or Brandy, he fends to the English Governor at James' Fort, who immediately fends a floop. Against the time it arrives, he plunders some of his. neighbours towns, felling the people for the goods he wants. At other times he falls upon one of his own towns, and makes bold to fell his own fubjects." So Monf. Brue fays, " I wrote to the King (not the same) " if he had a sufficient number of slaves I would treat with him. He seized three hundred of his own people, and fent word, he was ready to deliver them for the Goods." He adds, "Some of the natives are always ready, (when well paid) " to furprise and carry off their own countrymen. They come at night without noise, and if they find any lone cottage, furround it and carry off all the people." -Barbot, (another French factor) says "Many of the flaves fold by the Negroes are prisoners of war, or taken in the incursions they make into their enemy's territories. Others are stolen. Abundance of little blacks of both fexes, are stolen away by their neighbours, when found abroad on the road, or in the woods, or elsein the corn fields, at the time of the year when their parents keep them there all day to scare away the devouring birds." That their own parents fell them, is utterly false: Whites not Blacks, are without natural affection.

3. To fet the manner wherein Negroes are procured in a yet stronger light, it will suffice to give an extract of two voyages to Guinea on this account. The first is taken verbation from the original manuscript of the Surgeon's Journal.

"SESTRO, Dec. 29, 1724. No trade to day, though many traders came on board. They informed us, that the people are gone to war within land and

and will bring prisoners enough in two or three days; in hopes of which we stay.

"The 30th. No trade yet: but our traders came on board to-day, and informed us the people had burnt four towns: So that to-morrow we expect flaves off.

"The 31th. Fair weather: but no trading yet. We fee each night towns burning, but we hear many of the Seftra men are killed by the inland Negroes: So that we fear this war will be unfuccessful.

- "2d. of January. Last night we saw a prodigious fire break out about eleven o'clock, and this morning see the town of Sestro burnt down to the ground." (It contained some hundred houses.) "So that we find their enemies are too hard for them at present, and consequently our trade spoiled here. Therefore about seven o'clock we weighed anchor, to proceed lower down."
- The second Extract taken from the Journal of a Surgeon, who went from New York on the same trade, is as follows. "The Commander of the vessel sent to acquaint the King, that he wanted a cargo of flaves. The King promised to furnish him, and in order to it, fet out, deligning to furprize fome town, and make all the people prisoners. Some time after, the King sent him word, he had not yet met with the defired fuccess: Having attempted to break up two towns, but having been twice repulsed: But that he still hoped to Procure the number of slaves. In this design he persisted, till he met his enemies in the field. A battle was fought, which lasted three days. And the engagement was so bloody, that four thousand five hundred men were flain upon the fpot."----Such is the manner wherein the Negroes are procured! Thus the Christians preach the Gospel to the Heathens!
- 5. Thus they are procured. But in what numbers and in what manner are they carried to America?—Mr. Anderson in his history of Trade and Commerce. observes, "England supplies her American Colonies with Negro-slaves, amounting in number to about about an hundred thousand every year." That is so many are taken on board our ships; but at least ten thousand of them die in the voyage: About a south part more die at the different Islands, in what is called the Seasoning. So that at an average, in the passage and seasoning together, thirty thousand die: that is, properly are murdered. O Earth, O Sea, cover not thou their blood!

6. When they are brought down to the shore in order to be fold, our Surgeons thoroughly examine them, and that quite naked, women and men, without any distinction: Those that are approved are set on one fide. In the mean time a burning iron, with the arms or name of the Company, lies in the fire, with which they are marked on the breatl. Before they are put into the ships, their masters strip them of all they have on their backs: So that they come on board stark naked, women as well as men. It is common for several hundred of them to be put on board one vessel; where they are stowed together in as little room, as it is possible for them to be crowded. It is easy to suppose what a condition they must foon be in, between heat, thirst and stench of various kinds. So that it is no wonder, so many should die in the passage; but rather that any survive it.

