

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

YOU need not any intercession to recommend this Task to me which brought its Invitations and Reward with it. I very willingly read over all the sheets, both of the Discourse, and the Devotions annext, and find great cause to bless God for both, not discerning what is wanting in any part of either, to render it with God's blessing, most sufficient, and proper to the great End design'd, the Spiritual supplies and advantages of all those that shall be exercis'd therein. The Necessity of Caring for the Soul.

Sect. I. THE only intent of this ensuing Treatise, is to be a short and Plain Direction to the very meanest Readers, to behave themselves so in this world, that they may be happy for ever, in the next. But because 'tis in vain to tell men their Duty, till they be perswaded of the necessity of performing it, I shall, before I proceed to the Particulars required of every Christian, endeavour to win them to the Practice of one general Duty preparatory to all the rest; and that is the Consideration and CARE of their own SOULS, without which they will never think themselves much concern'd in the other.

2. M A N, we know, is made up of two parts, a B O D Y and a S O U L: The Body only the husk or shell of the Soul, a lump of flesh, subject to many Diseases and pains, while it lives, and at last to Death it self; and then 'tis so far from being valued, that 'tis not to be endured above ground, but laid to rot in the earth. Yet to this viler part of us we perform a great deal of Care; all the labour and toil we are at, is to maintain that. But the more precious part, the Soul, is little thought of, no care taken how it fares, but as if it were a thing that nothing concern'd us, is left quite neglected, never consider'd by us.

3. This Carelessness of the Soul is the root of all the sin we commit, and therefore whosoever intends to set upon a Christian course course, must in the first place amend that. To the doing whereof, there needs no deep learning, or extraordinary parts; the simplest man living (that is not a natural fool) hath understanding enough for it, if he will but act in this by the same rules of common Reason, whereby he proceeds in his worldly business. I will therefore now briefly set down some of those Motives, which use to stir up our care of any outward thing, and then apply them to the Soul.

4. There be FOUR things especially, which use to awake our Care; the first is the Worth of the thing, the second the Usefulness of it to us, when we cannot part with it without great damage and mischief, the Third the great Danger of it, and the Fourth the Likelihood that our care will not be in vain, but that it will preserve the thing cared for.

The worth of the Soul. 5. For the First, we know our care of any worldly thing is answerable to the Worth of it; what is of greatest Price, we are most watchful to preserve, and most fearful to lose; no man locks up dung in his chest, but his money, or what he counts precious, he doth. Now in this respect the Soul deserves more care, than all the things in the World besides, for 'tis infinitely more worth; first, in that it is made after the Image of God, it was God that breathed into man this breath of life, Gen. 2.7. Now God being of the greatest Excellency and Worth, the more any thing is like him, the more it is to be valued. But 'tis sure that no Creature upon the Earth is at all like God, but the Soul of man, and therefore nothing ought to have so much of our Care. Secondly, The Soul never Dies. We use to prize things according to their Durableness: what is most Lasting is most Worth. Now the Soul is a thing that will last for ever: when Wealth, Beauty, Strength, nay, our very Bodies themselves fade away, the Soul still continues. Therefore in that respect also, the Soul is of the greatest worth; and then what strange madness is it for us to neglect them as we do? We can spend Days, and Weeks, and Months, and Years, nay, our whole Lives in hunting after a little Wealth of this World, which is of no durance or continuance, and in the mean time let this great durable treasure, our Souls, be stolen from us by the Devil.

6. A second Motive to our care of any thing, is the USEFULNES of it to us, or the great Mischief we shall have by the loss of it. Common reason teaches us this in all things of this life. If our Hairs fall, we do not much regard, because we can be well enough without them: But if we are in danger to lose our Eyes or Limbs, we think all the care we can take, little enough to prevent it, because we know it will be a great misery. But certainly there is no Misery to be compared to that Misery that follows the Loss of the Soul. 'Tis true, we cannot lose our Souls, in one sence, that is, so lose them, that they shall cease to Be; but we may lose them in another, that we should wish to lose them even in that; that is, We may lose that happy estate, to which they were created, and plunge them into the extremest misery. In a word, we may lose them in Hell, whence there is no fetching them back, and so they are lost for ever. Nay, in this consideration our very Bodies are concerned, those Darlings of ours, for which all our care is laid out; for they must certainly after Death be Raised again, and be joynd again to the Soul, and take part with it in whatever state; if then our Care for the Body take up all our Time and Thoughts, and leave us none to bestow on the poor Soul, it is sure the Soul will for want of that Care be made for ever Miserable. But it is as sure, That that very Body must be so too. And therefore if you have any true kindness to your Body, shew it by taking Care for your Souls. Think with your selves, how you will be able to endure Everlasting Burnings. If a small spark of fire, lighting on the least part of the body, be so intolerable, what will it be to have the whole cast into the hottest flames? And that not for some few hours or days, but for ever? So that when you have spent many Thousands of years in that unspeakable Torment, you shall be no nearer coming out of it, than you were the First day you went in: think of this, I say, and think this withal, that this will certainly be the end of Neglecting the Soul, and therefore afford it some Care, if it be but in pity to the Body, that must bear a part in its Miseries.

The misery of losing the Soul,

PREFACE, Of the Necessity

The danger the Soul is in.

7. The Third Motive to the Care of any thing, is its being in DANGER; now a thing may be in danger two ways: first, by Enemies from without: This is the Case of the Sheep, which is still in danger of being devoured by Wolves; and we know that makes the Shepherd so much the more watchful over it. Thus it is with the Soul, which is in a great deal of danger, in respect of its enemies: those we know are the World, the Flesh, and the Devil; which are all such noted enemies to it, that the very first Act we do in behalf of our Souls, is to Vow a continual war against them. Thus we all do in our Baptism; and whoever makes any truce with any of them, is false not only to his Soul, but to his Vow also; becomes a forsworn creature: A Consideration well worthy our laying to heart. But that we may the better understand, what Danger the Soul is in, let us a little consider the quality of these enemies.

8. In a war, you know, there are divers things that make an Enemy terrible: The first is Subtilty and Cunning, by which alone many victories have been won; and in this respect the Devil is a dangerous adversary; he long since gave sufficient proof of his Subtilty, in beguiling our first Parents, who yet were much wiser than we are; and therefore no wonder if he deceive and cheat us. Secondly, The Watchfulness and Diligence of an enemy makes him the more to be Feared; and here the Devil exceeds: it is his trade and business to destroy us, and he is no loiterer at it, he goes up and down seeking whom he may devour, 1 Pet. 5.8. He watches all Opportunities of Advantage against us, with such diligence, that he will be sure never to let any slip him. Thirdly, an Enemy near us is more to be feared than one at a Distance: for if he be far off, we may have time to arm, and prepare our selves against him, but if he be near, he may steal on us unawares. And of this sort is the flesh, it is an Enemy, at our Doors, shall I say? Nay, in our Bosoms; it is always near us, to take occasion of doing us mischiefs. Fourthly, The Baser and Falser an Enemy is, the more dangerous. He that hides his malice under the shew of Friendship, will be able to do a great deal the more hurt. And this again is the flesh, which like Joab to Abner,

2 Sam. 3. 27. pretends to speak peaceably to us, but wounds us to death; 'tis forward to purvey for Pleasures and Delights for us, and so seems very kind, but it has a hook under that bait, and if we bite at it we are lost. Fifthly, The Number of Enemies makes them more Terrible; and the World is a vast Army against us: There is no state or condition in it, nay, scarce a creature which doth not at some time or other fight against the Soul: The Honours of the World seek to wound us by Pride, the Wealth by Covetousness, the Prosperity of it tempts us to forget God, the Adversities to murmur at him. Our very Table becomes a snare to us, our meat draws us to Gluttony, our drink to Drunkenness, our Company, nay, our nearest Friends often bear a part in this War against us, whilst either by their example, or persuasions they entice us to sin.

9. Consider all this, and then tell me, whether a Soul thus beset hath leisure to sleep; even Dalilah could tell Sampson, it was time to awake when the Philistines were upon him. And CHRIST tells us, If the good man of the house had known in what hour the Thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken up, Matt. 24. 43. But we live in the midst of thieves, and therefore must look for them every hour, and yet who is there among us, that hath that common providence for this precious part of him, his Soul, which he hath for his house, or indeed the meanest thing that belongs to him? I fear our Souls may say to us, as Christ to his Disciples, Matt. 26. 40. What? could ye not watch with me one hour? For I doubt it would pose many of us to tell when we bestowed one Hour on them, though we know them to be continually beset with most dangerous Enemies. And then, alas! what is like to be the case of these poor Souls, when their Adversaries bestow so much Care and diligence to destroy them, and we will afford none to preserve them? Surely the same as of a Besieged Town, where no Watch or Guard is kept, which is certain to fall a prey to the Enemy. Consider this ye that forget God, nay, ye that forget your selves, lest he pluck you away, and there be none to deliver you, Psal. 50. 22.

10. But I told you there was a Second way, whereby a thing may be in Danger, and that is from some Disorder or Distemper within within it self. This is often the case of our Bodies, they are not only lyable to outward Violence, but they are within themselves Sick and Diseased. And then we can be sensible enough that they are in danger, and need not to be taught to seek out for means to recover them. But this is also the case of the Soul, we reckon those parts of the Body diseased, that do not rightly perform their office; we account it a sick palate that tastes not aright, a sick stomach that digests not. And thus it is with the Soul when its parts do not rightly perform their Offices.

II. The parts of the Soul are especially these three: The UNDERSTANDING, the WILL, and the AFFECTIONS. And that these are disordered, there needs little proof; let any man look seriously into his own Heart, and consider how little it is he knows of spiritual things, and then tell me whether his Understanding be not dark? How much apter is he to Will evil than good, and then tell me whether, his Will be not Crooked? And how strong Desires he hath after the pleasures of sin, and what cold and faint ones towards God and goodness, and then tell me whether his Affections be not disordered, and rebellious even against the voice of his own reason within him? Now as in bodily diseases, the first step to the cure is to know the cause of the sickness; so likewise here it is very necessary for us to know how the Soul first fell into this Diseased condition, and that I shall now briefly tell you.

The first Covenant.

12. GOD created the first Man Adam with out Sin, and indued his Soul with the full knowledge of his Duty; and with such a strength, that he might, if he would, perform all that was required of him. Having thus created him, he makes a COVENANT or agreement with him to this purpose, that if he continued in Obedience to God without committing Sin; then first, That Strength of Soul, which he then had, should still be continued to him; and secondly, That he should never die, but be taken up into Heaven, there to be happy for ever. But on the other side, if he committed Sin and disobeyed God, then both He and all his Children after him should lose that Knowledge and that perfect Strength, which enabled him to do all that God required of him: And,

of Caring for the Soul.

And, Secondly, Should be subject to death, and not only so, but to Eternal Damnation in Hell.

13. This was the Agreement made with Adam and all Mankind in him (which we usually call the FIRST COVENANT) upon which God gave Adam a particular commandment, which was no more but this : that he should not eat of one only Tree of that Garden wherein he had placed him. But he by the persuasion of the Devil eats of that Tree, disobeys God, and so brings that curse upon himself, and all his posterity. And so by that one Sin of his, he lost both the full knowledge of his Duty, and the Power of performing it. And we being born after his Image, did so likewise, and so are become both Ignorant in discerning what we ought to Do, and Weak and unable to the doing of it, having a backwardness to all good, and an aptness, and readiness to all evil ; like a sick stomach, which loaths all wholesom food, and longs after such trash, as may nourish the disease.

14. And now you see where we got this sickness of Soul, and likewise that it is like to prove a deadly one, and therefore I presume I need say no more, to assure you our Souls are in danger. It is more likely you will from this description think them hopeless. But that you may not from that conceit excuse your Neglect of them, I shall hasten to shew you the contrary, by proceeding to the fourth Motive of Care.

15. That Fourth Motive is the likelihood, that our CARE will not be in VAIN, but that it will be a means to preserve the thing cared for; where this is wanting, it disheartens our care.

That our Care will not be in vain.

A Physician leaves his Patient when he sees him past Hope, as knowing it is then in vain to give him any thing : but on the contrary when he sees hope of recovery, he plies him with Medicines. Now in this very respect we have a great deal of reason to take care of our Souls, for they are not so far gone, but they may be recovered, nay, it is certain they will, if we do our parts towards it.

16. For though by that sin of Adam all Mankind were under the sentence of eternal condemnation, yet it pleased God so far to pity

pity our misery, as to give us his Son, and in him to make a new Covenant with us, after we had broken the first.

The second Covenant. 17. This SECOND COVENANT was made with Adam and us in him, presently after his Fall, and is briefly contained in those words, Gen.

3. 15. Where God declares, that THE SEED OF THE WOMAN SHALL BREAK THE SERPENT'S HEAD; and this was made up as the first was, of some mercies to be afforded by God, and some duties to be performed by us.

18. God therein promises to send his only Son, who is God equal with himself, to earth, to become man like unto us in all things, sin only excepted, and he to do for us these several things.

19. First, To make known to us the whole Will of his Father; in the performance whereof we shall be sure to be accepted and rewarded by him. And this was one great part of his business, which he performed in those many Sermons and Precepts we find set down in the Gospel. And herein he is our PROPHET, it being the work of a Prophet of old not only to foretel, but to Teach. Our duty in this particular is to hearken diligently to him, to be most ready and desirous to learn that Will of God which he came from Heaven to reveal to us.

20. The Second thing He was to do for us, was to Satisfie God for our Sins, not only that one of Adam, but all the Sins of all Mankind that truly repent and amend, and by this means to obtain for us Forgiveness of Sins, the Favour of God, and so to redeem us from Hell and eternal damnation, which was the punishment due to our sin. All this He did for us by his death. He offered up himself a Sacrifice for the Sins of all those who heartily bewail, and forsake them. And in this He is our PRIEST, it being the Priest's Office to Offer Sacrifice for the sins of the People. Our duty in this particular is first, truly and heartily to Repent us of, and forsake our sins, without which they will never be forgiven us, though Christ have died. Secondly, stedfastly to Believe, that if we do that, we shall have the benefits of that Sacrifice of his; all our sins, how many and great soever, shall be forgiven us, and we saved from those eternal punishments which were due unto us for them. Another part of the PRIEST'S Office was

was Blessing and Praying for the People and this also Christ performs to us. It was his special Commission from his Father to Bless us, as S. Peter tells us, Acts 3.26. God sent his Son Jesus to bless you; and the following words shew wherein that blessing consists, in turning away every one of you from his iniquity: those means which he has used for the turning us from our Sins, are to be reckoned of all other the greatest Blessings; and for the other part, that of Praying, that he not only performed on earth, but continues still to do it in Heaven, He sits on the right hand of God, and makes request for us, Rom. 8.34. Our duty herein is, not to resist this unspeakable blessing of his, but to be willing to be thus blest in the being turned from our sins, and not to make void and fruitless all his Prayers and Intercessions for us, which will never prevail for us, whilest we continue in them.

21. The third thing, that Christ was to do for us, was to Enable us, or give us Strength to do what God requires of us. This he doth, first, by taking off from the hardness of the Law given to Adam, which was, never to commit the least sin, upon pain of damnation, and requiring of us only an honest and hearty endeavour to do what we are able, and where we fail, accepting of Sincere Repentance. Secondly, By sending his Holy Spirit into our hearts to govern and rule us, to give us strength to overcome Temptations to Sin, and to do all that He now under the Gospel requires of us. And in this he is our KING, it being the office of a King to govern and rule, and to subdue enemies. Our duty in this particular is to give up our selves obedient subjects of his, to be governed and ruled by him, to obey all his Laws, not to take part with any Rebel, that is, not to cherish any one sin, but diligently to Pray for his Grace to enable us to subdue all, and then carefully to make use of it to that purpose.

22. Lastly, He has purchased for all that faithfully obey him, an Eternal Glorious inheritance, the Kingdom of Heaven, whither he is gone before to take possession for us. Our duty herein is to be exceeding careful, that we forfeit not our parts in it, which we shall certainly do, if we continue impenitent in any sin. Secondly, Not to fasten our Affections on this world, but to raise them according to the precept of the Apostle, Col. 3. 2.

Set

Set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth; continually longing to come to the possession of that blessed Inheritance of ours, in comparison whereof all things here below should seem vile and mean to us.

23. This is the Sum of that SECOND COVENANT we are now under, wherein you see what Christ hath done, how he Executes those Three Great Offices of KING, PRIEST and PROPHET: as also what is required of us, without our faithful Performance of which, all that he hath done, shall never stand us in any stead; for he will never be a Priest to save any, who take him not as well for their Prophet to Teach, and their King to Rule them; nay, if we neglect our part of this Covenant, our condition will be yet worse, than if it had never been made; for we shall then be to Answer, not for the breach of Law only, as in the first, but for the abuse of mercy, which is of all sins the most provoking. On the other side, if we faithfully perform it, that is, set our selves heartily to the obeying of every Precept of Christ, not going on wilfully in any one sin, but bewailing and forsaking whatever we have formerly been guilty of, it is then most certain, that all the forementioned benefits of Christ belong to us.

24. And now you see how little Reason you have, to cast off the CARE of your SOULS, upon a conceit they are past cure, for that it is plain they are not; Nay certainly they are in that very condition, which of all others makes them fittest for our care. If they had not been thus REDEEMED by CHRIST, they had been then so hopeless, that care would have been in vain; on the other side, if his Redemption had been such that all men should be saved by it, though they live as they list, we should have thought it needless to take care for them, because they were safe without it. But it hath pleased God so to order it, that our care must be the means, by which they must receive the good even of all that Christ hath done for them.

25. And now if after all that God hath done to save these Souls of ours, we will not bestow a little Care on them our selves, we very well deserve to perish. If a Physician should undertake a Patient that were in some desperate disease, and by his skill

skill bring him so far out of it, that he were sure to recover, if he would but take care of himself, and observe those rules the Physician set him, would you not think that man weary of his life, that would refuse to do that? So certainly that man is weary of his Soul, wilfully casts it away, that will not consent to those easie conditions, by which he may save it.

26. You see how great kindness God hath to these Souls of ours, the whole TRINITY, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost have all done their parts for them. The FATHER gave his only Son; the SON gave Himself, left his Glory, and endured the bitter death of the Cross, meerly to keep our Souls from perishing. The HOLY GHOST is become as it were our Attendant, waits upon us with continual offers of his Grace, to enable us to do that which may preserve them; nay, he is so desirous we should accept those Offers of his, that he is said to be grieved when we refuse them, Ephes. 4. 30. Now what greater disgrace and affront can we put upon God, than to despise what he thus values? That those Souls of ours, which Christ thought worthy every drop of his blood, we should not think worth any part of our Care? we use in things of the world, to rate them according to the opinion of those who are best skilled in them: now certainly God who made our Souls, best knows the worth of them, and since he prizes them so high, let us (if it be but in reverence to him) be ashamed to neglect them. Especially now that they are in so hopeful a condition, that nothing but our own carelessness can possibly destroy them.

27. I have now briefly gone over those Four Motives of Care I at first proposed, which are each of them such as never misses to stir it up towards the things of this world; and I have also shewed you how much more Reasonable, nay, Necessary it is they should do the like for the Soul. And now what can I say more, but conclude in the words of Isaiah 46. 8. Remember this, and Heb your selves men. That is, deal with your Soul as your Reason teaches you to do with all other things that concern you. And sure, this common Justice binds you to; for the Soul is that which furnishes you with that Reason, which you exercise in all your worldly business; and shall the Soul it self receive no Benefit

Benefit from that Reason which it affords you? This is, as if a Master of a Family, who provides food for his servants, should by them be kept from Eating any himself, and so remain the only starv'd creature in his house.

28. And as Justice ties you to this, so Mercy doth likewise; you know the poor Soul will fall into endless and unspeakable Miseries, if you continue to neglect it, and then it will be too late to consider it. The last Refuge you can hope for, is God's mercy, but that you have despised and abused. And with what face can you in your greatest need beg for his mercy to your Souls, when you would not afford them your own? No not that common Charity of considering them, of bestowing a few of those idle Hours, you know not (scarce) how to pass away, upon them.

29. Lay this to your hearts, and as ever you hope for God's pity, when you most want it, be sure in time to pity your selves, by taking that due care of your Precious Souls which belongs to them.

30. If what hath been said, have perswaded you to this so necessary a Duty, my next work will be to tell you how this Care must be employed; and that, in a word, is in the doing of all those things which tend to the making the Soul happy, which is the end of our Care, and what those are, I come now to shew you.

SUNDAY I.

Of the Duty of Man by the Light of Nature, by the Light of Scripture: the three great branches of Man's Duty to God, our selves, our Neighbour: our Duty to God; of Faith, the Promises, of Hope; of Love, of Fear, of Trust.

THE benefits purchased for us by Christ, are such as will undoubtedly make the Soul Happy; for Eternal Happiness it self is one of them:

but because these Benefits belong not to us till we perform the Condition required of us, whoever desires the Happiness of his Soul, must set himself to the performing of that Condition. What that is, I have already mentioned in the general, That it is the hearty, honest endeavour of obeying the whole will of God. But then that Will of God containing under it many particulars, it is necessary we should also know what those are: that is, what are the several things, that God now requires of us, our performance whereof will bring us to everlasting Happiness, and the neglect to endless Misery.

Sunday 2. Of these things there are some which

I. Of the light of Nature. God hath so stamped upon our Souls, that we Naturally known them ; that is, we should have known them to be our Duty, though we had never been told so by the Scripture. That this is so, we may see by those Heathens, who having never heard of either Old or New Testament, do yet acknowledge themselves bound to some general Duties, as to worship God, to be Just, to Honour their Parents, and the like : and as S. Paul saith, Rom. 2. 15. Their Consciences do in those things accuse or excuse them ; that is, tell them, whether they have done what they should in those particulars or no.

3. Now though Christ hath brought greater light into the World, yet he never meant by it to put out any of that Natural Light, which God hath set up in our Souls : Therefore let me here, by the way, advise you not to walk contrary even to this lesser Right, I mean not to venture on any of those Acts, which meer Natural Conscience will tell you are sins.

4. It is just matter of sadness to any Christian heart, to see some in these days, who profess much of Religion, and yet live in such sins, as a meer Heathen would abhor ; Men that pretending to higher degrees of Light, and Holiness, than their Brethren do, yet practise contrary to all the Rules of common honesty, and make it part of their Christian Liberty liberty so to do; of whose seducement it concerns all that love their Souls to beware: and for that purpose let this be laid as a Foundation, That that Religion or Opinion cannot be of God, which allows men in any wickedness. Sunday

I.

5. But though we must not put out this light which God hath thus put into our Souls; yet this is not the only way whereby God hath revealed his Will; and therefore we are not to rest here, but proceed to the knowledge of those other things which God hath by other means revealed.

6. The way for us to come to know them is by the Scriptures, wherein are set down those several commands of God which he hath given to be the Rule of our Duty. *The light
ptures.*

7. Of those some were given before Christ came into the World, such are those precepts we find scattered throughout the Old Testament, but especially contained in the Ten Commandments, and that excellent Book of Deuteronomy; others were given by Christ who added much, both to the Law implanted in us by Nature, and that of the Old Testament; and those you shall find in the New Testament, in the several precepts given by him and his Apostles, but especially in that Divine Sermon on the Mount, set down in the fifth, sixth and seventh Chapters of S. Matthew's Gospel.

8. All these should be severally spoke to, but because that would make the discourse

Sunday very long, and so less fit for the meaner sort I. of Men for whose use alone it is intended, I chuse to proceed in another manner; by summing up all these together, and so as plainly as I can, to lay down what is now the duty of every Christian.

The three great branches of man's Duty.

9. This I find briefly contained in the words of the Apostle, Tit. 2. 12. That we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world; where the word, Soberly, contains our duty to our Selves; Righteously, our duty to our Neighbour; and Godly, our duty to God. These therefore shall be the Heads of my Discourse, our DUTY to GOD, our SELVES, and our NEIGHBOUR.
 I begin with that to God, that being the best ground-work whereon to build both the other.

 God.*

10. There are many parts of our DUTY to GOD; the two chief are these: First, To acknowledge him to be God; Secondly, To have no other. Under these are contained all those particulars, which make up our whole Duty to God, which shall be shewed in their order.

Acknowledging him to be God.

11. To acknowledge him to be God, is to believe him to be an infinite glorious Spirit, that was from everlasting, without beginning, and shall be to everlasting, without end.
 That he is our Creator, Redeemer, Sancti-fier, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, blessed for ever. That he is subject to no alteration, teration, but is unchangeable; that he is no Sunday bodily substance, such as our eyes may be- L hold, but spiritual and invisible, whom no man hath seen nor can see, as the Apostle tells us, 1 Tim. 6. 16. That he is infinitely Great and Excellent, beyond all that our Wit or Conceit can imagine; that he hath received his being from none, and gives being to all things.

12. All this we are to believe of him in regard of his Essence and Being: But besides this, he is set forth to us in the Scripture by several Excellencies, as that he is of Infinite Goodness and Mercy, Truth, Justice, Wisdom, Power, All sufficiency, Majesty; That he disposes and governs all things by his Providence; that he knows all things and is present in all places; these are by Divines called the Attributes of God, and all these we must undoubtingly acknowledge, that is, we must firmly believe all these Divine Excellencies to be in God, and that in the greatest degree; and so that they can never cease to be in him, he can never be other than infinitely Good, Merciful, True, &c.

13. But the acknowledging him for our God signifies yet more than this; it means that we should perform to him all those several parts of Duty which belong from a Creature to his God: what those are I am now to tell you.

Sunday

I.
Faith.

14. The first is FAITH, or belief, not only that forementioned of his Essence and Attributes, but of his Word, the believing most firmly, that all that he saith is perfectly true. This necessarily arises from that Attribute, his Truth, it being natural for us to believe whatsoever is said of one of whose truth we are confident. Now the holy Scriptures being the Word of God, we are therefore to conclude, that all that is contained in them is most true.

Of his Affirmations.

15. The things contained in them are of these four sorts; First, Affirmations, such are all the stories of the Bible, when it is said such and such things came so and so to pass; Christ was born of a Virgin, was laid in a Manger, &c. And such also are many points of Doctrine, as that there are Three Persons in the Godhead, that Christ is the Son of God, and the like. All things of this sort thus delivered in Scripture we are to believe most true. And not only so, but because they are all written for our instruction, we are to consider them for that purpose, that is, by them to lay that Foundation of Christian Knowledge on which we may build a Christian Life.

Commands.

16. The second sort of things contained in the Scripture, are the Commands, that is, the several things enjoined us by God to perform; these we are to believe to come from him, and to be most just and fit for him to com-command: but then this belief must bring forth Obedience, that what we believe thus fit to be done, be indeed done by us; otherwise our belief that they come from him serves but to make us more inexcusable. Sunday

17. Thirdly, The Scripture contains Threatnings; many Texts there are which threaten to them that go on in their sins, the wrath of God, and under that are contained all the punishments and miseries of this Life, both spiritual and temporal, and everlasting destruction in the Life to come. Now we are most stedfastly to believe, that these are God's threats, and that they will certainly be performed to every impenitent sinner. But then the use we are to make of this belief is to keep from those sins to which this destruction is threatned; otherwise our belief adds to our guilt, that will wilfully go on in spite of those threatnings, Threatnings.

18. Fourthly, The Scripture contains Promises, and those both to our Bodies and our Souls; for our Bodies there are many Promises that God will provide for them what he sees necessary, I will name only one, Matth. 6. 33. Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things, that is, all outward necessities, shall be added unto you: but here it is to be observed, that we must first seek the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, that is, make it our first and greatest care to serve and obey him, before this promise Promises.

Sunday mise even of tempōral good things belong to
 I. us. To the Soul there are many and high Promises, as first, That of present Ease and Refreshment, which we find; - Matth. 11. 29. Take my yoke upon you; and learn of me, and ye shall find rest to your Souls: but here it is apparent, that before this Rest belongs to us, we must have taken on us Christ's yoke; become his Servants and Disciples. Finally, There are Promises to the Soul even of all the benefits of Christ; but yet those only to such as perform the Condition required; that is, Pardon of sins to those that repent of them, increase of Grace to those that diligently make use of what they have already, and humbly pray for more; and Eternal Salvation to those that continue to their lives end in hearty obedience to his Commands.

29. This belief of the Promises must therefore stir us up to perform the Condition, and till it do so, we can in no reason expect any good by them: and for us to look for the benefit of them on other terms, is the same mad presumption that it would be in a servant to challenge his Master to give him a reward for having done nothing of his work, to which alone the reward was promised; you can easily resolve what answer were to be given to such a servant, and the same we are to expect from God in this case. Nay further, it is sure God hath given these promises to no other end, but to invite us to holiness ness of life ; yea, he gave his Son, in whom Sunday all his Promises are as it were summ'd up, for I. this end. We usually look so much at Christ's coming to satisfy for us, that we forget this other part of his errand. But there is nothing surer, than that the main purpose of his coming into the World was to plant good life among Men.

20. This is so often repeated in Scripture that no Man that considers and believes what he reads can doubt of it. Christ himself tells us, Matth. 9. 13. He came to call sinners to repen- tance. And S. Peter, Acts 3. 26. tells us, That God sent his Son Jesus to bless us, in turning every one of us from our iniquities ; for it seems the turning us from our iniquities was the greatest special Blessing which God intended us in Christ.

21. Nay, We are taught by S. Paul, that this was the end of his very death also, Tit.
2. 14. Who gave himself for our sins, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purifie to himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. And again, Gal. 1. 4. Who gave him- self for us, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, that is, from the sins and ill customs of the World. Divers other Texts there are to this purpose ; but these I suppose sufficient to assure any Man of this one great truth, That all that Christ hath done for us was directed to this end, the bringing us to live Christianly ; or in the words of S. Paul,

Sunday S. Paul, to teach us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world.

I.

22. Now we know Christ is the foundation of all the Promises; In him all the promises of God are Yea, and Amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. And therefore if God gave Christ to this end, certainly the Promises are to the same also. And then how great an abuse of them is it to make them serve for purposes quite contrary to what they were intended? viz. To the encouraging us in sins, which they will certainly do, if we persuade our selves they belong to us, how wickedly soever we live. The Apostle teaches us another use of them, 2 Cor. 7. 1. Having therefore these promises, let us cleanse our selves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God. When we do thus, we may justly apply the Promises to our selves, and with comfort expect our parts in them. But till then, though these Promises be of certain truth, yet we can reap no benefit from them, because we are not the Persons to whom they are made, that is, we perform not the condition required to give us right to them.

23. This is the Faith or belief required of us towards the things God hath revealed to us in the Scripture, to wit, such as may answer the end for which they were so revealed, that is, The bringing us to good lives; the bare believing the truth of them, without this, this, no more than the Devils do, as S. James Dunday tells us, Chap. 2. 19. Only they are not so I. unreasonable as some of us are, for they will tremble, as knowing well this Faith will never do them any good. But many of us go on confidently, and doubt not the sufficiency of our Faith, though we have not the least fruit of Obedience to approve it by; let such hear S. James's judgment in the point, Chap. 2. 26. As the body without the spirit is dead, so Faith if it have not works is dead also.

24. A second duty to God is HOPE, that Hope, is, a comfortable expectation of these good things he hath promised. But this, as I told you before of Faith, must be such as agrees to the nature of the Promises, which being such as requires a condition on our part, we can hope no further than we make that good; or if we do, we are so far from performing by it this duty of Hope, that we commit the great sin of Presumption, which is nothing Presum: else but hoping where God hath given us no ption. ground to Hope: This every Man doth, that hopes for pardon of Sins and Eternal Life, without that Repentance and Obedience to which alone they are promised; the true Hope is that which purifies us, S. John faith, 1 Ep. 3. 3. Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure; that is, it makes him leave his sins, and earnestly endeavour to be holy as Christ is, and that which doth not so, how confident soever it be

Sunday be, may well be concluded to be but that

I. hope of the Hypocrite, which Job assures us shall perish.

Despair.

25. But there is another way of transgressing this Duty, besides that of Presumption, and that is by Desperation, by which I mean not that which is ordinarily so called, viz. The despairing of Mercy, so long as we continue in our sins, for that is but just for us to do: but I mean such a desperation as makes us give over endeavour, that is, when a Man that sees he is not at the present such a one as the promises belong to, concludes, he can never become such, and therefore neglects all duty, and goes on in his sins. This is indeed the sinful desperation, and that which if it be continued in, must end in destruction.

26. Now the work of Hope is to prevent this, by setting before us the generality of the Promises, that they belong to all that will but perform the condition. And therefore though a Man have not hitherto performed it, and so hath yet no right to them, yet Hope will tell him, that that right may yet be gained, if he will now set heartily about it. It is therefore strange folly for any Man, be he never so sinful, to give up himself for lost, when if he will but change his course, he shall be as certain to partake of the promises of mercy, as if he had never gone on in those former sins.

27. This

27. This Christ shews us in the Parable ~~of the~~ of the Prodigal, Luk. 15. where we see that Son, which had run away from his Father, and had consumed the portion given him, in riotous living, was yet upon his return, and repentance used with as much kindness by the Father, as he that had never offended, nay, with higher and more passionate expressions of love. The intent of which Parable was only to shew us how graciously our heavenly Father will receive us, how great soever our former sins have been, if we shall return to him with true sorrow for what is past, and sincere obedience for the time to come: nay, so acceptable a thing it is to God, to have any sinner return from the error of his ways, that there is a kind of triumph in Heaven for it, There is joy in the presence of the Angels of God, over one sinner that repenteth, Luk. 15. 10. And now who would not rather chuse by a timely repentance, to bring joy to Heaven, to God and his holy Angels, than by a sullen desperation to please Satan and his accursed Spirits; especially when by the former we shall gain endless happiness to our selves, and by the latter as endless torments?

28. A third Duty to God is LOVE; there are two common Motives of Love among Men. The one the goodness and excellency of the person, the other his particular kindness and love to us; and both these are in the highest degree in God. Love, its Motives.

29. First,

Sunday

I.
God's excellency.

29. First, He is of infinite goodness, and excellency in himself; this you were before taught to believe of him, and no Man can doubt it that considers but this one thing, that there is nothing good in the World, but what hath received all its goodness from God: his Goodness is as the Sea, or Ocean, and the Goodness of all Creatures but as some small streams flowing from the Sea. Now you would certainly think him a mad Man, that should say the Sea were not greater than some little Brook; and certainly it is no less folly to suppose, that the goodness of God doth not as much (nay infinitely more) exceed that of all creatures. Besides, The goodness of the creature is imperfect and mixt with much evil; but his is pure and entire without any such mixture. He is perfectly Holy and cannot be tainted with the least impurity, neither can be the Author of any to us; for though he be the cause of all the goodness in us, he is the cause of none of our sins. This S. James expressly tells us, Chap. I. 13. Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man.

ness to us.

30. But secondly. God is not only thus good in himself, but he is also wonderful good, that is, kind and merciful to us. We are made up of two parts, a Soul and a Body, and to each of these God hath expressed infinite mercy and tenderness. Do but consider der what was before told you of the SE. ~~Sunday~~ I.

 COND COVENANT, and the mercies therein offered, even Christ himself and all his benefits, and also that he offers them so sincerely and heartily, that no Man can miss of enjoying them but by his own default. For he doth most really and affectionately desire we should embrace them and live; as appears by that solemn Oath of his, Ezek. 33.11. As I live saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live: whereto he adds this passionate expression, 'Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die?' To the same purpose you may read, Ezek. 18. Consider this, I say, and then surely you cannot but say, he hath great kindness to our Souls. Nay, let every Man but remember with himself the many calls he hath had to repentance and amendment; sometimes outward by the Word, sometimes inward by the secret whispers of God's Spirit in his heart, which were only to woo and intreat him to avoid Eternal Misery, and to accept of Eternal Happiness; let him, I say, remember these, together with those many other means God hath used toward him for the same end, and he will have reason to confess God's kindness, not only to Mens Souls in general, but to his own in particular.

31. Neither hath he been wanting to our Bodies; all the good things they enjoy, as health, Sunday health, strength, food, raiment, and what-

I. ever else concerns them, are merely his gifts: so that indeed 'tis impossible we should be ignorant of his mercies to them, all those outward comforts and refreshments we daily enjoy, being continual effects and witnesses of it; and though some enjoy more of these than others, yet there is no person but enjoys so much in one kind or other, as abundantly shews God's mercy and kindness to him in respect of his Body.

32. And now surely you will think it but reasonable we should love him, who is in all respects thus lovely: indeed this is a duty so generally acknowledged, that if you should ask any Man the question, whether he loved God or no, he would think you did him great wrong to doubt of it; yet for all this, it is too plain that there are very few, that do indeed love him; and this will soon be proved to you by examining a little, what are the common effects of Love, which we bear to Men like our selves, and then trying, whether we can shew any such fruits of our Love to God.

Love, desire of pleasing.*

33. Of that sort there are divers, but for shortness I will name but two. The first is a desire of pleasing, the second a desire of enjoying. These are constantly the fruits of Love. For the first, 'tis known by all, that he that loves any person is very desirous to approve himself to him, to do whatsoever he thinks thinks will be pleasing to him; and according to the degree of love, so is this desire more or less; where we love earnestly, we are very earnest and careful to please. Now if we have indeed that love to God, we pretend to, it will bring forth this fruit, we shall be careful to please him in all things. Therefore as you judge of the tree by its fruits, so may you judge of your love of God, by this fruit of it; nay indeed this is the way of trial, which Christ himself hath given us, Joh. 14. 15. If ye love me, keep my commandments, and S. John tells us, 1 Ep. 5. 3. That this is the love of God, that we walk after his Commandments, and where this one proof is wanting, it will be impossible to testify our love to God.

34. But it must yet be farther considered, that this love of God must not be in a low or weak degree; for besides that the motives to it, His Excellency and his kindness, are in the highest, the same commandment, which bids us love God, bids us love him with all our hearts, and with all our strength, that is, as much as is possible for us, and above any thing else. And therefore to the fulfilling of this Commandment, it is necessary we love him in that degree; and if we do so, then certainly we shall not only have some slight and faint endeavours of pleasing, but such as are most diligent and earnest, such as will put us upon the most painful and costly duties, make

Sunday
II.

Sunday make us willing to forsake our own Ease, I. Goods, Friends, yea Life it self, when we cannot keep them without disobeying God.

35. Now examine thy self by this; hast thou this fruit of Love to shew? Dost thou make it thy constant and greatest care to keep God's Commandments? To obey him in all things; earnestly labouring to please him to the utmost of thy power, even to the forsaking of what is dearest to thee in this world? If thou dost, thou mayest then truly say thou lovest God. But on the contrary, if thou wilfully continuest in the breach of many, nay, but of any one command of his, never deceive thy self, for the love of God abides not in thee. This will be made plain to you, if you consider what the Scripture saith of such, as that they are enemies to God by their wicked works, Col. 1. 21. That the carnal mind (and such is every one that continues wilfully in sin) is enmity with God, Rom. 8. 7. that he that sins wilfully, and tramples under foot the Son of God, and doth despight unto the Spirit of Grace, Heb. 10. 29. and many the like. And therefore unless you can think enmity and trampling and despight to be fruits of love, you must not believe you love God, whilst you go on in any wilful disobedience to him.

36. A second fruit of Love, I told you, was desire of Enjoying; This is constantly to be seen in our Love to one another. If you have have a friend whom you entirely love, you desire his Conversation, wish to be always in his company: and thus will it be also in our Love to God, if that be as great and hearty as this. Sunday

I.

37. There is a twofold enjoying of God, the one imperfect in this life, the other more perfect and compleat in the Life to come; that in this Life is that Conversation, as I may call it, which we have with God in his Ordinances, in Praying and Meditating, in hearing his Word, in receiving the Sacrament, which are all intended for this purpose, to bring us into an intimacy and familiarity with God, by speaking to him, and hearing him speak to us.

38. Now if we do indeed love God, we shall certainly hugely value and desire these ways of conversing with him, it being all that we can have in this life, it will make us with David, esteem one day in God's Courts, better than a thousand, Psa. 84. 10. We shall be glad to have these opportunities of approaching to him as often as it is possible, and be careful to use them diligently, to that end of uniting us still more to him; yea, we shall come to these spiritual exercises with the same chearfulness we would go to our dearest friend. And if indeed we do thus, it is a good proof of our Love.

39. But I fear there are not many have this to shew for it, as appears by the common

Sunday backwardness and unwillingness of Men to come to these; and their negligence and heartlessness when they are at them; and can we think that God will ever own us for lovers of him, whilst we have such a dislike to his company, that we will never come into it but when we are dagg'd by fear, or shame of Men, or some such worldly Motive? It is sure you would not think that Man loved you, whom you perceived to shun your company, and to be loth to come in your sight. And therefore be not so unreasonable as to say, You love God, when yet you desire to keep as far from him as you can.

40. But besides this, there is another Enjoyment of God, which is more perfect and compleat, and that is our perpetual enjoying of him in Heaven, where we shall be for ever united to him, and enjoy him not now and then only for short spaces of time, as we do here, but continually without interruption, or breaking off. And certainly if we have that degree of love to God we ought, this cannot but be most earnestly desired by us so much, that we shall think no labour too great to compass it. The seven years that Jacob served for Rachael, Gen. 29. 20. seemed to him but a few days for the love that he had to her: And surely if we have love to God, we shall not think the service of our whole lives too dear a price for this full Enjoyment of him, nor esteem all the Enjoyments of the the world worth the looking on in comparison thereof. Sunday

I.

41. If we can truly tell our selves we do thus long for this enjoyment of God, we may believe we love him. But I fear again there are but few that can thus approve their love. For if we look into mens lives, we shall see they are not generally so fond of this Enjoyment, as to be at any pains to purchase it. And not only so, but it is to be doubted, there are many, who if it were put to their choice, whether they would live here always to enjoy the profit and pleasure of the world, or go to Heaven to enjoy God, would, like the children of Gad and Reuben, set up their rest on this side Jordan, Num. 32. and never desire that heavenly Canaan; so close do their affections, cleave to things below, which shews clearly they have not made God their treasure, for then according to our Saviour's Rule, Matt. 6. 21. their heart would be with him. Nay, further yet; it is too plain that many of us set so little value on this enjoying of God, that we prefer the vilest and basest sins before him, and chuse to enjoy them, tho' by it we utterly lose our parts in him, which is the case of every man that continues wilfully in those sins.

42. And now I fear, according to these Rules of Trial, many that profess to love God, will be found not to do so. I conclude all with the words of S. Job. 1 Ep. 3. 18. which

Sunday though spoken of the love of our brethren, I. is very fitly appliable to this love of God, Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth.

Fear. 43. A fourth duty to God is FEAR; this arises from the consideration both of his justice and his power; his justice is such that he will not clear the wicked, and his Power such, that he is able to inflict the severest punishments upon them; and that this is a reasonable cause of fear, Christ himself tells us, Matt. 10.28. Fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. Many other places of Scripture there are, which commend to us this duty, as Psal. 2. 11. Serve the Lord with fear, Psal. 34. 9. Fear the Lord ye that be his Saints Prov. 9. 10. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and divers the like; and indeed all the threatnings of wrath against sinners, which we meet with in the Scripture, are only to this end, to work this fear in our hearts.

44. Now this fear is nothing else but such an awful regard of God, as may keep us from offending him. This the wise Man tells us, Prov. 16. 17. The fear of the Lord is to depart from evil: so that none can be said truly to fear God, that is not thereby withheld from sin; and this is but answerable to that common fear we have towards men; whoever we know may hurt us, we will beware of provoking; and therefore if we be not as wary of displeasing God, it is plain we Sunday fear Men more than we do him. I.