7. When the vessels arrive at their destined port, the Negroes are again exposed naked, to the eyes of all the flock together, and the examination of their purchasers: Then they are separated to the plantations of their several Masters, to see each other no more. Here you may fee Mothers hanging over their daughters, bedewing their naked breafts with tears, and daughters clinging to their parents, till the Whipper foon obliges them to part. And what can be more wretched than the condition they then enter upon? Banithed from their country, from their friends and relations for ever, from every comfort of life, they are reduced to a state scarce any way preferable to that of beafts of burden. In general a few roots. not of the nicest kind, usually yams or potatoes, are their food, and two rags, that neither screen them from the heat of the day, nor the cold of the night their covering. Their sleep is very short, their labour continual, and frequently above their ftrength: fo that death fets many of them at liberty. before they have lived out half their days. The time they work in the West Indies, is from day-break to noon, and from two o'clock till dark; During which time they are attended by overfeers, who, if they think them dilatory, or think any thing not fo well done as it should be, whip them most unmercifully, fo that you may fee their bodies long after wheal'd and fcared usually from the shoulders to the waist. And before they are suffered to go to their quarters, they have commonly fomething to do, as collecting herbage for the horses, or gathering fuel for the boilers. So that it is often past twelve before they can get home. Hence if their food is not prepared, they are fometimes called to labour again, before they can fatisfy their hunger. And no excuse will avail. If they are not in the field immediately, they must expect to feel the lash. Did the Creator intend that the noblest Creatures in the visible world. should live such a life as this!

" Are these thy glorious works, Parent of Good?"

- 8. As to the punishment inflicted on them, says Sir Hans Sloan, "they frequently geld them, or chop off half a foot: After they are whipped till they are raw all over, Some put pepper and salt upon them. Some drop melted wax upon their kin. Others cut off their ears, and constrain them to broil and eat them. For Rebellion," (that is, afferting their native Liberty, which they have as much right to as to the Air they breathe)" they fasten them down to the ground with crooked sticks on every limb, and then applying fire by degrees, to the feet and hands, they burn them gradually upward to the head."
- But will not the laws made in the Plantations, prevent or redrefs all Cruelty and Oppreffion? We will

will take but a few of those Laws for a specimen, and then let any man judge.

In order to rivet the chain of Slavery, the law of Virginia ordains, "That no flave shall be set free, upon any pretence whatever, except for some meritorious services, to be adjudged and allowed by the Governor and Council: And that where any slave shall be set free by his Owner, otherwise than is herein succeed, the Church-wardens of the parish wherein such Negro shall reside for the space of one month are hereby authorised and required, to take up and sell the said Negro, by public outery."

Will not these Law givers take effectual care, to prevent cruelty and oppression?

The Law of Jamaica ordains, "Every flave that shall run away, and continue absent from his master twelve months, shall be deemed rebellious:" And by another law, sity pounds are allowed, to those who kill or bring in alive a rebellious slave." So their law treats these poor men with as little ceremony and consideration, as if they were merely brute beasts! But the innocent blood which is shed in consequence of such a detestable law, must call for vengeance on the nurderous abetters and actors of such deliberate wickedness.

11. But the law of Barbadoes exceeds even this, "If any Negro under punishment, by his master, or his order, for running away, or any other crime or misdemeanor, shall suffer in life or member, no perfon whatsoever shall be liable to any fine therefore. But if any man of WANTONNESS, or only of BLOODYMINDEDNESS OF CRUEL INTENTION wilfully kill a Negro of his own" (Now observe the severe punishment!) "He shall pay into the public treasury sistem pounds sterling! And not be liable to any other punishment or forteiture for the same!

Nearly allied to this is that Law of Virginia:

"After proclamation is issued against slaves that run away, it is lawful for any person whatsoever to KILL ALD DESTROY such slaves, by SUCH WAYS

AND MEANS AS HESHALL THINK FIT.

We

We have seen already some of the ways and means which have been thought seen such occasions. And many more might be mentioned. One Gentleman, when I was abroad thought set to roast his slave alive! but if the most natural act of " running away" from intolerable tyranny, deserves such relentless severity, what punishment have these Lawmakers to expect hereaster, on account of their own enormous offences?