45. How great a madness this is, thus to The folly of fear Men above God, will soon appear, if we fearing Men compare what Man can do to us with that more than which God can. And first it is sure it is not God. in the power of Man (I might say Devils too) to do us any hurt, unless God permit and suffer them to do it; so that if we do but keep him our friend, we may say with the Psalmist, The Lord is on my side, I fear not what man can do unto me. For let their malice be never so great, he can restrain and keep them from hurting us; nay, he can change their minds towards us, according to that of the Wise Man, Prov. 16.7. When a mans ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. A notable example of this we have in Jacob, Gen. 32. who when his Brother Esau was coming against him as an enemy, God wonderfully turned his heart, so that he met him with all the expressions of brotherly kindness, as you may read in the next Chapter.

46. But secondly, Suppose men were left at liberty to do thee what mischief they could, alas! their power goes but a little way; they may perhaps rob thee of thy goods, it may be they may take away thy liberty, or thy credit, or perchance thy life too, but that thou knowest is the utmost they can do. But

Sunday that which is infinitely more, his vengeance reaches even beyond death it self, to the eternal misery both of Body and Soul in Hell, in comparison of which, Death is so inconsiderable, that we are not to look upon it with any dread. Fear not them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do, saith Christ, Luke 12. 4. and then immediately adds, But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear, fear him which after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell, yea, I say unto you fear him. In which words the comparison is set between the greatest ill we can suffer from Man, the loss of life, and those sadder evils God can inflict on us; and the latter are found to be the only dreadful things, and therefore God only to be feared.

47. But there is yet one thing farther considerable in this matter, which is this, It is possible we may transgress against men, and they not know it: I may perhaps steal my Neighbour's Goods, or defile his Wife and keep it so close that he shall not suspect me, and so never bring me to punishment for it: but this we cannot do with God, he knows all things, even the most secret thoughts of our hearts; and therefore tho' we commit a sin never so closely, he is sure to find us, and will as surely, if we do not timely repent, punish us eternally for it.

48. And now surely it cannot but be confessed that it is much safer displeasing men, than God;

God; yet, alas, our practice is as if we believed the direct contrary, there being nothing more ordinary with us, than for the avoiding of some present danger we fear from men, to rush our selves upon the indignation of God. And thus it is with us, when either to save our Estates, or Credits, or our very Lives, we commit any sin, for that is plainly the chusing to provoke God, rather than Man.

Sunday

I.

49. But God knows the case of fear of Men is not the only one wherein we venture to displease him; for we commit many sins, to which we have none of this temptation, nor indeed any other; as for instance, that of common swearing, to which there is nothing either of pleasure or profit to invite us. Nay, many times we who so fear the mischiefs that other men may do to us, that we are ready to buy them off with the greatest sins, do our selves bring all those very mischiefs upon us, by sins of our own chusing. Thus the careless Prodigal robs himself of his estate, the deceitful and dishonest man, or any that lives in open notorious sin, deprives himself of his credit, and the Drunkard and Glutton brings diseases on himself, to the shortning his life. And can we think we do at all fear God, when that fear hath so little power over us, that though it be back'd with the many present mischiefs that attend upon sin, it is not able to keep us from them; Surely such

Sunday such men are so far from fearing God, that I. they rather seem to defy him, resolve to provoke him whatsoever it cost them, either in this world or the next. Yet so unreasonably partial are we to our selves, that even such as these will pretend to this fear: you may examine multitudes of the most gross scandalous sinners before you shall meet with one that will acknowledge he fears not God.
 It is strange it should be possible for men thus to cheat themselves; but however it is certain we cannot deceive God, he will not be mock'd, and therefore if we will not now so fear as to avoid sin, we shall one day fear when it will be too late to avoid punishment.

Trust.

50. A fifth duty to God, is that of TRUST-ING in him, that is depending and resting on him: and that is first, in all Dangers; secondly, in all Wants. We are to rest on him in all our dangers both Spiritual and Temporal. Of the first sort, are all those Temptations by which we are in danger to be drawn to sin. And in this respect he hath promised that if we resist the Devil, he shall flee from us, Jam. 4.7. Therefore our duty is first to pray earnestly for God's grace to enable us to overcome the Temptation, and secondly, to set our selves manfully to combat with it, not yielding or giving consent to it in the least degree; and whilst we do thus, we are confidently to rest upon God, that his grace will be sufficient

*In all spiritual dan-

ent for us, that he will either remove the Sunday temptation, or strengthen us to withstand it. I.

51. Secondly in all outward and Temporal dangers, we are to rest upon him, as in all Temporal knowing that he is able to deliver us, and that he will do so if he see it best for us, and if we be such to whom he hath promised his protection, that is, such as truly fear him. To this purpose we have many promises in Scripture, Psalms 34. 7. The Angel of the Lord tarrieth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them; and Psal. 34. 20. The Lord delivereth the souls of his Saints, and all that put their trust in him shall not be destitute; and divers the like.

Also we have many examples, as that of the three children in the Furnace, Dan. 3. that of Daniel in the Lyons Den. Dan. 6. and many others; all which serve to teach us this one Lesson, That if we go on conscientiously in performing our duty, we need not be dismayed for any thing that can befall us, for the God whom we serve, is able to deliver us.

52. Therefore in all dangers, we are first Not seek to humbly to pray for his aid, and then to rest deliver our our selves cheerfully on him; and assuring selves by our selves that he will give such an issue as any sin. shall be most for our good. But above all things, we must be sure to fix our dependance wholly on him, and not rely on the creatures for help; much less must we seek to deliver our selves by any unlawful means, that

Sunday that is by the committing of any sin; for that is like Saul, 1 Sam. 18.7. to go to the Witch, that is to the Devil, for help; such courses do commonly deceive our hopes at the present, and instead of delivering us out of our straits, plunge us in greater, and those much more uncomfortable ones, because then we want that which is the only support, God's favour and aid, which we certainly forfeit when we thus seek to rescue our selves by any sinful means. But supposing we could by such a way certainly free our selves from the present danger; yet alas we are far from having gained safety by it; we have only removed the danger from that which was less considerable, and brought it upon the most precious part of us, our Souls; like an unskilful Physician, that to remove a pain from the finger, strikes it to the heart; we are therefore grossly mistaken, when we think we have played the good Husband in saving our Liberties or Estates, or Lives themselves by a sin; we have not saved them, but madly overbought them, laid out our very Souls on them: and Christ tells us how little we shall gain by such bargains, Matt. 16.26. What is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own Soul? Let us therefore resolve never to value any thing we can possess in this world at so high a rate, as to keep it at the price of the least sin; but whenever things are driven to such an issue, that we must either part with some, perhaps all all our worldly possessions, nay, life it self, Sunday or else commit sin, let us then remember, that I. this is the season for us to perform that great and excellent duty of taking up the Cross, which we can never so properly do as in this case; for our bearing of that which we have no possible way of avoiding, can at most be said to be but the carrying of the Cross, but then only can we be said to take it up, when having the means of escaping it by a sin, we rather chuse to endure the Cross than commit the sin; for then it is not laid on us by any unavoidable necessity, but we willingly chuse it, and this is highly acceptable with God, yea withal so strictly required by him, that if we fail of performing it, when we are put to the trial, we are not to be accounted followers of Christ, for so himself hath expressly told us, Matt. 16. 24. If any man come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his Cross and follow me; and so again, Mark 8. 34. It were therefore a good point of Spiritual Wisdom for us, sometimes by some lower degrees of self-denial, to fit our selves for this greater, when we shall be called to it; we know he that expects to run a Race, will beforehand be often breathing himself, that he may not be foiled when he comes to run for the prize; in like manner 'twill be fit for us, sometimes to abridge our selves somewhat of our lawful pleasure, or ease, or profit, so that we may get such a mastery over our selves,

Sunday as to be able to reduce all when our obedience to God requires it.

I.

In all wants spiritual.

53. And as we are thus to trust on God for deliverance from danger, so are we likewise for supply of our wants; and those again are either Spiritual, or Temporal: our Spiritual want is that of his Grace to enable us to serve him, without which we can do nothing: and for this we are to depend on him, provided, we neglect not the means, which are Prayer and a careful using of what he hath already bestowed on us: For then we have his Promise for it, He will give the holy Spirit to them that ask it, Luke 11. 15. and unto him that shall be given, Matt. 25. 29. that is, To him that hath made a good use of that Grace he hath already, God will give more. We are not therefore to affright our selves with the difficulty of those things God requires of us, but remember he commands nothing which he will not enable us to perform, if we be not wanting to our selves. And therefore let us sincerely do our parts, and confidently assure our selves God will not fail of his.

wants.

54. But we have likewise Temporal and Bodily wants, and for the supply of them we are likewise to rely on him. And for this also we want no promises, supposing us to be of the number of them to whom they are made, that is, God's faithful Servants: They that fear the Lord, lack nothing, Psal. 34. 9. and ver. 10. They that seek the Lord, shall want no manner

of thing that is good; Again, Psal. 33. 18, 19. ~~Sunday~~ I.
Behold the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy, to deliver their souls from death, and to feed them in time of Famine. Examples also we have of this, as we may see in the case of Elijah, and the poor widow, 1 Kings 17. and many others.

55. We are therefore to look up to him for the provision of all things necessary for us, according to that of the Psalmist, The eyes of all wait upon thee, O Lord, and thou givest them their meat in due season. And our Saviour hath taught us to pray for our daily bread; thereby teaching us that we are to live in continual dependance upon God for it. Yet I mean not by this that we should so expect it from God as to give up our selves to idleness, and expect to be fed by Miracle. No, our honest industry and labour is the means by which God ordinarily gives us the necessaries of this life; and therefore we must by no means neglect that: He that will not labour, let him not eat, says the Apostle, 2 Thess. 3. 10. And we may believe God will pronounce the same sentence, and suffer the slothful person to want even necessary food. But when we have faithfully used our own endeavour, then we must also look up to God for his blessing on it, without which it can never prosper to us. And having donethus, we may comfortably rest our selves on his Providence, for such a measure of these outward things as he sees fittest for us.

56. But

I.

56. But if our condition be such that we are not able to labour, and have no other means of bringing in the necessaries of life to our selves, yet even then we are cheerfully to rest upon God, believing that he who feeds the Ravens, will by some means or other, though we know not what, provide for us, so long as he pleases we shall continue in this world, and never in any case torment our selves with carking and distrustful thoughts, but as the Apostle, 1 Pet. 5. 7. Cast all our care on him who careth for us.

57. This is earnestly prest by our Saviour, Matt. 26. where he abundantly shews the folly of this sin of distrust. The place is a most excellent one, and therefore I shall set it down at large, Verse 25. Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what you shall eat, or what you shall drink; neither for your body, what you shall put on; Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? Behold the Fowls of the Air, for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into Barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the Lilies of the field how they grow, they toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore if God so cloatheth the grass of the Field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast cast into the Oven, shall be not much more cloath Sunday you, O ye of little Faith? Therefore take no l. thought, saying, What shall we eat? Or what shall we drink? Or wherewithal shall we be cloathed? (for after all these things do the Gentiles seek.) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and then all these things shall be added unto you.

 Take therefore no thought for to morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of it self; sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.
 I might add many other Texts to this purpose, but this is so full and convincing, that I suppose it needless.

 cerning this duty, is to put you in mind of the great benefits of it; as first, That by this trusting upon God, you engage and bind him to provide for you. Men, you know, think themselves highly concern'd not to fail those that depend and trust upon them; and certainly God doth so much more. But then secondly, There is a great deal of ease and quiet in the practice of this duty, it delivers us from all those carkings and immoderate cares which disquiet our minds, break our sleep, and gnaw even our very heart. I doubt not but those that have felt them, need not be

Sunday and so we see it too often doth in unlawful ones; Men will cheat and steal, and lye, and do any thing to deliver themselves from the fear of want. But alas they commonly prove but deceitful remedies; they bring God's curse on us, and so are more likely to betray us to want, than to keep us from it. But if you desire a certain and unfailing cure for cares, take this of relying upon God.

59. For what should cause that Man to fear want, that knows he hath one that cares for him, who is All sufficient, and will not suffer him to want what is fit for him? If a poor man had but a faithful promise from a wealthy person that he would never suffer him to want, it is sure he would be highly cheered with it, and would not then think fit to be as carking as he was before: and yet a Man's promise may fail us, he may either grow poor and not be able, or he may prove false and not be willing to make good his word. But we know God is subject neither to impoverishing nor deceit. And therefore how vile an injury do we offer to him, if we dare not trust as much upon his promise as we would that of a Man? Yea, and how great a mischief do we do our selves by loading our minds with a multitude of vexatious and tormenting cares, when we may so securely cast our burthen upon God? I conclude this in the words of the Apostle, Phil. 4. 6. Be careful for nothing, but in very thing by prayer and suppli- supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. Sunday II.

SUNDAY II.

Of Humility, of submission to God's Will, in respect of Obedience; of Patience in all sorts of sufferings, and of Honour due to God in several ways, in his House, Possessions, his Day, Word, Sacraments, &c.

Sect. I. A SIXTH Duty to GOD is Humility HUMILITY, that is, such a sense of our own meanness and his Excellency, as may work in us lowly and unfeigned submission to him: This submission is twofold; first, to his Will; secondly, to his Wisdom.

2. The submission to his Will is also of two sorts, the submission either of Obedience or Patience; that of Obedience is our ready yielding our selves up to do his Will, so that when God hath by his command made known to us what his pleasure is, cheerfully and readily to set about it. To enable us to this, Humility is exceeding necessary; for a proud person is of all others the unaptest to obey, and we see men never pay an Obedience, but where they acknowledge the person commanding to be some way above them, and so it is here. If we be not throughly persuaded Submission to God's Will in respect of Obedience.

Sunday swaded that God is infinitely above us, that II. we are vileness and nothing in comparison of him, we shall never pay our due obedience.

3. Therefore if ever you mean to obey intirely (as you must if ever you mean to be saved) get your hearts possess'd with the sence of that great unspeakable distance that is between God and you. Consider him as he is a God of infinite Majesty and Glory; and we poor Worms of the Earth; He infinite in power, able to do all things, and we able to do nothing, not so much as to make one hair white or black, as our Saviour speaks, Matt. 5. 36. He of infinite purity and holiness, and we polluted and defiled, wallowing in all kind of sins and uncleanness; he unchangeable and constant, and we subject to change and alteration every minute of our lives; He Eternal and Immortal, and we frail mortals, that whenever he taketh away our breath we die, and are turned again to our dust, Psalms 104. 29. Consider all this, I say, and you cannot but acknowledge a wide difference between God and Man, and therefore may well cry out with Job, after he had approach'd so near to God, as to discern somewhat of his excellency, Job 42. 56. Now mine eye seeth thee, wherefore I abhor my self and repent in dust and ashes.

shines of our best works.*

4. And even when this Humility hath brought us to obedience, it is not then to be cast off, as if we had no further use of it; for there there is still great use, nay necessity of it, to keep us from any high conceits of our performances, which if we once entertain, it will blast the best of them, and make them utterly unacceptable to God; like the strictness of the Pharisee, which when once he came to boast of, the Publican was preferred before him, Luk. 18. The best of our works are so full of infirmity and pollution, that if we compare them with that perfection and purity which is in God, we may truly say with the Prophet, All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags, Isaiah 64. 6. and therefore to pride our selves in them, is the same madness, that it would be in a beggar to brag of his Apparel, when it is nothing but vile rags and tatters. Our Saviour's precept in this matter must always be remembered, Luke 17. 10. When you have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants; if when we have done all, we must give our selves no better a title, what are we then to esteem our selves, that are so far from doing any considerable part of what we are commanded? Surely that worse name of slothful and wicked servant, Matt. 25. 26. we have no reason to think too bad for us.

5. A second sort of submission to his Will, is that of Patience; this stands in suffering his Will, as that of Obedience did in acting it, and is nothing else, but a willing and quiet yielding to whatever afflictions it

in respect of

Sunday pleases God to lay upon us. This the fore-mentioned humility will make easie to us, for when our hearts are throughly possess'd with that reverence and esteem of God, it will be impossible for us to grudge or murmur at whatever he does. We see an instance of it in Old Eli, 1 Sam. 3. who after he had heard the sad threatnings of God against him, of the destruction of his Family, the loss of the Priesthood, the cutting off both his Sons in one day, which were all of them afflictions of the heaviest kind, yet this one consideration, that it was the Lord, enabled him calmly and quietly to yield to them; saying, Let him do what seemeth him good, Verse 18. The same effect it had on David, in his suffering, Psalms 39. 9. I was dumb, I opened not my mouth, because thou didst it. God's doing it silenced all murmurings and grumbings in him. And so must it do in us, in all our afflictions, if we will indeed approve our humility to God.

6. For surely you will not think that child hath due humility to his Parent, or that servant to his Master, that when they are corrected, shall flie in the Father's or Master's face. But this do we whenever we grudge and repine at that which God lays upon us. But besides the want of Humility in our so doing; there is also a great want of justice in it; for God hath, as we are his creatures, a Right to do with us what he will, and there.

therefore for us to resist that right of his, is Sunday the highest injustice that can be; nay farther, it is also the greatest folly in the world, II.
 for it is only our good that God aims at in afflicting us; that heavenly Father is not like our earthly ones, who sometime correct their children only to satisfy their own angry humour, not to do them good. But this is subject to no such frailties, He doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, Lam. 3.33. They are our sins, which do not only give him just cause, but even force and necessitate him to punish us. He carries to us the bowels and affections of the tenderest Father: now when a Father sees his child stubborn and rebellious and running on in a course that will certainly undo him, what greater act of Fatherly kindness can he do than chasten and correct him, to see if by that means he may amend him? nay indeed he could not be said to have true kindness to him if he should not. And thus it is with God when he sees us run on in sin, either he must leave off to love us, and so leave us to our selves to take our own course, and that is the heaviest curse that can befall any man; or else if he continue to love us, he must correct and punish us to bring us to amendment. Therefore whenever he strikes, we are in all reason, not only patiently to lie under his rod, but (as I may say) kiss it also; that is, be very thankful to him, that he is pleased not to give us over to our own hearts

Thankfulness for God's corrections

Sunday luffs, Pſal. 18. 12. But ſtill continues his II. care of us; ſends afflictions as ſo many meſſengers to call us home to himſelf. You ſee then how groſs a folly it is to murmur at thoſe ſtripes which are meant ſo graciously; it is like that of a froward Patient, which reproaches and reviles the Phyſician that comes to cure him, and if ſuch a one be left to die of his diſeaſe, every own knows whom he is to thank for it.

Fruitfulneſs under them.

7. But it is not only quietneſs, no nor thankfulneſs neither under afflictions, that is the full of our Duty in this matter; we muſt have fruitfulneſs alſo, or all the reſt will ſtand us in no ſtead. By fruitfulneſs I mean the bringing forth that, which the afflictions were ſent to work in us, viz. The amendment of our lives. To which purpoſe in time of affliction it is very neceſſary for us to call our ſelves to an account, to examine our hearts and lives, and ſearch diligently what Sins lie upon us which provoked God thus to ſmite us: and whatſoever we find our ſelves guilty of, humbly to confeſs to God, and immediately to forſake for the reſt of our time.

In all ſorts of ſufferings.

8. All I ſhall add concerning this duty of Patience is, that we are as much bound to it in one ſort of ſufferings, as another, whether our ſufferings be ſo immediately from God's hand, that no creature hath any thing to do in it, as ſickneſs or the like; or whether it be ſuch, wherein Men are the inſtruments of afflicting afflicting us. For it is most sure when any Sunday Man doth us hurt, he could not do it with- II.

 out God's permission and sufferance, and God may as well make them the instruments of punishing us, as do it more directly by himself; and it is but a counterfeit Patience, that pretends to submit to God, and yet can bear nothing from Men; we see holy Job, who is set forth to us as a pattern of true patience, made no such difference in his afflictions, he took the loss of his Cattle, which the Chaldeans and Sabeans robb'd him of, with the very same meekness with which he did that which was consumed by fire from Heaven. When therefore we suffer any thing from Men, be it never so unjustly in respect of them, we are yet to confess it is most just in respect of God, and therefore instead of looking upon them with rage and revenge, as the common custom of the World is, we are to look up to God, acknowledge his Justice in the affliction, begging his pardon most earnestly for those sins which have provoked him to send it, and patiently and thankfully bear it, till he shall see fit to remove it; still saying with Job, Blessed be the name of the Lord.

9. But I told you Humility contained in Submission it a submission not only to his Will, but also to God's to his Wisdom, that is, to acknowledge him Wisdom. infinitely Wise, and therefore that whatever he doth, is best and fittest to be done. And

Sunday this we are to confess both in his commands,

II. and in his disposing and ordering of things : In his com- First, Whatsoever he commands us either to mands. believe or do, we are to submit to his Wisdom in both, to believe whatsoever he bids us believe, how impossible soever it seems to our shallow understandings, and to do whatever he commands us to do, how contrary soever it be to our fleshly reason or humour, and in both to conclude, that his Commands are most fit and reasonable however they appear to us.

In his di- 10. Secondly, We are to submit to his posals. Wisdom in respect of his disposal and ordering of things; to acknowledge he disposes all things most Wisely, and that not only in what concerns the World in general; but also in what concerns every one of us in particular; so that in what condition soever he puts us, we are to assure our selves it is that which is best for us, since he chuses it for us who cannot err. And therefore never to have impatient desires of any thing in this World, but to leave it to God to fit us with such an estate and condition as he sees best for us, and there let us quietly and contentedly rest; yea, though it be such as of all others we should least have wish'd for our selves. And this surely cannot but appear very reasonable to any that hath humility; for that having taught him, that God is infinitely Wise, and he very foolish, he can never

never doubt but that it is as much more for his good that God should chuse for him, than he for himself; even as it is much more for the child's good to have the Parent chuse for it, than to be left to those silly choices it would make for it self. For how many times would it cut and burn, and mischief it self if it might have every thing it desires! And such children are we, we many times eagerly desire those things which would undo us, if we had them. Thus many times we wish for Wealth, and Honour, and Beauty, and the like, when if we had them they would only prove snares to us, we should be drawn into sin by them. And this God, who knows all things, sees, though we do not, and therefore often denies us those things which he sees will tend to our mischief, and it is his abundant mercy that he doth so. Let us therefore whenever we are disappointed of any of our aims and wishes, not only patiently but joyfully submit to it, as knowing that it is certainly best for us, it being chosen by the unerring wisdom of our heavenly Father.

II. A seventh Duty to God is HONOUR, ^{Honour} that is, the paying him such a reverence and respect as belongs to so great a Majesty. And this is either inward or outward. The inward is the exalting him in our hearts, having always the highest and most excellent esteem of him. The outward is the manifesting and shewing forth that inward; and that

Sunday that is the first general in the whole course II. of our lives, the living like Men that do indeed carry that high esteem of God. Now you know if we bear any special Reverence but to a Man, we will be careful not to do any foul or base thing in his presence; and so if we do indeed honour God, we shall abhor to do any unworthy thing in his sight. But God sees all things, and therefore there is no way to shun the doing it in his sight, if we do it at all; therefore if we do thus reverence him, we must never at any time do any sinful thing.

Several ways of honouring God.

12. But besides this general way of honouring God, there are many particular acts by which we may honour him, and these acts are divers according to the several particulars about which they are exercised. For we are to pay this honour not only immediately to himself, but also by a due estimation and account of all those things that nearly relate or belong to him. Those are especially six; first, His House; secondly, His Revenue or Income (as I may say;) thirdly, His Day; fourthly, His Word; fifthly, His Sacraments; and sixthly, His Name; and every one of these is to have some degree of our Reverence and Esteem.

In His House.

13. First, His House, that is, The Church, which being the place set apart for his publick Worship, we are to look on it, though not as holy in respect of it self, yet in respect of

of its use, and therefore must not profane it Sunday by employing it to uses of our own. This II.
 Christ hath taught us by that act of his, Matt.
21.12. in driving the buyers and sellers out of the Temple, saying, My house is called the house of Prayer: And again, John 2. 16. Make not my Father's house a house of Merchandize.
 By which it is clear, Churches are to be used only for the services of God, and we are to make that the only end of our coming thither, and not to come to Church as to a Market to make bargains or dispatch busineses with our Neighbours, as is too common among many. But whenever thou entrest the Church, remember that it is the House of God, a place where he is in an especial manner present, and therefore take the counsel of the Wise Man, Eccles. 5. 1. and keep thy foot when thou goest into the house of God; that is, behave thy self with that godly awe and reverence which belongs to that great Majesty thou art before. Remember that thy business there is to converse with God, and therefore shut out all thoughts of the World, even of thy most lawful business, which though they be allowable at another time, are here sinful. How fearful a guilt is it then to entertain any such thoughts as are in themselves wicked? It is like the treason of Judas, who pretended indeed to come to kiss his Master, but brought with him a band of Souldiers to apprehend him, Matt. 26. We

Sunday make shew in our coming to Church of serving and worshipping God, but we bring with us a train of his enemies to provoke and despite him. This is a wickedness that may outvye the prophaneness of those days, in turning Churches into Stables; for sinful and polluted thoughts are much the worse sort of beasts.

His Possessions. 14. The second thing to which respect belongs, is his Revenue or Income; that is, whatsoever is his peculiar possessions, set apart for the maintenance of those that attend his Service; those were the Priests in time of the Law, and Ministers of the Gospel now with us. And whatever is thus set apart, we must look on with such respect as not to dare to turn it to any other use. Of this sort some are the free-will offerings of Men who have sometimes of their own accord given some of their Goods or Land to this Holy use; and whatsoever is so given, can neither by the person that gave, nor any other be taken away, without that great sin of Sacrilege.

15. But besides these there was among the Jews, and hath alway been in all Christian Nations, something allotted by the Law of the Nation for the support and maintenance of those that attend the service of God. And it is but just and necessary it should be so, that those who by undertaking that Calling are taken off from the ways of gaining a livelihood in the World, should be provided for by by them whose souls they watch over. And Sunday therefore it is most reasonable, which the II.

 Apostle urges in this matter, 1 Cor. 9. 11.
If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?
 That is, it is most unreasonable for men to grudge the bestowing a few carnal things, the outward necessities of this temporal life, on them from whom they receive spiritual things, even instruction and assistance towards the obtaining of an eternal life.

16. Now whatsoever is thus appointed for The great this use, may by no means be employed to any sin of Sa- other. And therefore those Tithes which crilege.
 are here by Law allotted for the maintenance of the Ministry must by no means be kept back, nor any tricks or shifts used to avoid the payment either in whole or in part. For first, it is certain, that it is as truly Theft as any other robbery can be, Ministers having right to their Tithes by the same Law, which gives any other Man right to his estate.
 But then secondly, It is another manner of robbery than we think of, it is a robbing of God, whose service they were given to maintain: and that you may not doubt the truth of this, it is no more than God himself hath said of it, Mal. 3. 8. Will a man rob God?
Yet ye have robbed me; yet ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In Tithes and Offerings.
 Here it is most plain that in God's account the withholding Tithes is a robbing of him. And if

Sunday if you please you may in the next Verse see

II. what the gain of this robbery amounts to, ye are cursed with a curse. A curse is all is gotten by it ; and common experience shews us, that GOD's vengeance doth in a remarkable manner pursue this sin of Sacrilege, whether it be that of withholding Tithes, or the other of seizing on those possessions, which have been voluntarily consecrated to God. Men think to enrich themselves by it, but it usually proves directly contrary ; this unlawful gain becomes such a Canker in the estate, as often eats out even that we had a just title to. And therefore if you love (I will not say your souls, but) your estates; preserve them from that danger by a strict care never to meddle with any thing set apart for God.

The punishment.

The times for his service.

Lord's day.

17. A third thing, wherein we are to express our reverence to God, is the hallowing of the Times set apart for his Service. He who hath given all our time, requires some part of it to be paid back again as a rent or tribute of the whole. Thus the Jews kept holy the seventh day, and we Christians the Sunday or Lord's day ; the Jews were in their Sabbath especially to remember the Creation of the World, and we in ours, the Resurrection of Christ, by which a way is made for us into that better World we expect hereafter. Now this day thus set apart, is to be employed in the Worship and Service of God, and that that first more solemnly and publickly in the ~~Sunday~~ Sunday Congregation, from which no man must then absent himself without a just cause: And secondly, privately at home in praying with, and instructing our Families, or else in the yet more private duties of the Closet; a Man's own private Prayers, Reading, Meditation and the like.

And that we may be at leisure for these, a Rest from all worldly business is commanded; therefore let no man think that a bare rest from labour is all that is required of him on the Lord's Day, but the time which he saves from the works of his calling, he is to lay out on those spiritual duties. For the Lord's Day was never ordain'd to give us a pretence for idleness, but only to change our employment from worldly to heavenly, much less was it meant that by our rest from our callings we should have more time free to bestow upon our sins, as too many do, who are more constant on that day at the Alehouse than the Church. But this rest was commanded, first, to shadow out to us that Rest from sin which we are bound to all the days of our lives. And secondly, To take us off from our worldly business, and to give us time to attend the service of God, and the need of our souls.

18. And surely if we rightly consider it, it is a very great benefit to us that there is such a set time thus weekly returning for that purpose

Sunday purpose. We are very intent and busie upon II. the World, and if there were not some such time appointed to our hands, it is to be doubted, we should hardly allot any our selves: And then what a starved condition must these poor Souls of ours be in, that shall never be afforded a meal? Whereas now there is a constant diet provided for them; every Sunday, if we will conscionably employ it, may be a festival day to them, may bring them in such spiritual food, as may nourish them to eternal Life. We are not to look on this day with grudging, like those in Amos 8. 5. who ask, When will the Sabbath be gone that we may set forth wheat?
 As if that time were utterly lost which were taken from our worldly business.
 But we are to consider it as the gainfullest, as the joyfullest day of the Week, a day of harvest, wherein we are to lay up in store for the whole week, nay, for our whole Lives.

The Feasts of the Church.

19. But besides this of the weekly Lord's day, there are other times which the Church hath set apart for the remembrance of some special mercies of God, such as the Birth and Resurrection of Christ, the descent of the Holy Ghost and the like; and these days we are to keep in that manner which the Church hath ordered, to wit, in the solemn worship of God, and in particular thanksgiving for that special blessing we then remember. And surely

surely whoever is truly thankful for those rich mercies, cannot think it too much to set apart some few days in a year for that purpose. Sunday II.

But then we are to look that our Feasts be truly spiritual, by imploying the day thus holily, and not make it an occasion of intemperance and disorder; as too many, who consider nothing in Christmas and other good times, but the good cheer and jollity of them. For that is doing despite instead of honour to Christ, who came to bring all purity and soberness into the World, and therefore must not have that coming of his remembered in any other manner.

20. Other days there are also set apart in memory of the Apostles and other Saints, wherein we are to give hearty thanks to God for his graces in them; particularly, that they were made instruments of revealing to us Christ Jesus, and the way of salvation, as you know the Apostles were by their Preaching throughout the World. And then farther, we are to meditate on those Examples of holy life they have given us; and stir up our selves to the imitation thereof. And whoever does uprightly set himself to make these uses of these several Holy days, will have cause by the benefit he shall find from them, to thank, and not to blame the Church for ordering them.

Sunday 21 Another sort of days there are, which

II. we are likewise to observe, and those are The Fasts. days of Fasting and Humiliation; and whatever of this kind the Church enjoyns, whether constantly at set times of the year, or upon any special and more sudden occasion, we are to observe in such manner as she directs; that is not only a bare abstaining from meat, which is only the bodies punishment; but in afflicting our souls, humbling them deeply before God, in a hearty confessing and bewailing of our own and the Nations sins, and earnest prayer for God's pardon and forgiveness, and for the turning away of those judgments, which those sins have called for: But above all, in turning our selves from our sins, loosing the bands of wickedness, as Isaiah speaks, Chap. 58. 6. and exercising our selves in works of mercy, dealing our bread to the hungry, and the like, as it there follows.

God's Word.

22. Fourthly, we are to express our Reverence to God, by honouring his word; and this we must certainly do if we do indeed honour him, there being no surer sign of our despising any person, than the setting light by what he says to us; as on the contrary, if we value one, every word he speaks will be of weight with us. Now this word of God is expressly contained in the Holy Scriptures, the Old and New Testament, where he speaks to us to shew us his Will and our Duty. And there

The holy Scriptures.

therefore to this Word of his, we are to bear Sunday a wonderful respect, to look upon it, as the II.
 rule by which we must frame all the actions of our life; and to that end to study it much, to read in it as often as we can, if it may be, never to let a day pass us without reading or hearing some part of it read.

23. But then that is not all: We must not only read, but we must mark what we read, we must diligently observe, what Duties there are which God commands us to perform, what faults they are, which God there charges us not to commit, together with the rewards promised to the one, and the punishment threatned to the other. When we have thus marked, we must lay them up in our memory; not so loosely and carelessly that they shall presently drop out again; but we must so fasten them there by often thinking and meditating on them, that we may have them ready for our use. Now that use is the directing of our lives; and therefore whenever we are tempted to the committing of any evil, we are then to call to mind, This is the thing which in such a Scripture is forbidden by God, and all his vengeance threatned against it: and so in like manner when any opportunity is offered us of doing good, to remember, This is the duty which I was exhorted to in such a Scripture, and such glorious rewards promis'd to the doing of it; and by these considerations strengthen our selves

Sunday for resistance of the evil and performance of the good.

II.

24. But besides this of the written Word, it hath pleased God to provide yet farther for our instruction by his Ministers, whose office it is to teach us God's will, not by saying any thing contrary to the written Word (for whatsoever is so, can never be God's Will) but by explaining it, and making it easier to our understandings, and then applying it to our particular occasions, and exhorting and stirring us up to the practice of it; all which is the end at which first their Catechizing and then their Preaching aimeth. And to this we are to bear also a due respect, by giving diligent heed thereto, not only being present at Catechizings and Sermons, and either sleep out the time, or think of somewhat else, but carefully marking what is said to us. And surely if we did but rightly consider, how much it concerns us, we should conclude it very reasonable for us to do so.

Catechizing.

25. For first, as to that of Catechizing, it is the laying the foundation upon which all Christian practice must be built; for that is the teaching us our duty, without which it is impossible for us to perform it. And tho' it is true, that the Scriptures are the Fountains from whence this knowledge of duty must be fetch'd, yet there are many who are not able to draw it from this Fountain themselves, and therefore it is absolutely necessary necessary it should be thus brought to them Sunday by others. II.

26. This Catechizing is generally look'd on as a thing belonging only to the youth, and so indeed it ought, not because the oldest are not to learn, if they be ignorant, but because all Children should be so instructed, that it should be impossible for them to be ignorant when they come to years. And it nearly concerns every Parent, as they will free themselves from the guilt of their Childrens eternal undoing, that they be careful to see them instructed in all necessary things; to which purpose it will be fit early to teach them some short Catechism, of which sort none so fit as the Church Catechism; yet are they not to rest on these endeavours of their own, but also to call in the minister's help, that he may build them up farther in Christian knowledge.

27. But alas! it is too sure that parents have very much neglected this Duty, and by that means it is that such multitudes of Men and Women that are called Christians, know no more of Christ, or any thing that concerns their own Souls, than the meerest Heathen.

28. But although it were their Parents fault that they were not instructed when they were young, yet it is now their own, if they remain still ignorant: and it is sure it will be their own ruine and misery if they wilfully continue so. Therefore whoever he be, of what age or condition soever, that is in this ignorant estate, or in any such degree of it, that he wants any part of necessary saving knowledge, let him as he loves his soul, as ever he would escape eternal damnation, seek out for instruction, and let no fear of shame keep any from it; For first, it is certain the shame belongs only to the wilful, continuing in ignorance, to which the desire of learning is directly contrary, and is so far from a shameful, that it is a most commendable thing, and will be sure to be so accounted by all wise and good Men. But secondly, suppose some prophane senseless people should deride it, yet sure that shame were in all reason to be undergone joyfully, rather than venture on that confusion of face which will at the day of Judgment befall those who to avoid a little false shame amongst Men, have gone on in a wilful ignorance of their duty, which ignorance will be so far from excusing any sins they shall commit, that it adds one great and heavy sin to all the rest, even the despising that knowledge which is offered to them. How hainous a sin that is, you may learn in the first Chapter of the Proverbs; where hating knowledge, verse 29. is said to be the thing that draws down those sad vengeance forementioned, even God's forsaking Men, laughing at their calamity instead of helping them: which is of all other conditions tions in the World the most miserable; and surely they are madly desperate that will run themselves into it. Sunday II.

29. As for those who have already this foundation laid by the knowledge of the grounds of Christian Religion, there is yet for them a farther help provided by Preaching. Preaching, And is no more than needs, for, God knows, those that understand their duty well enough, are too apt to forget it; nay, sometimes by the violence of their own lusts to transgress it, even when they do remember it; and therefore it is very useful we should be often put in mind of it to prevent our forgetting, and also often exhorted and assisted to withstand those lusts which draw us to those transgressions. And to these purposes preaching is intended, first to warn us to be upon our guard against our spiritual enemy, and then to furnish us with weapons for the fight; that is, such means and helps as may best enable us to beat off temptations, and get the victory over them.

30. Since therefore this is the end of Preaching, we must not think we have done our duty when we have heard a Sermon, tho' never so attentively, but we must lay up in our hearts those instructions and advices we there meet with, and use them faithfully, to the end of overcoming our sins. Therefore whenever thou comest to the Physician of thy Soul, do as thou wou'dest with the

Sunday the Physician of thy Body; thou comest to II. him not only to hear him talk and tell thee what will cure thee, but also to do according to his directions; and if thou dost not so here, thou art as vain as he that expects a bare receipt from his Doctor shall cure him, tho' he never make use of it. Nay, thou art much more vain and ridiculous, for that, tho' it do him no good, will do him no harm, he shall never be the worse for having been taught a medicine, though he use it not: but in these spiritual Receipts it is otherwise; if we use them not to our good, they will do us a great deal of harm, they will rise up in Judgment against us, and make our condemnation so much the heavier. Beware therefore not to bring that danger upon thy self, but when thou hast heard a Sermon, consider with thy self what directions there were in it for enabling thee to eschew evil, or to do good. And if there were any thing especially concern'd thine own bosom sin, lay that close to thy heart, and all the week after make it matter of meditation; think of it even whilst thou art at thy work, if thou wantest other time; and not only think of it, but set to the practice of it, do what thou wert advised to, for the subduing sins, and quickning grace in thee. Finally look carefully to practise the counsel of the Apostle, James 1.22. Be ye doers of the Word, not hearers only, deceiving your own Souls. To hope for good good from the Word without doing it, is, it Sunday seems, nothing but a deceiving our selves: II.

 Let us never therefore measure our godliness by the number of Sermons which we hear, as if the hearing many were the certain mark of a good Christian; but by the store of fruit we bring forth by them, without which all our hearing will serve but to bring us into that heavier portion of stripes, which belongs to him that knows his Masters will and does it not, Luke 12. 47. But this reverence which is due to Preaching, we must not pay to all that is now a days called so, for God knows there are many false Prophets gone out into the world, as the Apostle speaks, 1 John 4. 1. And now, if ever is that advice of his necessary, To try the spirits whether they be of God. But what I have said, I mean only of the Preaching of those who first, have a lawful calling to the Office, and secondly, frame their Doctrine according to the right rule, the written Word of God. But if any man say, he is not able to judge whether the Doctrine be according to the word or no, let him at least try it by the common known rules of duty, which he doth understand, and if he find it a doctrine giving men liberty to commit those things which are by all acknowledged sins, such as Rebellion, Injustice, unmercifulness, uncleanness, or the like, he may conclude, it is utterly contrary to God and his Word, and then abhorrence and not reverence belongs to it.

31. Fifthly,

Sunday

II.

The Sacraments.

31. Fifthly, we are to express our honouring of God by reverencing his Sacraments: Those are two, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. And this we are to do, first, By our high esteem of them; secondly By our reverent usage of them; we are first to prize them at a high rate, looking on them as the instruments of bringing to us the greatest blessings we can receive. The first of them, Baptism, that enters us into Covenant with God, makes us members of Christ, and so gives us right to all those precious benefits that flow from him, to wit, pardon of sins, sanctifying grace, and heaven it self, on condition we perform our parts of the Covenant. And as for the Lord's Supper, that is not only a sign and remembrance of Christ and his Death; but it is actually the giving Christ, and all the fruits of his death to every worthy receiver, and therefore there is a most high estimation and value due to each of them.

tism.

32. And not only so; but in the second place, we must shew our reverence in our usage of them; and that, first, Before; secondly, At; thirdly, after the time of Receiving them. It is true that the sacrament of Baptism being now administred to us, when we are Infants, it is not to be expected of us, that we should in our own persons do any thing, either before or at the time of receiving it: those performances were strictly required of all persons, who were Baptized when when they were of years. But for us, it suffices to give us this right to Baptism, that we are born within the pale of the Church, that is, of Christian Parents; and all that is required at that time is, what we can only perform by others, they in our stead promising that when we come to years, we will perform our parts of the Covenant. But by how much the less we are then able to do so much, the greater bond lies on us to perform those after-duties required of us, by which we are to supply the want of the former.

33. Now if you would know what those duties are, look over those promises which your Godfathers and Godmothers then made in your name, and you may then learn them. I cannot give you them in a better form than that of our Church's Catechism, which tells us, That our Godfathers and Godmothers did promise and vow three things in our names; first, That we should forsake the Devil and all his works, the pomps and vanities of this wicked world and all the sinful lusts of the flesh. Where, by the Devil, is meant, first, the worshiping of all false gods, which is indeed but worshiping the Devil: a sin which at that time of Christ's coming into the World, was very common, most part of mankind then living in that vile Idolatry. And therefore when Baptism was first ordained, it was but needful to make the forsaking of those false gods a principal part of the vow. And tho' those false

The vow of Baptism.

Sunday false worships are now much rarer, yet there II. was one special part of them, which may be feared to be yet too common among us, and that is all sorts of uncleanness; which tho' we do not make Cereemonies of our Religion, as the Heathens did of theirs, yet the committing thereof is a most high provocation in God's eyes, such as drew him to destroy whole Cities with fire and brimstone, as you may read, Gen. 19. Nay, the whole world with water, Gen.
6. and will not fail to bring down judgments, and strange ones on any that continue therein; and therefore the forsaking them well deserves to be look'd on as an especial part of this promise. Besides this, all dealing with the Devil is here vowed against, whether it be by practising Witchcraft our selves, or consulting with those that do, upon any occasion whatever, as the recovery of our health; our goods, or whatever else; for this is a degree of the former sin, it is a forsaking of the Lord, and setting up the Devil for our God, whilst we go to him in our needs for help.

34. But we also renounce all the works of the Devil, and those are either in general all those that the Devil tempts us to, or else those particular kinds of sin which have most of his image on them; that is, those which he himself most praictices; such are Pride (which brought him from being an Angel of light, to the cursed condition he is now in) and lying; he is as our Saviour saith,

John

John 8. 44. A Lyer and the Father of it; and such also are Malice and Envy, especially killing and destroying of others, for he was a murderer from the beginning, Joh. 8. 44. But above all, there is nothing wherein we become so like him as in tempting and drawing others to sin, which is his whole trade and business, and if we make it any part of ours, we become like that roaring Lyon, that goes about seeing whom he may devour, 1 Pet. 5. 8.