IV. 1. This is the plain, un-aggravated matter of fact. Such is the manner wherein our African Slaves are procured; Such the manner wherein they are removed from their native land, and wherein they are treated in our Plantations. I would now enquire, Whether these things can be defended, on the principles of even Heathen Honesty? Whether they can be reconciled (setting the Bible out of the question) with any degree of either Justice or Mercy.

2. The grand plea is, "They are authorized by Law." But can Law, Human Law, change the nature of things? Can it turn Darkness into Light, or evil into good? By no means. Notwithstanding ten thousand Laws, right is right, and wrong is wrong still. There must still remain an effential difference between Justice and Injustice, Cruelty and Mercy. So that I still ask, who can reconcile this treatment of the Negroes, first and last, with either Mercy or Justice?

Where is the Justice of institting the severest evils on those that have deneus no wrong? Of depriving those that never injured us in word or deed, of every comfort of life? Of tearing them from their native country, and depriving them of liberty itself? To which an Angolan, has the same natural right as an Englishman, and on which he sets as high a value? Yea where is the Justice of taking away the Lives of innocent, inossensive men? Murdering thousands of them in their own land, by the hands of their own countrymen: Many Thousands, year after year, on shipboard, and then casting them like dung into the sea! And tens of thousands in that cruel slavery, to which they are so unjustly reduced?

3. But waving, for the present, all other considerations, I strike at the root of this complicated villainy. I absolutely deny all Slave holding to be consident with any degree of natural Justice.

I cannot place this in a clearer light, than that great ornament of his profession, Judge Blackstone has already done. Part of his words are as follows:

- "The three origins of the right of Slavery affigned by Justinian, are all built upon false foundations. 1. Slavery is faid to arise from Captivity in War. The conqueror having a right to the life of his captive, if he spares that, has then a right to deal with them as he pleases. But this is untrue, if taken generally, That by the laws of nations, a man has a right to kill his enemy. He has only a right to kill him in particular cases, in cases of absolute nevertity for felf-defence. And it is plain, this absolute necessity did not subsist, since he did not kill him, but made him prisoner. War itself is justifiable only on principles of felf-preservation. Therefore it gives us no right over prisoners, but to hinder their hurting us by confining them. Much lefs can it give a right to forture, or kill, or even enflave an enemy when the war is over. Since therefore the right of making out prisoners Slaves, depends on a supposed right of flaughter, that foundation failing, the consequence which is drawn from it must fail likewise."
  - "It is faid Secondly, Stavery may begin, by one man's felling bimself to another. And it is true, a man may sell himself to work for another: but he can not sell himself to be a Slave, as above defined. Every sale implies an equivalent given to the Seller, in lieu of what he transfers to the Buyer. But what equivalent can be given for Life or Liberty? His Rroperty likewise, with the very price which he seems to receive, devolves ip so sales to his Master, the instant he becomes his slave: In this case therefore the buyer gives nothing, and the seller receives nothing. Of what validity then can a sale be, which destroys the very principle upon which all sales are sounded?"

"We are told, Thirdly, that men may be born flaves, by being the Children of flaves. But this being built upon the two former rights must fall together with them. If neither Captivity, nor Contract can by the plain law of nature and reason, reduce the parent to a state of slavery, much less can they reduce the offspring." It clearly follows, that all Slavery is as irreconcileable to Justice as to Mercy.

4. That Slave-holding is utterly inconfident with Mercy, is almost too plain to need a proof. Indeed it is faid, " That these Negroes being prisoners of war, our Captains and Factors buy them, merely to fave them from being put to death. And is not this Mercy?" I answer, 1. Did Sir John Hawkins, and many others, feize upon men, women, and children, who were at peace in their own fields and houses, merely to fave them from death? 2. Was it to fave them from death, that they knock'd out the brains of those they could not bring away? 3. Who occafioned and fomented those wars, wherein these poor creatures were taken prisoners? Who excited themby money, by drink, by every possible means, to fall upon one another? Was it not themselves? They know in their own conscience it was, if they have any conscience left. But 4. To bring the matter to a short issue. Can they say before GOD, That they ever took a fingle voyage, or bought a fingle Negro from this motive? They cannot, They well know, to get money, not to fave lives, was the whole and fole spring of their Motions.