35. The second thing we vow to forsake is the Pomps and vanities of this wicked world. By the Pomps and Vanities there are several things meant; some of them such as were used by the Heathens in some unlawful sports of theirs wherein we are not now so much concern'd, there being none of them remaining among us; but besides that, there is meant all excess, either in Diet or sports, or Apparel, when we keep not those due measures which either by the general rules of sobriety, or the particular circumstances of our qualities and callings we are bound to. Next, by the wicked World we may understand first the Wealth and greatness of the World, which tho we do not so totally renounce, that it is unlawful for a Christian to be either rich or great: yet we thus far promise to forsake them, that we will not set our hearts upon them, nor either get or keep them by the least unlawful means. Secondly, by the wicked World, we may understand the

II.

Sunday the companies and customs of the World, II. which so far as they are wicked, we here renounce; that is, we promise never to be drawn by company to the commission of a sin, but rather to forsake the most delightful company, than to be ensnared by it; nor yet by custom, but rather venture the shame of being thought singular, ridiculous persons, walk as it were in a path by our selves, than put our selves into that broad way that leads to destruction, by giving our selves over to any sinful custom how common soever it be grown. If this part of our vow were but thoroughly considered, it would arm us against most of the temptations the world offers us, company and custom being the two special instruments by which it works on us.

36. A Third thing we renounce, is all the sinful lusts of the flesh; where the flesh is to be understood in that sense wherein the Scripture often uses it, for the fountain of all disordered affections. For though those unclean desires which we ordinarily call the lusts of the flesh are here meant, yet they are not the only things here contained, there being divers other things which the Scripture calls the works of the flesh; I cannot better inform you of them than by setting down the list S. Paul gives of them, Gal. 5. 19, 20, 21. Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these, adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, riance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like. This, with those other descriptions you will find scattered in several places of Scripture, will shew you there are many things contained in this part of your Vow, the forsaking all the sinful lusts of the flesh.

Sunday
II.

37: The second thing our Godfathers and Godmothers promised for us, was, that we should believe all the Articles of the Christian Faith. These we have summ'd up together in that which we call the Apostle's Creed, which since we promise to believe, we are supposed also to promise to learn them, and that not only the words, but likewise the plain sense of them; for who can believe what he either never heard of, or knows not any thing of the meaning of it? Now by this believing is meant not only the consenting to the truth of them, but also the living like them that do believe. As for example, our believing that God Created us; should make us live in that subjection and obedience to him which becomes Creatures to their Creator; the believing that Christ Redeemed us, should make us yield up our selves to him as his purchase, to be disposed wholly by him, and employed only in his service. The believing a judgment to come, should give us care so to walk that we may not be condemned in it: And our believing the life everlasting should make us diligent so to employ

f our

Sunday our short moment of time here, that our everlasting life may be a life of joy, not of misery to us. In this manner from all the articles of the Creed, we are to draw motives to confirm us in all Christian Practice, to which end it is that our learning and believing of them tends, and therefore without it we are very far from making good this part of our Vow, the believing all the Articles of the Christian Faith:

38. That last part of our Vow is, that we should keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of our lives. Where, by our keeping God's holy will and commandments, is meant our doing of all those things which he hath made known to us to be his Will we should perform; wherein he hath given us his Holy Word to instruct us, and teach us, what it is that he requires of us; and now he expects that we should faithfully do it without favouring our selves in the breach of any one of his Commands. And then in this entire obedience, we must walk all the days of our lives: that is, We must go on in a constant course of obeying God; not only fetch some few steps in his ways, but walk in them, and that not for some part of our time, but all the days of our lives, never turn out of them, but go on constantly in them, as long as we live in this World.

The strict obligation of this Vow of Baptism.

39. Having now thus briefly explained to you this Vow made at your BAPTISM, all I shall shall add concerning it, is only to remember Sunday you how nearly you are concerned in the II.

keeping it: and that first in respect to Justice, secondly, in respect of Advantage and Benefit.
That you are in Justice bound to it, I need say no more but that it is a promise, and you know Justice requires of every man the keeping of his Promise. But then this is of all other Promises the most solemn and binding, for it is a Vow, that is, a Promise made to God; and therefore we are not only unjust, but forsworn, whenever we break any part of it.

40. But secondly, We are also highly concerned to keep it, in respect of our own benefit. I told you before, that Baptism entred us into Coevnant with God; now a Covenant is made up of two parts, that is, something promised by the one party, and something by the other of the parties that make the Covenant. And if one of them break his part of the Covenant, that is, perform not what he hath agreed to, he can in no reason look that the other should make good his.
And so it is here; God doth indeed promise those benefits before mentioned, and that is his part of the Covenant. But then we also undertake to perform the several things contained in this Vow of Baptism, and that is our part of it, and unless we do indeed perform them, God is not tied to make good his, and so we forfeit all those precious benefits

Sunday and advantages, we are left in that natural II. and miserable estate of ours, children of wrath, enemies to God, and heirs of eternal damnation. And now what can be the pleasure that any or all sins can afford us, that can make us the least degree of recompence for such a loss, the loss of God's favour and grace here, and the loss of our own Souls hereafter? For as our Saviour saith, Mark 8. 36. What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Yet this mad bargain we make whenever we break any part of this our Vow of Baptism. It therefore most nearly concerns us to consider sadly of it, to remember that every sin we commit is a direct breach of this our Vow, and therefore when thou art tempted to any sin, seem it never so light, say not of it as Lot did of Zoar, Gen. 19. 20. Is it not a little one? But consider that whatever it is, thou hast in thy Baptism vowed against it, and then be it never so little, it draws a great one at the heels of it, no less than that of being forsworn; which whoever commits, God hath in the third Commandment pronounced, He will not hold him guiltless. And that we may the better keep this Vow, it will be very useful often to repeat to our selves the several branches of it, that so we may still have it ready in our minds to set against all temptations; and surely it is so excellent a weapon, that if we do not either cast it aside, or use it very negligently, ligerly, it will enable us by God's help, to put to flight our spiritual Adversary. And this is that reverence we are to pay to this first Sacrament, that of Baptism.

SUNDAY III.

Of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, of preparation before, as Examination; of Repentance, Faith, Obedience; of duties to be done at the Receiving and afterwards, &c.

Sect. I.

NOW follows the Reverence due to the Sacrament of the LORD'S SUPPER; and in this I must follow my first division, and set down first, What is to be done Before; secondly, At; and thirdly, After the time of Receiving; for in this Sacrament we cannot be excused from any one of these, though in the former we are.

The Lord's Supper.

2. And first, For that which is to be done Before. S. Paul tells us it is Examination, 1 Cor. 11. 28. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread and drink of that cup. But before I proceed to the particulars of this Examination, I must in the general tell you, that the special business we have to do in this Sacrament, is to repeat and renew that Covenant we made with God in our Baptism, which we having many ways grievously broken, it pleases God in his great mercy

Sunday mercy to suffer us to come to the renewing III. of it in this Sacrament, which if we do in sincerity of heart; he hath promised to accept us, and to give us all those benefits in this, which he was ready to bestow in the other Sacrament, if we had not by our own fault forfeited them. Since then the renewing of our Covenant is our business at this time, it follows that these three things are necessary towards it: First, That we understand what the Covenant is; secondly, That we consider what our Breaches of it have been; and Thirdly, That we resolve upon a strict observance of it, for the rest of our life. And the trying our selves in every one of these particulars is that examination which is required of us before we come to this Sacrament.

3. And first, We are to examine whether we understand what this Covenant is; this is exceeding necessary, as being the foundation of both the other, for it is neither possible to discover our past sins, nor to settle purposes against them for the future without it.
 Let this therefore be your first business. Try whether you rightly understand what that Covenant is which you entered into at your Baptism, what be the mercies promised on God's part, and the duties on yours. And because the Covenant made with each of us in Baptism is only the applying to our particulars the Covenant made by God in Christ with all Mankind in general, you are to consider

sider whether you understand that; if you do not, you must immediately seek for instruction in it, and till you have means of gaining better, look over what is briefly said in the entrance to this Treatise concerning the SECOND COVENANT, which is the foundation of that Covenant which God makes with us in our Baptism. And because you will there find, that obedience to all God's Commands is the condition required of us, and is also that which we expressly Vow in our Baptism, it is necessary you should likewise know what those Commands of God are. Therefore if you find you are ignorant of them, never be at rest till you have got your self instructed in them, and have gained such a measure of knowledge as may direct you to do that Whole Duty of Man which God requires. And the giving thee this instruction is the only aim of this Book, which the more ignorant thou art, the more earnestly I shall intreat thee diligently to read. And if thou hast heretofore approach'd to this Holy Sacrament in utter ignorance of these necessary things, bewail thy sin in so doing, but presume not to come again till thou hast by gaining this necessary knowledge fitted thy self for it, which thou must hasten to do. For though no Man must come to the Sacrament in such ignorance, yet if he wilfully continue in it, that will be no excuse to him for keeping from this Holy Table.

Sunday

III.

Sins.

sorts.

4. The second part of our Examination is concerning our breaches of this Covenant; and here thou wilt find the use of that knowledge I spake of. For there is no way of discovering what our sins have been, but by trying our Actions by that which should be the rule of them, the Law of God. When therefore thou settest to this part of Examination, remember what are the several branches of thy duty, and then ask thy own heart in every particular, how thou hast performed it. And content not thy self with knowing in general that thou hast broken God's Law, but do thy utmost to discover in what particulars thou hast done so. Recal, as well as thou canst, all the passages of thy life, and in each of them consider what part of that duty hath been transgressed by it. And that not only in the grosser act, but in word also; nay, even in thy most secret thoughts: For though Man's Law reaches not to them, yet God's doth; so that whatever he forbids in the act, he forbids likewise in the thoughts and desires, and sees them as clearly as our most publick acts. This particular search is exceeding necessary; for there is no promise of forgiveness of any sin, but only to him that confesseth and forsaketh it. Now to both these it is necessary that we have a distinct and particular knowledge of our sins. For how can he either confess his Sin, that knows not his guilt of it? or how can he resolve to forsake it, it, that discerns not himself to have formerly cleaved to it? Therefore we may surely conclude that this Examination is not only useful but necessary towards a full and compleat repentance; for he that does not take this particular view of his sins, will be likely to repent but by halves, which will never avail him towards his pardon; nothing but an entire forsaking of every evil way, being sufficient for that. But surely of all other times it concerns us, that when we come to the Sacrament, our Repentance be full and compleat; and therefore this strict search of our own hearts is then especially necessary. For although it be true, that it is not possible by all our diligence to discover or remember every sin of our whole lives, and though it be also true, that what is so unavoidably hid from us, may be forgiven without any more particular confession than that of David, Psal. 19. 12. Cleanse thou me from my secret faults: yet this will be no plea for us, if they come to be secret only, because we are negligent in searching. Therefore take heed of deceiving thy self in this weighty business, but search thy soul to the bottom, without which it is impossible that the wounds thereof should ever be thoroughly cured.

5. And as you are to enquire thus narrowly concerning the several sorts of sins, so also must you concerning the degrees of them, for there are divers circumstances which increase

Sunday
III.

Sunday crease and heighten the sin. Of this sort III. there are many; as first, when we sin against knowledge, that is, when we certainly know such a thing to be a sin, yet for the present pleasure or profit (or whatever other motive) adventure on it. This is by Christ himself adjudged to be a great heightning of the sin. He that knows his Master's will and doth it not, shall be beaten with many stripes, Luke 12.47. Secondly, When we sin with Deliberation, that is, when we do not fall into it of a sudden, ere we are aware, but have time to consider of it, this is another degree of the sin. But thirdly, a yet higher is, when we do it against the Resistances and checks of our own Conscience, when that at the time tells us, This thing thou oughtest not to do: nay, lays before us the danger as well as the sin of it, yet in spite of these Admonitions of Conscience we go on and commit the sin; this is a huge increase of it, such as will raise the least sin into a most high provocation. For it is plain, a sin thus committed must be a wilful one, and then be the matter of it never so light, it is most hainous in God's eyes. Nay this is a circumstance of such force, that it may make an indifferent action that is in it self no sin, become one. For though my Conscience should err in telling me such a thing were unlawful, yet so long as I were so perswaded, it were sin for me to do that thing; for in that case my Will

III.

Will consents to the doing a thing which I believe to be displeasing to God, and God, (who judges us by our Wills, not Understandings) imputes it to me as a sin, as well as if the thing were in it self unlawful. And therefore surely we may conclude, that any thing which is in it self sinful is made much more so by being committed against the checks of Conscience. A fourth aggravation of a sin is when it hath been often repeated, for then there is not only the guilt of so many more Acts, but every Act grows also so much worse, and more inexcusable. We always judge thus in faults committed against our selves, we can forgive a single injury more easily than the same when it hath been repeated, and the oftner it hath been so repeated, the more hainous we account it. And so surely it is in faults against God also. Fifthly, The sins which have been committed after Vows and Resolutions of amendment are yet more grievous; for that contains also the breaking of those promises. Somewhat of this there is in every wilful sin, because every such is a breach of that Vow we make at Baptism. But besides that, we have since bound our selves by new Vows, if at no other time, yet surely at our coming to the Lord's Supper, that being (as was formerly said) purposely to repeat our Vows of Baptism. And the more of these Vows we have made, so much the greater is our guilt, if we fall back to any sin

Sunday sin we then renounced. This is a thing very III. well worth weighing, and therefore examine thy self particularly at thy approach to the Sacrament concerning thy breaches of former Vows made at the Holy Table. And if upon any other occasion, as sickness, trouble of mind, or the like, thou hast at any time made any other, call thy self to a strict account how thou hast performed them also, and remember that every sin committed against such Vows, is besides its own natural guilt, a Perjury likewise.
 Sixthly, a yet higher step is when a Sin hath been so often committed that we are come to a custom and habit of it: and that is indeed a high degree.

6. Yet even of habits some are worse than others, as first, If it be so confirmed that we are come to a hardness of heart, have no sense at all of the sin: Or, secondly, If we go on in it against any extraordinary means used by God, to reform us, such as sickness, or any other affliction which seems to be sent on purpose for our reclaiming. Or, thirdly, If all Reproofs and Exhortations either of Ministers or private friends work not on us, but either make us angry at our reprovers, or set us on defending the sin. Or, lastly, If this sinful habit be so strong in us as to give us a love to the sin, not only in our selves but in others; if, as the Apostle saith, Rom. 1. 31. We do not only do the things, but take pleasure in them that do them, and therefore entice and draw as many many as we can into the same sins with us: ^{Sunday} Then it is risen to the highest step of wickedness, and it is to be lookt on as the utmost degree both of sin and danger. Thus you see how you are to examine your selves concerning your sins, in each of which you are to consider how many of these heightning circumstances there have been, that so you may aright measure the hainousness of them. IL

7. Now the end of this Examination is to ^{Humilia-} bring you to such a fight of your sins as may ^{1500.} truly humble you, make you sensible of your own danger, that have provoked so great a Majesty, who is able so sadly to revenge himself upon you, and that will surely even to the most carnal heart, appear a reasonable ground of sorrow. But that is not all; it must likewise bring you to a sense and abhorrence of your baseness and ingratitude, that have thus offended so good and gracious a God, that have made such unworthy and unkind returns to those tender and rich mercies of his. And this consideration especially must melt your hearts into a deep sorrow and contrition, the degree whereof must be in some measure answerable to the degree of your sins. And the greater it is, provided it be not such as shuts up the hope of God's Mercy, the more acceptable it is to God, who hath promised not to despise a broken and contrite heart, Pf. 51. 17. And the more likely it will be also to bring us to amendment: For if we have once felt

Sunday felt what the smart of a wounded Spirit is, III. we shall have the less mind to venture upon sin again.

8. For when we are tempted with any of the short pleasures of sin, we may then out of our own experience set against them the sharp pains and terrors of an accusing conscience, which will to any that hath felt them be able infinitely to outweigh them. Endeavour therefore to bring your Soul to this melting temper, to this deep unfeigned sorrow, and that not only for the danger you have brought upon your self; for though that be a consideration which may and ought to work sadness in us, yet where that alone is the motive of our sorrow, it is not that sorrow which will avail us for pardon; and the reason of it is clear, for that sorrow proceeds only from the love of our selves, we are sorry because we are like to smart. But the sorrow of a true Penitent must be joyned also with the love of God, and that will make us grieve for having offended him, though there were no punishment to fall upon our selves. The way then to stir up this sorrow in us; is first, To stir up our love of God, by repeating to our selves the many gracious acts of his mercy towards us, particularly that of his sparing us, and not cutting us off in our sins. Consider with thy self how many and how great provocations thou hast offered him, perhaps in a continued course of many years wilful disobedience, for which thou mightest with perfect justice have been ere this sent quick into Hell: Nay, possibly thou hast before thee many examples of less sinners than thou art, who have been suddenly snatched away in the midst of their sins: And what cause canst thou give, why thou hast thus long escaped, but only because his eye hath spared thee? And what cause of that sparing, but his tender compassions towards thee, his unwillingness that thou shouldst perish? This consideration if it be prest home upon thy soul, cannot chuse (if thy heart be not as hard as the nether Millstone) but awake somewhat of love in thee towards this gracious, this long-suffering God, and that love will certainly make it appear to thee, that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the Lord, Jer. 2. 19. That thou hast made such wretched requitals of so great mercy; it will make thee both ashamed and angry at thy self that thou hast been such an unthankful creature. But if the consideration of this one sort of mercy, God's forbearance only, be such an engagement and help to this godly sorrow, what will then be the multitude of those other mercies which every Man is able to reckon up to himself? And therefore let every Man be as particular in it as he can, call to mind as many of them as he is able, that so he may attain to the greater degree of true contrition.

Sunday 9. And to all these endeavours must be added earnest Prayers to God, that he by his Holy Spirit would shew you your sins, and soften your hearts, that you may thoroughly bewail and lament them.

III. Confession. 10. To this must be joyned an humble confession of sins to God, and that not only in general, but also in particular, as far as your memory of them will reach; and that with all those heightning circumstances of them; which you have by the forementioned examination discovered. Yea even secret and forgotten sins must in general be acknowledged; for it is certain there are multitudes of such; so that it is necessary for every one of us to say with David, Psal: 19. 12. Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from my secret faults. When you have thus confessed your sins with this hearty sorrow, and sincere hatred of them, you may then (and not before) be concluded to feel so much of your disease, that it will be seasonable to apply the remedy.

Faith. 11. In the next place therefore you are to look on him whom God hath set forth to be the propitiation for our sins, Rom: 3. 25: Even Jesus Christ that Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world, John 1. 29. And earnestly beg of God, that by his most precious blood your sins may be washed away; and that God would for his sake be reconciled to you. And this you are to believe will surely be be done, if you do for the rest of your time Sunday forsake your sins, and give your selves up III.

 sincerely to obey God in all his Commands.
 But without that, it is vain to hope any benefit from Christ, or his sufferings. And therefore the next part of your preparation must be the setting those resolutions of obedience, which I told you was the third thing you are to examine your selves of before you approach to the Holy Sacrament.

12. Concerning the particulars of this Resolution I need say no more, but that it must answer every part, and branch of our duty; that is, we must not only in general resolve that we will observe God's Commandments, but we must resolve it for every Commandment by it self; and especially where we have found our selves most to have failed heretofore, there especially to renew our resolutions. And herein it nearly concerns us to look that these resolutions be sincere and unfeigned, and not only such flight ones as people use out of custom to put on at their coming to the Sacrament, which they never think of keeping afterwards. For this is a certain truth, that whosoever comes to this Holy Table without an entire hatred of every sin, comes unworthily; and it is as sure, that he that doth entirely hate all sin, will resolve to forsake it; for you know forsaking naturally follows hatred, no man unwillingly abides with a thing or person he hates. And G there-

Resolutions of Obedience.

Sunday therefore he that doth not so resolve, as that
 III. God the searcher of hearts may approve it as sincere, cannot be supposed to hate sin, and so cannot be a worthy Receiver of that Holy Sacrament. Therefore try your resolutions throughly, that you deceive not your selves in them; it is your own great danger, if you do, for it is certain you cannot deceive God, nor gain acceptation from him by any thing which is not perfectly hearty and unfeigned.

Of the Means.

13. Now as you are to resolve on this new Obedience, so you are likewise to resolve on the Means, which may assist you in the performance of it. And therefore consider in every duty, what are the means that may help you in it, and resolve to make use of them, how uneasie soever they be to your flesh; so on the other side consider what things they are that are likely to lead you to sin, and resolve to shun and avoid them: This you are to do in respect of all sins whatever, but especially in those whereof you have formerly been guilty. For there it will not be hard for you to find, by what steps and degrees you were drawn into it, what Company, what occasion it was that ensnar'd you, as also to what sort of Temptations you are aptest to yield. And therefore you must particularly fence your self against the sin, by avoiding those occasions of it.

14. But it is not enough that you resolve you will do all this hereafter, but you must instantly

instantly set to it, and begin the course by Sunday doing at the present whatsoever you have opportunity of doing. And there are several things which you may, nay, must do at the present, before you come to the Sacrament. III.

15. As first, You must cast off every sin, Present re-nouncing of sin. not bring any one unmortified lust with you to that Table; for it is not enough to purpose to cast them off afterwards, but you must then actually do it by withdrawing all degrees of love and affection from them; you must then give a bill of divorce to all your old beloved sins, or else you are in no way fit to be married to Christ. The reason of this is clear; for this Sacrament is our spiritual nourishment; now before we can receive spiritual nourishment, we must have spiritual life, (for no man gives food to a dead person.) But whosoever continues not only in the act, but in the love of any one known sin, hath no spiritual life, but is in God's account no better than a dead carcass, and therefore cannot receive that spiritual food. It is true he may eat the Bread, and drink the Wine, but he receives not Christ, but instead of him, that which is most dreadful; the Apostle will tell you what, 1 Cor. 11. 29. He eats and drinks his own damnation. Therefore you see how great a necessity lies on you thus actually to put off every sin before you come to this Table.

16. And the same necessity lies on you for a second thing to be done at this time, and Imbracing verse. that

Sunday that is, The putting your Soul into a heavenly III. and Christian Temper ; by possessing it with all those Graces which may render it acceptable in the eyes of God. For when you have turned out Satan and his accursed train, you must not let your Soul lie empty ; if you do Christ tells you, Luk. 11. 26. He will quickly return again, and your last estate shall be worse than your first. But you must by earnest Prayer invite into it the Holy Spirit with his Graces, or if they be in some degree there already, you must pray that he will yet more fully possess it, and you must quicken and stir them up.

Quickening of Graces.

17. As for example, you must quicken your Humility by considering your many and great sins ; your Faith, by meditating on God's Promises to all penitent sinners ; your love to God by considering his Mercies, especially those remembered in the Sacrament, his giving Christ to die for us ; and your love to your Neighbour, nay to your enemies, by considering that great example of his suffering for us that were enemies to him. And it is most particularly required of us when we come to this Table, that we copy out this pattern of his in a perfect forgiveness of all that have offended us, and not only forgiveness, but such a kindness also as will express it self in all offices of love and friendship to them.

Charity.

18. And if you have formerly so quite forgot that blessed example of his, as to do the direct contrary ; if you have done any unkindness

kindneis or injury to any person, then you are to seek forgiveness from him: and to that end, first, acknowledge your fault, and secondly, restore to him, to the utmost of your power, whatsoever you have deprived him of, either in Goods or Credit. This Reconciliation with our brethren is absolutely necessary towards the making any of our services acceptable with God, as appears by that precept of Christ, Matt. 5. 23, 24. If thou bring thy gift to the Altar, and there remembrest that thy brother hath ought against thee, leave there thy gift before the Altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. Where you see, that though the gift be already at the Altar, it must rather be left there unoffered, than be offered by a Man that is not at perfect peace with his neighbour. And if this Charity be so necessary in all our services, much more in this, where by a joint partaking in the same holy mysteries, we signifie our being united and knit not only to Christ our head, but also to each other as fellow-members. And therefore if we come with any malice in our hearts, we commit an act of the highest Hypocrisie, by making a solemn profession in the Sacrament of that Charity and Brotherly Love, whereof our hearts are quite void.

19. Another most necessary grace at this time is that of Devotion, for the raising whereof we must allow our selves some time

Devotion

Sunday to withdraw from our worldly affairs, and
 III. wholly to set our selves to this business of preparation; one very special part of which preparation lies in raising up our souls to a devout and heavenly temper. And to that it is most necessary that we cast off all thoughts of the World, for they will be sure as so many clogs to hinder our Souls in their mounting towards Heaven. A special exercise of this devotion is Prayer, wherein we must be very frequent and earnest at our coming to the Sacrament, this being one great instrument wherein we must obtain all those other graces required in our preparation. Therefore be sure this be not omitted; for if you use never so much endeavour besides, and leave out this, it is the going to work in your own strength without looking to God for his help, and then it is impossible you should prosper in it: For we are not able of our selves to think any thing, as of our selves, but our sufficiency is of God, 2 Cor. 3.5. Therefore be instant with him so to assist you with his grace, that you may come so fitted to this Holy Table; that you may be partakers of the benefits there reached out to all worthy receivers.

Necessity of these Graces.

20. These and all other spiritual Graces our Souls must be clothed with when we come to this Feast; for this is that Wedding Garment, without which whosoever comes, is like to have the entertainment mentioned in the Parable of him who came to the marriage without a wedding garment, Matth. 22. 13. Sunday III.

who was cast into utter darkness, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth; for though it is possible he may sit it out at the present, and not be snatcht from the Table, yet St. Paul assures him, he drinks damnation to himself, and how soon it may fall on him is uncertain; But it is sure, it will, if repentance prevent it not; and as sure that whenever it does come, it will be intolerable: for who among us can dwell with everlasting burnings? Isa. 33. 14.

21. I shall add but one thing more concerning the things which are to be done before the Sacrament and that is an advice, that if any person upon a serious view of himself cannot satisfy his own Soul of his sincerity, and so doubts whether he may come to the Sacrament, he do not rest wholly on his own judgment in the case; for if he be a truly humbled Soul it is likely he may judge too hardly of himself; if it be not, it is odds, but if he be left to the satisfying his own doubts, he will quickly bring himself to pass too favourable a sentence. Or whether he be the one or the other, if he come to the Sacrament in that doubt, he certainly plunges himself into farther doubts and scruples, if not into sin: on the other side, if he forbear because of it, if that fear be a causeless one, then he groundlessly absents himself from that Holy Ordinance, and so deprives his Soul of

The usefulness of a Spiritual Guide.

Sunday the benefits of it. Therefore in the midst of so many dangers which attend the mistake of himself, I would, as I said before, exhort him not to trust to his own judgment, but to make known his case to some discreet and godly Minister, and rather be guided by his, who will probably (if the case be duly and without any disguise discovered to him) be better able to judge of him than he of himself. This is the counsel the Church gives in the Exhortation before the Communion, where it is advised, that if any by other means there forementioned, cannot quiet his own Conscience, but require farther counsel and comfort. then let him go to some discreet and learned Minister of God's Word, and open his grief, that he may receive such ghostly counsel, advice and comfort, that his Conscience may be relieved, &c. This is surely such advice as should not be neglected, neither at the time of coming to the Sacrament nor any other, when we are under any fear or reasons of doubt concerning the state of our Souls. And for want of this, many have run into very great mischief, having let the doubt fester so long, that it hath either plunged them into deep distresses of Conscience, or, which is worse, they have, to still that disquiet within them, betaken themselves to all sinful pleasures, and so quite cast off all care of their Souls.

ashamed to discover our selves to one.*

22. But to all this it will perhaps be said, that this cannot be done without discovering the the nakedness and blemishes of the Soul, and there is shame in that, and therefore men are unwilling to do it. But to that I answer, That it is very unreasonable that should be a hindrance; For first, I suppose you are to chuse only such a person as will faithfully keep any secret you shall commit to him, and so it can be no publick shame you can fear. And if it be in respect of that single person, you need not fear that neither; for supposing him a godly Man, he will not think the worse of you but the better, that you are so desirous to set all right between God and your Soul. But if indeed there were shame in it, yet as long as it may be a mean to cure both your trouble and your sin too (as certainly godly and faithful counsel may tend much to both) that shame ought to be despised; and it is sure it would, if we loved our Souls as well as our Bodies: For in bodily diseases be they never so foul or shameful, we count him a fool who will rather miss the cure than discover it; and then it must here be so much a greater folly, by how much the Soul is more precious than the Body.

Sunday
III.

23. But God knows it is not only doubtful persons to whom this advice might be useful, there are others of another sort, whose confidence is their disease, who presume very groundlessly of the goodness of their estates: And for those it were most happy, if they could be brought to hear some more equal

Sunday judgments than their own in this so weighty III. a business. The truth is, We are generally so apt to favour our selves, that it might be very useful for the most, especially the more ignorant sort, sometimes to advise with a spiritual Guide; to enable them to pass right judgments on themselves; and not only so, but to receive directions, how to subdue and mortifie those sins they are most inclined to, which is a matter of so much difficulty, that we have no reason to despise any means that may help us in it.

24. I have now gone through those several parts of duty we are to perform Before our Receiving; in the next place, I am to tell you, what is to be done At the time of Recei- ving. When thou art at the holy Table; first humble thy self in an unfeigned acknowledgment of thy great unworthiness to be admitted there; and to that purpose remember again between God and thine own soul, some of thy greatest and foulest sins, thy breaches of former Vows made at that Table, especially since thy last Receiving. Then meditate on those bitter sufferings of Christ, which are set out to us in the Sacrament: when thou seest the Bread broken, remember how his blessed Body was torn with nails upon the Cross; when thou seest the Wine poured out, remember how his precious Blood was spilt there; and then consider it was thy sins that caused both. And here think how unworthy a wretch thou art to have Sunday done that which occasioned such torments III.

 to Him: how much worse than his very cruci-fiers. They crucified him once; but thou hast, as much as in thee lay, crucified him daily. They crucified him because they knew him not, but thou hast known both what he is in himself, The Lord of glory, and what he isto thee, a most tender and merciful Saviour, and yet thou hast still continued thus to cru-cifie him afresh. Consider this, and let it work in thee, first, a great sorrow for thy sins past, and then a great hatred and a firm resolution against them for the time to come.

25. When thou hast a-while thus thought The atone- on these sufferings of Christ for the increas- ment ing thy Humility and Contrition: then in the wrought second place think of them again, to stir up by them. thy Faith; look on him as the Sacrifice offered up for thy sins, for the appeasing of God's Wrath, and procuring his favour and mercies toward thee. And therefore believingly, yet humbly beg of God to accept of that Satisfaction made by his innocent and beloved Son, and for the merits thereof to pardon thee whatever is past, and to be fully reconciled to thee.

26. In the third place consider them again The thank- to raise thy Thankfulness. Think how much fulness ow- both of shame and pain he there endured, but ing for especially those great agonies of his Soul, them.
 which drew from him that bitter cry, My God,

Sunday God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Matt.
 III. 27.45. Now all this he suffer'd only to keep thee from perishing. And therefore consider what unexpressible thanks thou owest him; and endeavour to raise thy Soul to the most zealous and hearty thanksgiving: for this is a principal part of duty at this time, the praising and magnifying that mercy which hath redeemed us by so dear a price. Therefore it will here well become thee to say with David, I will take the Cup of Salvation, and will call upon the name of the Lord.

*The great love of Christ in
 them.*

27. Fourthly, Look on these sufferings of Christ to stir up this love; and surely there cannot be a more effectual means of doing it; for here the love of Christ to thee is most manifest. according to that of the Apostle, 1 Joh. 3. 16. Hereby perceive we the love of God towards us, because he laid down his life for us. And that even the highest degree of Love, for as himself tells us, Joh. 15. 13. Greater love than this hath no man, that a man lay down his life for his friend. Yet even greater love than this had he; for he not only died, but died the most painful and most reproachful death, and that not for his friends, but for his utter enemies. And therefore if after all this Love on his part there be no return of love on ours, we are worse than the vilest sort of Men, for even the Publicans, Matth. 5. 46. Love those that love them. Here therefore chide and reproach thy thy self that thy love to him is so faint and cool, when his to thee was so zealous and affectionate, and endeavour to enkindle this holy flame in thy Soul, to love him in such a degree that thou mayest be ready to copy out his example, to part with all things, yea, even life it self whenever he calls for it, that is, whensoever thy obedience to any command of his shall lay thee open to those sufferings. But in the mean time to resolve never again to make any league with his enemies, to entertain or harbour any sin in thy breast. But if there have any such hitherto remained with thee, make this thi season to kill and crucifie it; offer it up at this instant a sacrifice to him who was sacrificed for thee, and particularly for that very end that he might redeem thee from all iniquity. Therefore here make thy solemn resolutions to forsake every sin, particularly, those into which thou hast most frequently fallen. And that thou mayest indeed perform those resolutions, earnestly beg of this crucified Saviour, that he will, By the power of his death, mortifie and kill all thy corruptions.—

28. When thou art about to receive the Consecrated Bread and Wine, remember that God now offers to seal to thee that New Covenant made with Mankind in his Son. For since he gives that his Son in the Sacrament, he gives with him all the benefits of that Covenant, to wit, pardon of Sins, Sancti-

Sunday Sanctifying grace, and a Title to an eternal inheritance. And here be astonish'd at the infinite goodness of God, who reaches out to thee so precious a treasure. But then remember that this is all but on condition that thou perform thy part of the Covenant. And therefore settle in thy soul the most serious purpose of obedience, and then with all possible devotion joyn with the Minister in that short, but excellent Prayer, used at the instant of giving the Sacrament, The Body of our Lord, &c.

Upon Receiving give thanks.

Pray.

29. So soon as thou hast Received, offer up thy devoutest Praises for that great mercy, together with thy most earnest Prayers for such assistance of God's Spirit as may enable thee to perform the Vow thou hast now made. Then remembering that Christ is a propitiation not for our sins only, but also for the sins of the whole world; let thy Charity reach as far as his hath done, and pray for all mankind, that every one may receive the benefit of that Sacrifice of His: commend also to God the estate of the Church, that particularly whereof thou art a Member. And forget not to pray for all to whom thou owest Obedience both in Church and State; and so go on to pray for such particular persons as either thy Relations or their wants shall present to thee. If there be any Collection for the poor (as there always ought to be at this time) give freely according to thy ability;

or if by the default of others, there be no ~~Sunday~~ Sunday such Collection, yet do thou privately design III. something towards the relief of thy poor brethren, and be sure to give it, the next fitting opportunity that offers it self. All this thou must contrive to do in the time that others are receiving, that so when the publick Prayers after the Administration begin, thou mayest be ready to joyn in them, which thou must likewise take care to do with all devotion. Thus much for behaviour At the time of Receiving.

30. Now follows the third and last thing, that is, What thou art to do After thy Receiving. That which is immediately to be done, is as soon as thou art retir'd from the Congregation, to offer up again to God thy Sacrifice of Praise for all those precious mercies conveyed to thee in that Holy Sacrament, as also humbly to intreat the continued assistance of his grace to enable thee to make good all those purposes of obedience thou hast now made. And in whatsoever thou knowest thy self most in danger, either in respect of any former habit, or natural inclination, there especially desire and earnestly beg his aid. After the Sacrament.
Private Prayer and Thanksgiving.

31. When thou hast done thus, do not presently let thy self loose to thy worldly cares and business, but spend all that day, either in Meditating, Praying, Reading, good conferences, or the like; so as may best keep up that Not presently to fall to worldly affairs.

Sunday that holy flame that is enkindled in thy heart.

III. Afterwards when thy calling requires thee to fall to thy usual affairs, do it, but yet still remember that thou hast a greater business than that upon thy hands; that is, the performing of all those promises, thou so lately madest to God; and therefore whatever thy outward employments are, let thy heart be set on that, keep all the particulars of thy resolutions in memory, and whenever thou art tempted to any of thy old sins, then consider, this is the thing thou so solemnly vowedst against, and withal remember what a horrible guilt it will be if thou shouldst now wilfully do any thing contrary to that vow; yea, and what a horrible mischief also it will be to thy self. For at thy receiving, God and thou entredst into Covenant, into a league of friendship and kindness. And as long as thou keepest in that friendship with God, thou art safe, all the malice of Men or Devils can do thee no harm: For, as the Apostle saith, Rom. 8. 31. If God be for us, who can be against us? But if thou breakest this league (as thou certainly dost, if thou yieldest to any wilful sin) then God and thou art enemies, and if all the World then were for thee, it could not avail thee.

To keep thy resolutions still in memory.

The danger of breaking them.

Making God thy enemy.

Thy own Conscience.

23. Nay, Thou wilt get an enemy within thine own bosom, thy Conscience accusing and upbraiding thee; and when God and thine own Conscience are thus against thee, thou thou canst not but be extremely miserable Sunday even in this life, besides that fearful expecta- III.

 tion of wrath which awaits thee in the next.
 Remember all this when thou art set upon by any temptation, and then sure thou canst not but look upon that temptation as a cheat that comes to rob thee of thy Peace, thy God; thy very Soul. And then sure it will appear as unfit to entertain it, as thou wouldst think it to harbour one in thy house who thou knowest came to rob thee of what is dearest to thee.

33. And let not any experience of God's God's for- Mercy in pardoning thee heretofore, encour- mer par- rage thee again to provoke him; for besides dons no in- that it is the highest degree of wickedness courage- and unthankfulness to make that goodness of ments to sin his which should lead thee to repentance an encouragement in thy sin: Besides this, I say, the oftner thou hast been pardoned, the less reason thou hast to expect it again, because thy sin is so much the greater for having been committed against so much mercy. If a King have several times pardoned an offender, yet if he still return to commission of the same fault, the King will at last be forced, if he have any love to Justice, to give him up to it. Now so it is here, God is as well Just as Merciful, and his Justice will at last surely and heavily avenge the abuse of his Mercy; and there cannot be a greater abuse of his Mercy, than to sin in hope of it: so that it

Sunday will prove a miserable deceiving of thy self III. thus to presume upon it.

The Obligation of this Vow perpetual. 34. Now this care of making good thy Vow must not abide with thee some few days only, and then be cast aside, but it must continue with thee all thy days. For if thou break thy Vow, it matters not whether sooner or later. Nay, perhaps the guilt may in some respects be more, if it be late; for if thou hast for a good while gone on in the observance of it, that shews the thing is possible to thee; and so thy after breaches are not of infirmity, because thou canst not avoid them, but of perverseness, because thou wilt not. Besides, The use of Christian walking must needs make it more easie to thee. For indeed all the difficulty of it is but from the custom of the contrary: And therefore if after some acquaintance with it, when thou hast overcome somewhat of the hardness, thou shalt then give it over, it will be most inexcusable. Therefore be careful all the days of thy life to keep such a watch over thy self, and so to avoid all occasions of temptations, as may preserve thee from all wilful breaches of this Vow.

Yet often to be renewed. 35. But though the obligation of every such single Vow reach to the utmost day of our lives, yet are we often to renew it, that is, we are often to receive the holy Sacrament: for that being the means of conveying to us so great and unvaluable benefits, and it being also a command of Christ, that we should do this in remembrance of him. we are in respect both of reason and duty to omit no fit opportunity of partaking of that holy Table. I have now shewed you what that reverence is which we are to pay to God in his Sacrament.

Sunday
IV.

SUNDAY IV.

Honour due to God's Name, Sins against it; Blasphemy; Swearing; of Assertory, Promissory, unlawful Oaths; of Perjury, vain Oaths, and the Sin of them, &c.

SECT. I. THE last thing wherein we are to express our Reverence to him, is the Honouring of his Name. Now what this Honouring of his Name is, we shall best understand by considering what are the things by which it is dishonoured, the avoiding of which will be our way of honouring it.

The first is, All Blasphemies, or speaking any evil thing of God, the highest degree whereof is cursing him, or if we do not speak it with our mouths, yet if we do it in our hearts by thinking any unworthy thing of him; it is lookt on by God, who sees the heart, as the vilest dishonour. But there is also a Blasphemy of the Actions, that is, when

Sunday men who profess to be the servants of God, IV. live so wickedly that they bring up an evil report of him, whom they own as their Master and Lord. This Blasphemy the Apostle takes notice of, Rom. 2. 24. where he tells those who profess to be observers of the Law, That by their wicked actions, the Name of God was blasphemed among the Gentiles. Those Gentiles were moved to think ill of God, as the favourer of sin, when they saw those, who called themselves his servants, commit it.

Swearing. A second way of Dishonouring God's Name is by Swearing, and that is of two sorts, either by false Oaths, or else by rash and light ones. A false Oath may also be of two kinds, as first, That by which I affirm somewhat; or secondly, That by which I promise. The first is, When I say such or such a thing was done so or so, and confirm this saying of mine with an Oath; if then I know there be not perfect truth in what I say, this is a flat Perjury, a down-right being forsworn: Nay, If I swear to the truth of that whereof I am only doubtful, though the thing should happen to be true: yet it brings upon me the guilt of Perjury; for I swear at a venture, and the thing might for ought I knew be as well false as true, whereas I ought never to swear any thing, the truth of which I do not certainly know.

Promissory. 2. But besides this sort of Oaths, by which I affirm any thing, there is the other sort, that that by which I promise somewhat. And Sunday that promise may be either to God or Man; IV. when it is to God, we call it a Vow, of which I have already spoken, under the heads of the Sacraments; I shall now only speak of that to Man, and this may become a false Oath, either at, or after the time of taking it.

 At the time of taking, it is false, if either I have then no real purpose of making it good, or else take it in a sense different from that which I know he to whom I make the promise understands it; for the use of Oaths being to assure the persons to whom they are made, they must be taken in their sense. But if I were never so sincere at the taking the Oath, if afterwards I do not perform it, I am certainly perjured.

3. The nature of an Oath being then thus Unlawful binding, it nearly concerns us to look that Oaths. the matter of our Oaths be lawful, for else we run our selves into a woful snare. For example, suppose I swear to kill a Man, if I perform my Oath, I am guilty of Murder; if I break it, of Perjury. And so I am under a necessity of sinning one way or other: but there is nothing puts us under a greater degree of this unhappy necessity, than when we swear two Oaths, whereof the one is directly cross and contradictory to the other.
 For if I swear to give a Man my whole estate, and afterwards swear to give all or part of that estate to another, it is certain I must Sunday break my Oath to one of them, because it is IV. impossible to perform it to both, and so I must be under a necessity of being forsworn.

 And into this unhappy strait every Man brings himself that takes any Oath which crosses some other which he hath formerly taken; which should make all, that love either God or their own Souls, resolve never thus miserably to entangle themselves by taking an Oath cross and thwarting to another. But it may perhaps here be asked, What a person that hath already brought himself into such a condition, shall do? I answer, he must first heartily repent of the great sin of taking the unlawful Oath, and then stick only to the lawful, which is all that is in his power towards the repairing his fault, and qualifying him for God's pardon for it.

God greatly dishonoured by perjury.

4, Having said this concerning the kinds of this sin of Perjury, I shall only add a few words to shew you how greatly God's Name is dishonoured by it. In all Oaths you know, God is solemnly called to witness the truth of that which is spoken; now if the thing be false, it is the basest affront and dishonour that can possibly be done to God. For it is in reason to signifie one of these two things, either that we believe he knows not whether we say true or no; (and that is to make him no God, to suppose him to be as deceivable, and easie to be deluded as one of our ignorant neighbours) or else that he is willing to counte-

countenance our Lyes: the former robs him of that great Attribute of his, his knowing all things, and is surely a great dishonouring of him, it being even amongst Men accounted one of the greatest disgraces, to account a Man fit to have cheats put upon him; yet even so we deal with God, if we venture to forswear upon a hope that God discerns it not. But the other is yet worse, for the supposing him willing to countenance our lyes is the making him a party in them; and is not only the making him no God (it being impossible that God should either lye himself, or approve it in another) but is the making him like the very Devil. For he it is that is a Lyar, and the Father of it, John 8. 44. And surely I need say no more to prove that this is the highest degree of dishonouring God's Name.