5. But if this manner of procuring and treating Negroes is not confiftent either with mercy or justice, yet there is a plea for it which every man of business will acknowledge to be quite sufficient. Fifty years ago, one meeting an eminent Statesman in the Lobby of the House of Commons, said, "You have been long talking about Justice and Equity. Pray which is this Bill? Equity or Justice?" He answered, very short and plain, "D—n Justice: It is Necessity," Here also the Slave-holder fixes his foot: Here he rests the strength of his cause. "It is not quite right, yet it must be so: There is an absolute Necessity, for it. It is necessary we should procure Slaves: And when we have procured them it is necessary to use them with severity, considering their stupidity, stubbornness and wickedness."

I answer, you stumble at the threshold: I deny that villany is ever necessary. It is impossible that it should ever be necessary, for any reasonable creature to violate all the laws of Justice and Mercy, and Truth. No circumstances can make it necessary for a man to burst in sunder all the ties of humanity. It can never be necessary for a rational being to sink himself below a brute. A man can be under no necessary of degrading himself into a wolf. The absurdity of the supposition is so glaring, that one would wonder that any one could halp feeing it.

6. This in general. But to be more particular, I ask, 1. What is necessary? And Secondly, To what end? It may be answered, " The whole method now used by the original purchasers of Negroes, is necessary to the furnishing our Colonies yearly with a hundred thousand Slaves." I grant this is necesfary to the End. But how is that End necessary? How will you prove it necessary that one hundred, that one of those flaves frould be procured?""Why it is necessary to my gaining an hundred thousand pounds." Perhaps to: But how is this necessary? It is very possible you might be both a better and a happier man, if you had not a quarter of it., I deny that your gaining one thousand is necessary, either to your present or eternal happiness. "But however you must allow, these slaves are necessary for the cultivation of our Islands: inasimuch as white C.3: men men are not able to labour in hot climates." I answer. 1. It were better that all those islands should remain uncultivated for ever, yea, it were more desirable that they were altogether funk in the depth of the fea. than that they should be cultivated at so high a price. as the violation of Justice, Mercy and Truth. Secondly, the fuppolition on which you ground your argument is false. For white men, even Englis men, are well able to labour in hot climates : provided they are temperate both in meat and drink, and that they inure themselves to it by degrees. I speak no more than I know by experience. It appears from the Thermometor, that the Summer-Heat in Georgia, is frequently equal to that in Barbadoes, yea to that under the Line. And yet I and my Family (Eight in number) did employ all our spare time there, in felling of trees and clearing of ground, as hard labour as any Negro need be employed in. The German family likewise, forty in number, were employed in all manner of labour. And this was fo far from impairing our health, that we all continued perfectly well. while the idle ones round about us, were swept away as with a pertilence. It is not true therefore that white men are not able to labour, even in hot climates. full as well as black. But if they were not, it would he better that none should labour there, that the work thould be left undone, than that myriads of innocent men should be murdered, and myriads more dragged into the basest Slavery.

7. "But the furnishing us with Slaves is necessary, for the Trade and Wealth, and Glory of our Nation." Here are several mistakes. For 1. Wealth is not necessary to the Glory of any Nation; but Wisdom, Virtue, Justice, Mercy, Generosity, Public Spirit, Love of our Country. These are necessary to the real Glory of a Nation; but abundance of Wealth is not. Men of understanding allow, that the Glory of England was full as high, in Queen Elizabeth's time as it is now: Although our riches and trade were then as much smaller, as our Virtue was greater. But, Secondly, it is not clear, that we should have either less Money or Trade, (only less of that detestable trade of Man-stealing) if there was not a Negro in all our Islands, or in all English America. It is demonstrable, White men, inured to it by degrees can work as well as them; And they would do it, were Negroes out of the way, and proper encouragement given them. However, Thirdly, I come back to the same point: Better no Trade, than trade produced by villany. It is far better to have no Wealth, than to gain Wealth at the expence of Virtue. Better is honest Poverty, than all the Riches bought by the tears, and sweat and blood of our fellow-creatures.