5. But if any yet doubt the hainousness of this sin, let him but consider what God himself says of it in the Third Commandment, where he solemnly professes, He will not hold him guiltless that taketh his Name in vain; And sure the adding that to this Commandment and none of the rest, is the marking this out for a most hainous guilt. And if you look into Zach. 5. you will there find the punishment is answerable, even to the utter destruction not only of the Man, but his House also. Therefore it concerns all Men, as they love either their temporal or eternal welfare, to keep them most strictly from this sin.

The punishments of it.

Sunday But besides this of forswearing, I told you IV. there was another sort of Oaths by which Vain Oaths. God's Name is dishonoured; those are the vain and light Oaths, such as are so usual in our common discourse, and are expressly for-bidden by Christ, Matt. 5. 34. But I say unto you Swear not at all, neither by Heaven, for it is God's throne, nor by the earth, for it is his footstool: where you see we are not allowed to swear even by meer creatures because of the relation they have to God. How great a wickedness is it then to prophane his Holy Name by rash and vain Oaths? This is a sin that is (by I know not what charm of Satan's) grown into a fashion among us; and now its being so, draws daily more men into it.
 But it is to be remembered that when we shall appear before God's Judgment seat to answer for those prophanations of his Name, it will be no excuse to say, it was the fashion to do so: it will rather be an increase of our guilt, that we have by our own practice helped to confirm that wicked custom, which we ought to have beat down and discountenanced.

The sin of
them.

6. And sure whatever this prophane Age thinks of it, this is a sin of a very high nature. For besides that it is a direct breach of the Precept of Christ, it shews first, a very mean and low esteem of God: every Oath we swear is the appealing to God to judge the truth of what we speak, and therefore being of such greatness and Majesty; requires that

the matter concerning which we thus appeal ~~to him~~ IV.
 to him should be of great weight and moment, somewhat wherein either his own glory or some considerable good of Man is concern'd. But when we swear in common discourse, it is far otherwise; and the triflingest or lightest thing serves for the matter of an Oath; nay, often men swear to such vain and foolish things, as a considering person would be ashamed barely to speak. And is it not a great despising of God to call him solemnly to judge in such childish, such wretched matters? God is the great King of the World; now though a King be to be resorted unto in weighty cases, yet sure he would think himself much despised, if he should be called to judge between Boys at their childish games: and God knows many things whereto we frequently swear, are not of greater weight, and therefore are a sign that we do not rightly esteem of God.

7. Secondly, This common swearing is a They lead sin which leads directly to the former of for- ^{to perjury.} swearing; for he that by the use of swearing hath made Oaths so familiar to him, will be likely to take the dreadfulest Oath without much consideration. For how shall he that swears hourly, look upon an Oath with any reverence? and he that doth not, it is his chance, not his care that is to be thanked, if he keep from Perjury. Nay further; he that swears commonly, is not only prepared to

Sunday to forswear when a solemn Oath is tendered IV. him, but in all probability does actually forswear himself often in these suddener Oaths: for supposing them to come from a Man ere he is aware (which is the best can be said of them) what assurance can any Man have who swears ere he is aware, that he shall not lye so too? And if he doth both together, he must necessarily be forsworn. But he that observes your common swearers will be put past doubt that they are often forsworn. For they usually swear indifferently to things true or false, doubtful or certain. And I doubt not but if Men who are guilty of this sin would but impartially examine their own practice, their hearts would second me in this observation.

 tion to them*

8. Thirdly, This is a sin to which there is no temptation, there is nothing either of pleasure or profit got by it: most other sins offer us somewhat either of the one or the other, but this is utterly empty of both. So that in this sin the Devil does not play the Merchant for our Souls, as in others he does; he doth not so much as cheapen them, but we give them freely into his hands without any thing in exchange. There seems to be but one thing possible for men to hope to gain by it, and that is to be believed in what they say, when they thus bind it by an Oath. But this also they constantly fail of, for there are none so little believed as the common swearers. And good reason, reason, for he that makes no conscience thus to prophane God's Name, why shall any Man believe he makes any of Lying? Nay their forwardness to confirm every the slightest thing by an Oath, rather gives jealousie that they have some inward guilt of falseness, for which that Oath must be the cloak. And thus you see in how little stead it stands them, even to this only purpose for which they can pretend it useful: and to any other advantage it makes not the least claim, and therefore is a sin without temptation, and consequently without excuse; for it shews the greatest contempt, nay, unkindness to God, when we will provoke him thus, without any thing to tempt us to it. And therefore though the commonness of this sin hath made it pass but for a small one, yet it is very far from being so either in it self, or in God's account.

9. Let all therefore who are not yet fallen into the custom of this sin, be most careful never to yield to the least beginnings of it, and for those who are so miserable as to be already ensnared in it, let them immediately as they tender their Souls, get out of it. And let no Man plead the hardness of leaving an old custom, as an excuse for his continuing in it, but rather the longer he hath been in it, so much the more haste let him make out of it, as thinking it too too much, that he hath so long gone on in so great a sin. And if the length of the custom hath increased the

Sunday difficulty of leaving it, that is in all reason

IV. to make him set immediately to the casting it off, lest that difficulty at last grow to an impossibility; and the harder he finds it at the present, so much the more diligent and watchful he must be in the use of all those means which may tend to the overcoming that sinful habit: some few of those means it will not be amiss here to mention.

Means for it.

Sense of the guilt and danger.

10. First let him possess his mind fully of the hainousness of the sin, and not to measure it only according to the common rate of the World. And when he is fully perswaded of the guilt, then let him add to that, the consideration of the danger; as that it puts him out of God's favour at the present, and will, if he continue in it, cast him into Hell for ever. And surely if this were but thoroughly laid to heart, it would restrain this sin. For I would ask a Man that pretends impossibility of leaving the custom, whether if he were sure he should be hanged the next Oath he swore, the fear of it would not keep him from swearing? I can scarce believe any Man in his wits so little Master of himself, but it would. And then surely damning is so much worse than hanging, that in all reason the fear of that ought to be a much greater restraint. The doubt is, Men do either not heartily believe that this sin will damn them; or if they do, they look on it as a thing a great way off, and so are not much moved with it;

it ; but both these are very unreasonable. For Sunday the first, it is certain, that every one that IV. continues wilfully in any sin is so long in a state of damnation ; and therefore this being so continued in, must certainly put a Man in that condition. For the second, It is very possible, he may be deceived in thinking it so far off, for how knows any Man that he shall not be struck dead with an Oath in his mouth? Or if he were sure not to be so, yet eternal damnation is surely to be dreaded above all things, be it at what distance soever.

11. A second means is to be exactly true in Truth is all thou speakest ; that all men may believe speaking. thee on thy bare word, and then thou wilt never have occasion to confirm it by an Oath, to make it more credible, which is the only colour or reason can at any time be pretended for swearing.

12. Thirdly, Observe what it is that most Forfaking betrays thee to this sin, whether drink, or the occasi- anger, or the company and example of o- ons. thers, or whatever else ; and then if ever thou mean to forsake the sin, forsake those occasions of it.

13. Fourthly, Endeavour to possess thy Reverence heart with a continual Reverence of God, of God. and if that once grow into a custom with thee, it will quickly turn out that contrary one of profaning. Use and accustom thy self therefore to this reverence of God, and parti-

Sunday particularly to such a respect to his Name, as if it be possible never to mention it without some lifting up thy heart to him. Even in thy ordinary discourse, whenever thou takest his Name into thy mouth, let it be an occasion of raising up thy thoughts to him. But by no means permit thy self to use it in idle by-words or the like. If thou dost accustom thy self to pay this reverence to the bare mention of his Name, it will be an excellent fence against the profaning it in Oaths.

Watchfulness.

Prayer.

14. A fifth means is a diligent and constant watch over thy self, that thou thus offend not with thy tongue, without which all the former will come to nothing. And the last means is Prayer, which must Be added to all thy endeavours; therefore pray earnestly, that God will enable thee to overcome this wicked custom; say with the Psalmist, Set a watch, O Lord, over my mouth, and keep the door of my lips; and if thou dost sincerely set thy self to the use of means for it, thou mayest be assured God will not be wanting in his assistance. I have been the longer on this, because it is so reigning a sin. God in his mercy give all that are guilty of it a true sight of the hainousness of it.

What it is to honour God's Name.]

15. By these several ways of dishonouring God's Name you may understand what is the duty of honouring it, viz. A strict abstaining from every one of these, and that abstinence founded on an awful respect and reverence rence to that Sacred Name which is Great, ^{Sunday} Wonderful and Holy, Psal. 99. 3. I have ^{V.} now past through the several branches of that great Duty of Honouring of God.

SUNDAY V.

Of Worship due to God's Name. Of Prayer and its several parts. Of publick Prayers in the Church, in the Family. Of private Prayer. Of Repentance, &c. Of Fasting.

Sect. I. THE Eighth Duty we owe to ^{Worship} God is WORSHIP; this is that Great Duty by which especially we acknowledge his Godhead, Worship being proper only to God, and therefore it is to be lookt on as a most weighty duty. This is to be performed, first, by our Souls; secondly, by our Bodies? The Soul's part is Praying. Now Prayer is a ^{Prayer, its parts.} speaking to God, and there are divers parts of it according to the different things about which we speak.

2. As first, There is Confession, that is, The ^{Confession} acknowledging our sins to God. And this may be either general or particular; the general is, when we only confess in gross, that we are sinful; the particular, when we mention the several sorts and acts of our sins. The former is necessary to be always a part of our solemn Sunday solemn Prayers whether publick or private.

V. The latter is proper for private Prayer, and there the oftner it is used the better; yea, even in our daily private Prayer it will be fit constantly to remember some of our greatest and foulest sins, though never so long since past. For such we should never think sufficiently confest and bewailed. And this bewailing must always go along with confession; we must be heartily sorry for the sins we confess, and from our souls acknowledge our own great unworthiness in having committed them. For our confession is not intended to instruct God, who knows our sins much better than our selves do, but it is to humble our selves, and therefore we must not think to have confest aright till that be done.

Petition.

Souls.*

3. The second part of Prayer is Petition, that is, The begging of God whatsoever we want either for our Souls or Bodies. For our Souls we must first beg pardon of sins, and that for the sake of Jesus Christ, who shed his Blood to obtain it. Then we must also beg the Grace and assistance of God's Spirit to enable us to forsake our sins, and to walk in obedience to him. And herein it will be needful particularly to beg all the severall Vertues, as Faith, Love, Zeal, Purity, Repentance, and the like, but especially those which thou most wantest: and therefore observe what thy wants are, and if thou beest proud, be most instant in praying for Humility; if lustful, ful, for Chastity, and so for all other Graces, Sunday according as thou findest thy needs. And in V. all these things that concern thy Soul, be very earnest and importunate; take no denial from God, nor give over, though thou do not presently obtain what thou suest for. But if thou hast never so long prayed for a Grace, and yet findest it not, do not grow weary of praying, but rather search what the cause may be which makes thy Prayers so ineffectual; see if thou do not thy self hinder them; perhaps thou prayest to God to enable thee to conquer some sin, and yet never goest about to fight against it, never makest any resistance, but yieldest to it as often as it comes, nay, puttest thy self in its way, in the road of all temptations. If it be thus, no wonder though thy Prayers avail not, for thou wilt not let them. Therefore amend this and set to the doing of thy part sincerely, and then thou needest not fear but God will do his.

4. Secondly, We are to Petition also for our Bodies; that is, We are to ask of God such necessaries of Life as are needful to us, while we live here. But these only in such a degree and measure, as his Wisdom sees best for us: we must not presume to be our own carvers and pray for all that Wealth, or Greatness, which our own vain Hearts may perhaps desire; but only for such a condition, in respect of outward things, as he sees may our own Souls.

Deprecation. 5. A third part of Prayer is Deprecation, that is, When we pray to God to turn away some evil from us. Now the evil may be either the evil of sin, or the evil of punish-Of Sin. ment. The evil of Sin is that we are especially to pray against, most earnestly begging of God, that he will by the power of his grace, preserve us from falling into sin. And whatever sins they are, to which thou know-est thy self most inclined, there be particularly earnest with God to preserve thee from them. This is to be done daily, but then more especially, when we are under any present temptation, and in danger of falling into any sin: in which case we have reason to cry out as S. Peter did when he found himself sinking, Save, Lord, or I perish: humbly beseech-ing him either to withdraw the temptation, or strengthen us to withstand it, neither of which we can do for our selves.

Of punish-ment. 6. Secondly, We are likewise to pray against the evil of punishment, but principally against Spiritual Punishments, as the anger of God, the withdrawing of his Grace, and Eternal Damnation. Against these we can never pray with too much earnestness. But we may also pray against temporal punishments, that is, any outward affliction, but this with submission to God's Will, according to the example of Christ, Matt. 26. 39. Not Sunday as I will, but as thou wilt. V.

7. A fourth part of Prayer is Intercession, Intercession. that is praying for others. This in general we are to do for all mankind, as well strangers as acquaintance, but more particularly, those to whom we have any special Relation, either publick, as our Governours both in Church and State; or private, as Parents, Husbands, Wife, Children, Friends, &c. We are also to pray for all that are in affliction, and such particular persons as we discern especially to be so: Yea, We are to pray for those that have done us injury, those that despitefully use and persecute us, for it is expressly the Command of Christ, Matt. 5. 44. and that whereof he hath likewise given us the highest example, in praying even for his very Crucifyers, Luk. 23. 34. Father forgive them. For all these sorts of persons we are to pray, and that for the very same good things we beg of God for our selves, that God would give them in their several places and callings all spiritual and temporal blessings, which he sees wanting to them, and turn away from them all evil, whether of sin or punishment.

8. The fifth part of Prayer is Thanksgiving; that is, The Praising and Blessing God for all his Mercies, whether to our own persons, and those that immediately relate to us, or to the Church and Nation whereof we are members, or yet more general to all mankind, Thanksgiving.

Sunday kind; and this for all his Mercies both Spiritual and Temporal. In the Spiritual, first, for those wherein we are all in common concerned, as the giving of his Son, the sending of his Spirit, and all those means he hath used to bring sinful men unto himself. Then secondly, For those Mercies we have in our own particulars received, such are the having been born within the pale of the Church, and so brought up in Christian Religion, by which we have been partakers of those precious advantages of the Word and Sacraments, and so have had, without any care or pains of ours, the means of eternal Life put into our hands. But besides these, there is none of us but have received other Spiritual Mercies from God.

*Spiritual

9. As first, God's Patience and long-suffering, waiting for our Repentance, and not cutting us off in our sins. Secondly, His calls and invitations of us to that Repentance, not only outward, in the Ministry of the Word, but also inward, by the motions of his Spirit. But then if thou be one that hast by the help of God's Grace been wrought upon by these calls, and brought from a prophane or worldly, to a Christian course of Life, thou art surely in the highest degree tied to magnifie and praise his Goodness, as having received from him the greatest of Mercies.

Temporal.

10. We are likewise to give thanks for Temporal Blessings, whether such as concern the

Sunday

the publick, as the prosperity of the Church or Nation, and all remarkable deliverances afforded to either; or else such as concern our particular; such are all the good things of this Life which we enjoy; as Health, Friends, Food, Raiment, and the like; also for those minutely preservacions, whereby we are by God's Gracious Providence kept from danger, and the especial deliverances which God hath given us in the time of greatest perils. It will be impossible to set down the severall mercies which every Man receives from God, because they differ in kind and degree between one Man and another. But it is sure that he which receives least, hath yet enough to employ his whole life in praises to God. And it will be very fit for every Man to consider the severall passages of his Life, and the Mercies he hath in each receiv'd, and so to gather a kind of List or Catalogue of them, at least the principal of them, which he may always have in his memory, and often with a thankful heart repeat before God.

11. These are the severall parts of Prayer, and all of them to be used both publickly and privately. The publick use of them is, first, That in the Church, where all meet to joyn in those Prayers wherein they are in common concerned. And in this (where the Prayers are such as they ought to be) we should be very constant, there being an especial blessing promised to the joint requests of the faithful;

and

Sunday and he that without a necessary cause absents himself from such publick Prayers, cuts himself off from the Church, which hath always been thought so unhappy a thing, that it is the greatest punishment the governours of the Church can lay upon the worst offender; and therefore it is a strange madness for men to inflict it upon themselves.

In the Family.

12. A second sort of publick Prayer is that in a Family, where all that are members of it joyn in their common supplications; and this also ought to be very carefully attended to, first by the Master of the Family, who is to look that there be such Prayers, it being as much his part thus to provide for the Souls of his Children and Servants, as to provide food for their Bodies. Therefore there is none even the meanest Houfholder, but ought to take this care, if either himself or any of his Family can read, he may use some Prayers out of some good Book: if it be the Service-Book of the Church he makes a good choice; if they cannot read, it will then be necessary they should be taught without Book some form of Prayer which they may use in the Family for which purpose again some of the Prayers of the Church will be very fit, as being most easie for their memories by reason of their shortness, and yet containing a great deal of matter. But what choice soever they make of Prayers, let them be sure to have some, and let no man that professes himself himself a Christian, keep so heathenish a Sunday family, as not to see God be daily worshipped in it. But when the Master of a Family hath done his duty in this providing, it is the duty of every member of it to make use of that provision, by being constant and diligent at those Family Prayers.

13. Private or secret Prayer is that which Private Prayer. is used by a Man alone apart from all others, wherein we are to be more particular according to our particular needs, than in publick it is fit to be. And this of private Prayer is a duty which will not be excused by the performance of the other of publick. They are both required, and one must not be taken in exchange for the other. And whoever is diligent in publick Prayers, and yet negligent in private, it is much to be feared he rather seeks to approve himself to Men than to God, contrary to the command of our Saviour, Mat. 6. who enjoyns this private Prayer, this praying to our Father in secret, from whom alone we are to expect our reward, and not from the vain praises of Men.

14. Now this duty of Prayer is to be often performed, by none seldomer than Evening and Morning, it being most necessary that we should thus begin and end all our works with God, and that not only in respect of the duty we owe him, but also in respect of our selves who can never be either prosperous or

Sunday safe, but by committing our selves to him ;
 V. and therefore should tremble to venture on the perils either of day or night without his safeguard. How much oftner this duty is to be performed, must be judged according to the business or leisure men have: where by business, I mean not such business as men unprofitably make to themselves, but the necessary business of a Man's Calling, which with some will not afford them much time for set and solemn Prayer. But even these men may often in a day lift up their hearts to God in some short Prayers even whilst they are at their work. As for those that have more leisure they are in all reason to bestow more time upon this duty. And let no Man that can find time to bestow upon his vanities, nay, perhaps his sins, say he wants leisure for Prayer; but let him now endeavour to redeem what he hath mis spent, by employing more of that leisure in this duty for the future; and surely if we did but rightly weigh how much it is our own advantage to perform this duty, we should think it wisdom to be as frequent as we are ordinarily seldom in it.

The advantages of Prayer.

Honour.

15. For first, It is a great Honour for us poor worms of the earth to be allowed to speak so freely to the Majesty of Heaven. If a King should but vouchsafe to let one of his meanest Subjects talk familiarly and freely with him, it would be look'd on as a huge honour ; honour; that Man how despicable soever he were before, would then be the envy of all his neighbours; and there is little question he would be willing to take all opportunities of receiving so great a grace. But alas! this is nothing to the honour is offered us, who are allowed, nay, invited to speak to, and converse with the King of Kings, and therefore how forward should we in all reason be to it.

Sunday
V.

16. Secondly, It is a great benefit, even the greatest that can be imagined; for Prayer is the instrument of fetching down all good things to us, whether Spiritual or Temporal; no Prayer, that is qualified as it ought to be, but is sure to bring down a blessing according to that of the Wise Man, Ecclus. 35. 17. The prayer of the humble pierceth the clouds, and will not turn away till the highest regard it. You would think him a happy Man that had one certain means of helping him to whatever he wanted, though it were to cost him much pains and labour; now this happy Man thou mayest be if thou wilt. Prayer is the never failing means of bringing thee, if not all that thou thinkest thou wantest, yet all that indeed thou dost, that is, all that God sees fit for thee. And therefore be there never so much weariness to thy flesh in the duty, yet considering in what continual want thou standest of something or other from God, it is a madness to let that uneasiness

Sunday ness dishearten thee, and keep thee from this
 V. so sure means of supplying thy wants.

*Pleasant-
ness.*

17. But in the third place, This Duty is in it self so far from being uneasy, that it is very pleasant. God is the fountain of happiness, and at his right hand are pleasures for evermore, Psal. 16. 11. And therefore the nearer we draw to him, the happier we must needs be, the very joys of Heaven arising from our nearness to God. Now in this life we have no way of drawing so near to him as by this of Prayer, and therefore surely it is that which in it self is apt to afford abundance of delight and pleasure; if it seem otherwise to us, it is from some distemper of our own hearts, which like a sick Palate cannot relish the more pleasant meat. Prayer is a pleasant duty, but it is with all a spiritual one; and therefore if thy heart be carnal; if that be set either on the contrary pleasures of the flesh, or dross of the World: no marvel then, if thou taste no pleasantness in it, if like the Israelites, thou despise Manna whilest thou longest after the flesh pots of Egypt. Therefore if thou find a weariness in this duty, suspect thy self, purge and refine thy heart from the love of all sin, and endeavour to put it into a heavenly and spiritual frame, and then thou wilt find this no unpleasant exercise, but full of delight and satisfaction. In the mean time complain not of the hardness of the duty, but of the untowardness of thy own heart.

Carnality one reason of its seeming otherwise.

18. But there may also be another reason ^{of its seeming unpleasant to us, and that is} Want of use. You know there are many things which seem uneasy at the first trial, which yet after we are accustomed to them seem very delightful, and if this be thy case, then thou knowest a ready cure, viz. to use it oftner, and so this consideration naturally inforces the exhortation of being frequent in this duty.