8. "However this be, it is necessary when we have Slaves, to use them with severity." What, to whip them for every petty offence, till they are all in a gore of blood? To take that opportunity, of rubbing pepper and salt into their raw sies? To drop burning sealing-wax upon their skin? To castrate them? To cut off half their foot with an axe? To hang them on gibbets, that they may die by inches, with heat, hunger, and thirs? To pin them down to the ground, and then burn them by degrees, from the steet to the head? To roast them alive?—When did a Turk or a Heathen find it necessary to use a fellow-creature thus?

I pray, to what end is this usage necessary? Why, to prevent their running away: And to keep them constantly to their labour, that they may not idle away their time. So miserably stupid is this race of men, yea, so stupid as you say, to whom is that stupidity owing? Without question it lies altogive them no means, no opportunity of improving their understanding: And indeed leave them no motive, either from hope or fear, to attempt, any such thing. They were no way remarkable for stupidity, while they remained in their own country: The inhabitants of Africa where they have equal motives and equal means of improvement, are not inferior to the inhabitants of Europe: To foure of them they are greatly inperior. Impartially furvey in their own country, the natives of Benin, and the natives of Lapland. Compare, (letting prejudice affect) the Samoeids and the Angolans. And on which fide does the advantage lie, in point of understanding? Certainly the African is in no respect inferior to the European. Their stupidity therefore in our plantations is not natural; otherwise than it is the natural effect of their Condition. Consequently it is not their fault, but Your's: You must answer it before GOD and Man

Q. " But their stupicity is not the only reason of our treating them with feverity. For it is hard to say, which is the greatest, This or their Stubbornness and Wickedness .- It may be so: But do not these as well as the other, lie at your door; Are not Stubbornness, Cunning, Pilfering, and divers other. vices, the natural, necessary fruits of Slavery? Is not this an observation which has been made, in every age and nation? ---- And what means have you used to remove this stubbornness? Have you tried what Mildness and Gentleness would do ? I knew one that did: that had prudence and patience to make the experiment: Mr. Hugh Bryan, who then lived on the borders of South Carolina. And what was the effect? Why, that all his Negroes (And he had no imail. number of them) loved and revered him as a Father. and chearfully obeyed him out of love. Yea, they were more afraid of a frown from bim, than of many blows from an overfeer. And what pains have you taken, what method have you used, to reclaim them. from their wickedness? Have you carefully taught.

"That there is a GOD, a wife, powerful, metciful Being, the Creator and Governor of Heaven and Earth? That he has appointed a day wherein he will judge the world, will take an account of all our thoughts, words and actions? That in that day he will reward every child of man according to his works: works: That "then the righteous shall inherit the kingdom prepared for them from the soundation of the world: And the wicked shall be cast into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." If you have not done this, if you have taken no pains or thought about the matter, can you wonder at their wickedness? What wonder, if they should cut your throat? And if they did, whom could you thank for it but yourself? You first acted the villain in making them slaves, (whether you stole them or bought them.) You kept them stupid and wicked, by cutting them off from all opportunities of improving either in Knowledge or Virtue: And now you assign their want of Wisdom and Goodness as the reason for using them worse than brute beasts?

V. 1. It remains only to make a little application of the preceding observations.—But to whom should that application be made? That may bear a question. Should we address ourselves to the Public at large? What effect can this have? It may inflame the world against the guilty, but is not likely to remove that guilt. Should we appeal to the English nation in general? This also is striking wide; And is never likely to procure any redress for the fore evil we complain of.—As little would it in all probability avail to apply to the Parliament. So many things which seem of greater importance lie before them that they are not likely to attend to this. I therefore add a few words to those who are more immediately concerned, whether Captains, Merchants or Planters.

2. And, first, to the Captains employed in this trade. Most of You know, the country of Guinea: Several prats of it at least, between the river Senegal and the kingdom of Angola. Perhaps now, by your means, part of it becomes a dreary uncultivated wilderness, the inhabitants being all murdered or carried away, so that there are none lest to till the ground. But you well know, how populous, how truitful how pleasent it was a few years ago. You know the people were not stupid, not wanting in fense, considering the few means of improvement they enjoyed. Neither did you find them favage, fierce, cruel, treacherous, or unkind to Arangers. On the contrary, they were in most parts, a sensible and ingenious people. They were kind and friendly, courteous and obliging, and remarkably fair and just in their dealings. Such are the men whom you hire your own country-men, to tear away from this lovely country; part by steath, part by force, part made captive in those wars, which you rise or foment on purpose. You have seen them torn away, Children from their Parents, Parents from their Children: Hufbands from their Wives, Wives from their beloved Husbands, Brethren and sisters from each other. You have dragged them who had never done you any wrong, perhaps in chains, from their native shore. You have forced them into your ships like an herd of swine, them who have souls immortal as your own: (Only some of them leaped into the sea, and resolutely stayed under water, till they could fuffer no more from you.) You have stowed them together as close as ever they could lie, without any regard either to decency or convenience. And when many of them have been poisoned by foul air, or had funk under various hatdihips, you have feen their remains delivered to the deep, till the fea should give up his dead. You have carried the furvivors into the vilest slavery, never to end but with life: Such Slavery as is not found among the Turks at Algiers, no nor among the Heathens in America.

3. May I fpeak plainly to you? I must. Love constrains me: Love to You, as well as to those you are concerned with.

Is there a GOD? You know there is. Is He a Just GOD? Then there must be a state of Retribution: A state wherein the Just GOD will reward every man according to his works. Then what reward will he render to You? O think betimes! Before you drop into eternity! Think now, He shall bave Judgment without mercy that bath shewed no mercy.

Are

Are you a man? Then you should have an buman heart. But have you indeed? What is your heart made of? Is there no such principle as Compassion there? Do you never feel another's pain? Have you no Sympathy? No fense of human woe? No pity for the miserable? When you saw the flowing eyes, the heaving breafts, or the bleeding fides and tortured limbs of your fellow-creatures, was you a stone, or a brute? Did you look upon them with the eyes of a tiger? When you squeezed the agonizing creatures down in the ship, or when you threw their poor mangled remains into the sea, had you no relenting? Did not one tear drop from your eye, one figh escape from your breast? Do you feel no relenting now? If you do not, you must go on till the measure of your iniquities is full. Then will the Great GOD deal with You, as you have dealt with them, and require all their blood at your hands. And at that day it shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah than for you! But if your heart does relent, though in a small degree, know it is a call from the GOD of Love. And to-day, if you will hear his voice, harden not your heart. To-day resolve, GOD being your helper, to escape for your life. Regard not money! All that a man hath will he give for his Life! Whatever you lose, lose not your foul: nothing can countervail that lofs. Immediately quit the horrid trade: At all events, be an honest man.

4. This equally concerns every Merchant, who is engaged in the Slave-trade. It is You that induce the African villain to fell his countrymen; and in order thereto, to fteal, rob, murder men, women and children without number: By enabling the English Villain to pay him for so doing; whom you overpay for his execrable labour. It is your money, that is the spring of all, that impowers him to go on: So that whatever he or the African does in this matter, is all your act and deed. And is your conscience quite reconciled to this? Does it never reproach you at all? Has gold entirely blinded your eyes, and stupified your heart? Can you see, can you feel no harm therein? Is it doing as you would be done to? Make the case your own, " Master, (said a slave at Liverpool to the Merchant that owned him) " what if some of my countrymen were to come here, and take away my Miltress, and Master Tommy, and Master Billy, and carry them into our Country. and make them flaves, how would you like it?" His answer was worthy of a man: " I will never buy a flave more while I live." O let his resolution be Your's! Have no more any part in this detestable business. Instantly leave it to those unseeling wretches. " Who laugh at human nature and compaffion? Be you a man? Not a wolf, a devourer of the human species! Be merciful, that you may obtain mercy?

5. And this equally concerns every Gentleman that has an estate in our American Plantations: Yea all Slave-holders of whatever rank and degree: feeing Men-buyers are exactly on a level with Men-feelers. Indeed you fay, "I pay honeftly for my goods: and I am not concerned to know how they are come by: Nay but you are: You are deeply concerned to know they are honeftly come by. Otherwife you are partaker with a thief, and are not a jot honester than him. But you know, they are not honestly come by : You know they are procured by means, nothing near fo innocent as picking of pockets, house-breaking, or robbery upon the high-way. You know they are procured by a deliberate series of more complicated villany, (of fraud, robbery and murder) than was ever practifed either by Mahometans or Pagans: in particular by murders, of all kinds; by the blood of the innocent poured upon the ground like water. Now it is your money that pays the Merchant, and thro' him the Captain, and the African Butchers. You therefore are guilty, and principally guilty of all these frauds, robberies and murders. You are the spring that puts all the rest in motion : they would not fir a step without you: Therefore Therefore the blood of all these wretches, who die before their time, whether in their country or elsewhere. lies upon your head. The blood of thy brother, (for, whether thou wilt believe it or no, fuch he is in the fight of Him that made him) crieth against thee from the earth, from the ship, and from the waters. O. whatever it costs, put a stop to its cry before it be too late: Inftantly, at any price, were it the half of your goods, deliver thyfelf from blood-guiltiness ! Thy hands, thy bed, thy furniture, thy house, thy lands are at prefent stained with blood. Surely it is enough; accumulate no more guilt: spill no more the blood of the innocent! Do not hire another to shed blood; do not pay him for doing it! Whether you are a Christian or no, shew yourself a man! Benot more favage than a lion or a bear !

6. Perhaps you will fay, "I do not buy any Negroes: I only use those left by my Father." So far is well: but is it enough to satisfy your own conscience? Had your Father, have you, has any man living, a right to use another as a stave? It cannot be, even setting revelation aside. It cannot be that either War, or contract, can give any man such a property in another as he has in his sheep and oxen. Much less is it possible, that any child of man, should ever be born a stave. Liberty is the right of every human creature, as soon as he breathes the vital air. And no human law can deprive him of that right, which he derives from the law of nature.

If therefore you have any regard to Justice, (to fay nothing of Mercy, nor the revealed Law of GOD) render unto all their due. Give Liberty to whom Liberty is due, that is to every child of man, to every partaker of human nature. Let none serve you but by his own act and deed, by his own voluntary choice. Away with all whips, all chains, all compulsion! Be gentle toward all men, and see that you invariably do unto every one, as you would he should do unto You.

O thou

. 7. O thou GOD of Love, thou who art loving to every man, and whose mercy is over all thy works; Thou who art the Father of the Spirits of all flesh, and who art rich in mercy unto all; Thou who has mingled of one blood, all the nations upon earth: Have compassion upon these outcasts of men; who are trodden down as dung upon the earth! Arise and help these that have no helper, whose blood is spilt upon the ground like water! Are not these also the work of thine own hands, the purchase of thy Son's blood? Stir them up to cry unto thee in the land of their captivity; and let their complaint come up before thee; let it enter into thy ears! Make even those that lead them away captive to pity them, and turn their captivity as the rivers in the South. O burst thou all their chains in funder; more especially the chains of their sins: Thou, Saviour of all, make them free, that they may be free indeed;

The service progeny of Ham.
Seize as the purchase of thy blood!
Let all the Heathens know thy name,
From Idols to the living GOD;
The dark Americans convert,
And shine in every pagan heare.