19. But we are not only to consider how often, but how well we perform it. Now to do it well, we are to respect, first, The matter of our Prayers, to look that we ask nothing that is unlawful, as revenge upon our enemies, or the like; secondly, The manner; and that must be first in Faith; we must believe, that if we ask as we ought, God will either give us the thing we ask for, or else something which he sees better for us. And then secondly, in Humility, we must acknowledge our selves utterly unworthy of any of those good things we beg for, and therefore sue for them only for Christ's sake; thirdly, with Attention, we must mind what we are about, and not suffer our selves to be carried away to the thought of other things. I told you at the first, That Prayer was the business of the Soul, but if our minds be wandring, it is the work only of the Tongue and Lips, which make it in God's account no better than vain babling, and so will never bring

Want of use another.

V.

To ask nothing unlawful.

To ask in Faith.

To Humi- lity.

With At- tention.

Sunday bring a blessing on us. Nay, as Jacob said to his mother, Gen. 27. 12. It will be more likely to bring a curse on us than a blessing, for it is a prophaning one of the most solemn parts of God's Service, it is a piece of Hypocrisie, the drawing near to him with our lips, when our hearts are far from him, and a great slighting and despising that dreadful Majesty we come before; and as to our selves it is a most ridiculous folly, that we who come to God upon such weighty errands, as are all the concernments of our Souls and Bodies; should in the midst forget our business, and pursue every the lightest thing that either our own vain fancies or the Devil, whose business it is here to hinder us, can offer to us. It is just as if a Malefactor, that comes to sue for his life to the King, should in the midst of his supplication happen to espy a Butter-fly, and then should leave his suit, and run a chase after that Butter-fly: would you not think it pity, a pardon should be cast away upon so wretchless a creature? and sure it will be as unreasonable to expect that God should attend and grant those suits of ours, which we do not at all consider our selves.

Helps against wandering.

Consideration of God's Majesty.

20. This wandering in Prayer is a thing we are much concerned to arm our selves against, it being that to which we are naturally wonderful prone. To that end it will be necessary, first, to possess our hearts at our coming to Prayers with the greatness of that Majesty Majesty we are to approach, that so we may dread to be yain and trifling in his presence. Secondly, We are to consider the great concernment of the things we are to ask, some whereof are such that if we should not be heard, we were of all creatures the most miserable, and yet this wandring is the way to keep us from being heard. Thirdly, We are to beg God's aid in this particular: And therefore when thou settest to Prayer, let thy first Petition be for this grace of Attention.

Sunday
V.

Our needs.

Prayer for God's aid.

21. Lastly, Be as watchful as is possible over thy heart, in time of Prayer to keep out all wandring thoughts, or, if any have gotten in, let them not find entertainment, but as soon as ever thou discernest them, suffer them not to abide one moment, but cast them out with indignation, and beg God's pardon for them. And if thou dost thus sincerely and diligently strive against them, either God will enable thee in some measure to overcome, or he will in his mercy pardon thee what thou canst not prevent: But if it be through thy own negligence, thou art to expect neither, so long as that negligence continues.

Watchful-ness.

22. In the fourth place, We must look our Prayers be with Zeal and earnestness; it is not enough that we so far attend them as barely to know what it is we say, but we must put forth all the affection and devotion of our souls, and that according to the several parts

With Zeal.

~~Sunday~~ parts of Prayer before mentioned. It is not

V. the cold faint request that will ever obtain from God; we see it will not from our selves; for if a beggar should ask relief from us and do it in such a scornful manner that he seemed indifferent whether he had it or no, we should think he had either little want, or great pride; and so have no heart to give him. Now surely the things we ask from God are so much above the rate of an ordinary Alms, that we can never expect they should be given to slight and heartless Petitions. No more in like manner will our Sacrifice of Praise and Thanksgiving ever be accepted by him, if it be not offered from a heart truly affected with the sense of his mercies; it's but a kind of formal complementing, which will never be approved by him who requires the heart, and not the lips only. And the like may be said of all the other parts of Prayer. Therefore be careful when thou drawest nigh to God in Prayer, to raise up thy Soul to the highest pitch of zeal and earnestness thou art able. And because of thy self alone thou art not able to do any thing, beseech God that he will inflame thy heart with this heavenly fire of Devotion, and when thou hast obtained it, beware that thou neither quench it by any wilful sin, nor let it go out again for want of stirring it up and employing it.

23. Fifthly,

23. Fifthly, We must pray with Purity, ~~Sunday~~ ^{V.} I mean we must purge our hearts from all affections to sin. This is surely the meaning ^{Wab pari-} of the Apostle, 1 Tim. 2. 8. when he commands men to lift up holy hands in Prayer, and he there instances in one special sort of sin, wrath and doubting, where by doubting is meant those unkind disputes and contentions which are so common amongst men. And surely he that cherishes that or any other sin in his heart, can never lift up those holy hands which are required in this duty. And then sure his Prayers, be they never so many or earnest, will little avail him. The Psalmist will tell him, he shall not be heard, Psalm 66. 18. If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not bear me. Nay, Solomon will tell him yet worse, that his Prayers are not only vain but abominable, Prov. 15. 8. The Sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord. And thus to have our Prayers turned into sin, is one of the heaviest things that can befall any Man. We see it is set down in that sad Catalogue of Curses, Psal. 109. 7. Therefore let us not be so cruel to our selves as to pull it upon our own heads, which we certainly do if we offer up Prayers from an impure heart.

24. In the last place we must direct our Prayers to right ends; and that either in respect of the Prayer it self, or the things we pray for; First, We must pray, not to gain the praise ^{To right Ends.}

Sunday praise of devotion amongst men, like those V. hypocrites, Matth. 6. 5. nor yet only for company or fashion-sake, to do as others do: But we must do it, first, as an act of Worship to God; secondly, as an acknowledgment, that he is that great spring from whence alone we expect all good things; and thirdly, To gain a supply of our own or others needs. Then in respect of the Things prayed for; we must be sure to have no ill aims upon them; we must not ask that we may consume it upon our lusts. Jam. 4. 3. as those do who pray for Wealth, that they may live in riot and excess, and for power that they may be able to mischief their enemies and the like. But our end in all must be God's glory first, and next that, our own and others Salvation; and all other things must be taken in only as they tend to those, which they can never do, if we abuse them to sin. I have now done with that first part of Worship, that of the Soul.

Bodily Worship.

25. The other is that of the Body, and that is nothing else but such humble and reverent gestures in our approaches to God, as may both express the inward reverence of our Souls, and may also pay him some tribute from our very Bodies, with which the Apostle commands us to glorifie God, as well as with our Souls; and good reason, since he hath created and redeemed the one as well as the other: whensoever therefore thou offerest thy thy Prayers unto God, let it be with all lowliness as well of Body as of Mind, according to that of the Psalmist, Pfal. 95. 6. O come let us worship, let us fall down and kneel before the Lord our Maker. Sunday V.

29. The ninth DUTY to God is RE-PENTANCE: That this is a Duty to Repentance.
God we are taught by the Apostle, Act. 20. 21. where speaking of Repentance, he stiles it Repentance towards God. And there is good reason this should be a Duty to him, since there is no sin we commit but is either mediately or immediately against him. For though there be sins both against our Selves and our Neighbours, yet they being forbidden by God, they are also breaches of his Commandments, and so sins against him.

This Repentance is, in short, nothing but A turning from sin to God.
a turning from sin to God, the casting off all our former evils, and instead thereof constantly practising all those Christian duties which God requireth of us. And this is so necessary a duty, that without it we certainly perish; we have Christ's word for it, Luke 13. 5. Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish.

27. The directions for performing the several parts of this duty have been already given in the preparation to the Lord's Supper.
And thither I refer the Reader. Only I shall here mind him, that it is not to be lookt upon as a duty to be practised only at the time of receiving

K

Sunday receiving the Sacrament. For this being the V. only remedy against the poison of sin, we must renew it as often as we repeat our sins, Daily. that is daily; I mean we must every day repent of the sins of that day. For what Christ saith of other evils, is true also of this, Sufficient to the day is the evil thereof; we have sins enough of each day to exercise a daily repentance, and therefore every man must thus daily call himself to account.

At set times.

28. But as it is in accounts, they who constantly set down their daily expences have yet some set time of casting up the whole sum, as at the end of the week or month; so should it also be here, we should set aside some time to humble our selves solemnly before God for the sins, not of that day only, but of our whole lives. And the frequenter these times are, the better. For the oftner we thus cast up our accounts with God, and see what vast debts we are run in to him, the more humbly shall we think of our selves, and the more shall thirst after his mercy, which two are the special things that must qualifie us for his pardon. He therefore that can assign himself one day in the Week for this purpose, will take a thriving course for his Soul. Or, if any Man's state of life be so busie as not to afford him to do it so often, let him yet come as near to that frequency as is possible for him, remembering always, that none of his worldly imployments can bring him in near so

so gainful a return as this spiritual one will Sunday do, and therefore it is very ill husbandry to V. pursue them to the neglect of this.

29. Besides these constant times, there are In the time of affliction. likewise occasional times for the performance of this duty; such especially are the times of calamity and affliction; for when any such befalls us, we are to look on it as a message sent from Heaven to call us to this duty, and therefore must never neglect it when we are thus summoned to it, lest we be of the number of them who despise the chastisements of the Lord, Heb. 12. 5.

30. There is yet another time of repen- At death.
tance, which in the practice of Men hath gotten away the custom from all those, and that is the time of death, which it is true, is a time very fit to renew our repentance, but sure not proper to begin it; and it is a most desperate madness for men to defer it till then.
For to say the mildest of it, it is the venturing our Souls upon such miserable uncertainties as no Wise Man would trust with any thing of the least value.

For first, I would ask any Man that means The danger of deferring it till then. to repent at his death, how he knows he shall have an hours time for it? Do we not daily see Men snatcht away in a moment? And who can tell that it shall not be his own case?
But secondly, Suppose he have a more leisurely death, that some disease give him warning of its approach, yet perhaps he will not understand

Sunday derstand that warning, but will still flatter V. himself as very often sick People do, with hopes of life to the last: and so his death may be sudden to him, though it comes by never so slow degrees. But again, Thirdly, If he do discern his danger, yet how is he sure he shall then be able to repent? Repentance is a grace of God not at our command; and it is just and usual with God, when Men have a long time refused and rejected that grace, resisted all his calls and invitations to conversion and amendment, to give them over at last to the hardness of their own hearts, and not to afford them any more of that grace they have so despised. Yet suppose in the fourth place that God in his infinite patience should still continue the offer of that grace to thee, yet thou that hast resisted, it may be thirty, or forty, or fifty years together, how knowest thou that thou shalt put off that habit of resistance upon a sudden, and make use of the grace afforded? It is sure thou hast many more advantages towards the doing it now, than thou wilt have then.

The disadvantages of a death-bed repentance.

The custom of sin.

31. For first, the longer sin hath kept possession of the heart, the harder it will be to drive it out. It is true, if Repentance were nothing but a present ceasing from the acts of sin, the Death bed were fittest for it, for then we are disabled from committing most sins, but I have formerly shewed you, Repentance contains much more than so, there must be in it

it a sincere hatred of sin, and love of God. Sunday Now how unlikely is it that he which hath V.
 all his life loved sin, cherish't it in his bosom, and on the contrary abhorred God and goodness, should in an instant quite change his affections, hate that sin he loved, and love God and goodness, which before he utterly hated?

32. And secondly, The bodily pains that Bodily attend a Death-bed will distract thee, and pains. make thee unable to attend the work of repentance, which is a business of such weight and difficulty, as will imploy all our powers even when they are at the freshest.

33. Consider those disadvantages thou must then struggle with, and then tell me Danger of what hope there is thou shalt then do that, insincerity.
 which now upon much easier terms thou wilt not. But in the third place there is a danger behind beyond all these, and that is, that the Repentance which death drives a Man to, will not be a true Repentance; for in such a case it is plain, it is only the fear of Hell puts him on it, which though it may be a good beginning, where there is time after to perfect it, yet where it goes alone it can never avail for Salvation. Now that Death-bed Repentances are often only of this sort, is too likely, when it is observed that many Men who have seem'd to repent when they have thought death approaching, have yet, after it hath pleas'd God to restore them to health, been as wicked (perhaps worse) as ever they

 likely, when it is observed that many Men who have seem'd to repent when they have thought death approaching, have yet, after
 it hath pleas'd God to restore them to health,
 been as wicked (perhaps worse) as ever they

Sunday were before; which shews plainly that there V. was no real change in them: and then surely had such a Man died in that seeming repentance, God, who tries the heart, would not have accepted it, which he saw was unfincere. When all these dangers are laid together, it will surely appear a most desperate adventure for any Man to trust to a Deathbed repentance. Nor is it ever the less for that example of the penitent Thief, Luk. 23. 43. which is by many so much depended on. For it is sure his case and ours differ widely; he had never heard of Christ before, and so more could not be expected of him than to embrace him as soon as he was tendred to him; But we have had him offered, nay, prest upon us from our Cradles, and yet have rejected him. But if there were not this difference, it is but a faint hope can be raised only from a single example, and another we find not in the whole Bible. The Israelites we read were fed with Manna from Heaven, but would you not think him stark mad that should out of expectation of the like, neglect to provide himself any food? Yet it is full as reasonable to depend upon this example as the other. I conclude all in the words of the Wise Man, Eccl. 12. 1. Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, before the evil days come.

Fasting. 34. To this duty of repentance, Fasting is very proper to be annexed. The Scripture usually joyns them together; among the Jews

the great day of atonement was to be kept Sunday with Fasting, as you may see by comparing XII. Lev. 16. 31. with Isa. 58. 5. and this by God's especial appointment. And in the Prophets when the people are called on to repent and humble themselves, they are also called on to Fast. Thus it is, Joel 2. 12. Therefore now thus saith the Lord, Turn ye unto me with all your hearts, with fasting, and with weeping, &c. yea, so proper hath fasting been accounted to Humiliation, that we see even wicked Abab would not omit it in his, 2 Kings 21. 27. nor the Heathen Ninevites in theirs, Jonah 3. 5. nor is it less fit or less acceptable since Christ, than it was before him. For we see he supposes it as a duty sometimes to be performed. when he gives directions to avoid vain glory in it. Matt. 6. 6. and also assures us that if it be performed, as it ought, not to please Men but God, it will surely be rewarded by him. And accordingly we find it practised by the Saints, Anna, Luk. 2. 37. served God with fasting and prayer: where it is observable, that it is reckon'd as a service of God, fit to be joyned with Prayers. And the Christians of the first times were generally very frequent in the practice of it. Now though fasting be especially proper to a time of Humiliation, yet it is not so restrained to it, but it may be seasonable, whensoever we have any extraordinary thing to request from God. Thus when Esther was to endeavour Sunday the deliverance of her people from destruction, she and all the Jews kept a solemn Fast, Est. 4. 16. And thus when Paul and Barnabas were to be Ordained Apostles, there was Fasting joyned to Prayer, Acts 13. 3. and so it will be very fit for us, whensoever we have need of any extraordinary directions, or assistance from God whether concerning our temporal or spiritual concernments, thus to quicken our Prayers by Fasting: But above all occasions, This of Humiliation seems most to require it; for besides the advantages of kindling our Zeal, which is never more necessary than when we beg for pardon of sins, Fasting carries in it somewhat of revenge, which is reckon'd as a special part of repentance, 2 Cor. 7. 11. for by denying our Bodies the refreshment of our ordinary food, we do inflict somewhat of punishment upon our selves for our former excesses, or whatever other sins we at that time accuse our selves of; which is a proper effect of that indignation which every sinner ought to have against himself. And truly he that is so tender of himself that he can never find in his heart so much as to miss a meal, by way of punishment for his faults, shews he is not much fallen out with himself, for committing them; and so wants that indignation which the Apostle in the forenamed Text mentions as a part of true repentance.

upon our selves.*

35. There

35. There is no doubt, but such holy re-^{Sunday} venges upon our selves for sins are very ac-^{V.} ceptable to God; yet we must not think that either those, or any think else we can do, can make satisfaction for our offences, for that nothing but the blood of Christ can do. And therefore on that, and not on any of our performances we must depend for pardon. Yet since that blood shall never be applied to any but penitent sinners, we are as much concern'd to bring forth all the fruits of repentance, as if our hopes depended on them only.

36. How often this duty of fasting is to be performed, we have no direction in Scri-^{Times of} pture. That must be allotted by mens own ^{fasting.} Piety, according as their health, or rather considerations will allow. But as it is in humiliation, the frequenter returns we have of set times for it, the better; so it is likewise in fasting, the oftner the better, so it be not hurtful either to our healths, or to some other duty required of us. Nay perhaps fasting may help some Men to more of those times for humiliation, than they would otherwise gain. For perhaps there are some, who cannot without a manifest hindrance to their calling, allow a whole day to that work, yet such an one may at least afford that time he would otherwise spend in eating: and so Fasting will be doubly useful towards such a Man's Humiliation, both by helping him in the duty, and gaining him time for it.

Second Branch of our duty to God.

37. I have now gone through the first branch of our Duty to God, to wit, the acknowledging him for our God. The second is, the having no other. Of which I need say little, as it is a forbidding of that grosser sort of Heathenish Idolatry, the worshipping of Idols; which though it were once common in the World, yet is now so rare, that it is not likely any that shall read this will be concerned in it. Only I must say, That to pay Divine Worship to any creature, be it Saint or Angel, yea, or the Image of Christ himself, is a transgression against this second branch of our Duty to God, it being the imparting that to a Creature which is due only to God, and therefore is strictly to be abstained from.

Inward Idolatry.

38. But there is another sort of Idolatry of which we are generally guilty, and that is, when we pay those affections of Love, Fear, Trust, and the like, to any creature in a higher degree than we do to God: for that is the setting up that thing, whatsoever it is, for our God. And this inward kind of Idolatry is that which provokes God to jealousy, as well as the outward of worshipping an Idol. I might enlarge much upon this, but because some severals of it have been toucht on in the former discourse, I suppose it needless; and therefore shall now proceed to the second Head of D U T Y, that to our S E L V E S.

SUN-

SUNDAY VI.

Sunday
VI.

Duty to our Selves; of Sobriety; of Humility; the great sin of Pride; of Vain glory, the Danger, Folly; the Means to prevent it: of Meekness, &c.

Sect. 1. THIS DUTY to our SELVES Duty to our Selves. is by S. Paul in the forementioned Text, Tit 2. 12. summ'd up in this one word Soberly.

Now by Soberly is meant our keeping within those due bounds which God hath set us. My business will therefore be to tell you what are the particulars of this Sobriety: and that, first, in respect of the Soul; secondly, in respect of the Body. The sobriety of the Soul stands in right governing its Passions and Affections; and to that are many Vertues required. I shall give you the particulars of them.

2. The first of them is Humility, which Humility. may well have the prime place, not only in respect of the excellency of the Vertue, but also of its usefulness towards the obtaining of all the rest. This being the foundation on which all others must be built. And he that hopes to gain them without this, will prove but like that foolish Builder Christ speaks of, Luk 6 49. Who built his house on the sand. Of the humility towards God I have already spoken,

Sunday spoken and shewed the necessity of it. I am VI. now to speak of Humility, as it concerns our selves, which will be found no less necessary than the former.

3. This Humility is of two sorts, the first, is the having a mean and low opinion of our selves, the second is the being content that others should have so of us. The first of these is contrary to Pride, the other to Vain-glory. And that both these are absolutely necessary to Christians, I am now to shew you; which will I conceive, best be done by laying before you, first, the Sin; secondly, the Danger; thirdly, the Folly of the contrary Vices.

The great Sin of Pride.

4. The first, for Pride; the Sin of it is so great that it cast the Angels out of Heaven, and therefore if we may judge of sin by the punishment, it was not only the first, but the greatest sin that ever the Devil himself hath been guilty of: but we need no better proof of the hainousness of it, than the extreme hatefulness of it to God; which besides that instance of punishing the Devil, we may frequently find in the Scriptures, Prov. 16. 5. Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord. And again, Chap. 6. 16. where there is mention of several things the Lord hates, a proud look is set as the first of them; so Jam. 4. 7. God resisteth the proud; and divers other Texts there are to the same purpose, which shews the great hatred God bears to this sin of Pride. Now since it is certain, tain, God who is all goodness, hates nothing, but as it is evil, it must needs follow, that where God hates in so great a degree, there must be a great degree of evil. Sunday

5. But secondly, P R I D E is not only very sinful, but very dangerous; and that first, in respect of drawing us to other sins; secondly, of betraying us to punishments. The danger.
Drawing into other
sins.
First, Pride draws us to other sins, wherein it shews it self indeed to be the direct contrary to Humility; for as that is the root of all Vertue, so is this of all Vice. For he that is proud sets himself up as his own God, and so can never submit himself to any other Rules or Laws than what he makes to himself. The ungodly, says the Psalmist, is so proud that he careth not for God, Psal. 10. 4. where you see, it is his Pride that makes him despise God. And when a Man is once come to that, he is prepared for the commission of all sins. I might instance in a multitude of particular sins that naturally flow from this of Pride: as first, Anger, which the Wise Man sets as the effect of Pride, Prov. 21. 24. calling it proud wrath: secondly, Strife and Contention, which he again notes to be the off-spring of Pride, Prov. 30. 10. Only by Pride cometh contention. And both these are indeed most natural effects of Pride: For he that thinks very highly of himself, expects much submission and observance from others; and therefore cannot but rage and quarrel whenever he thinks

Sunday thinks it not sufficiently paid. It would be VI. infinite to mention all the fruits of this bitter root: I shall name but one more, and that is, that Pride not only betrays us to many sins, but also makes them incurable in us, for it hinders the working of all remedies.

Frustrating of remedies.

6. Those remedies must either come from God or Man; if from God, they must be either in the way of meekness and gentleness, or else of sharpness and punishment. Now if God by his goodness essay to lead a proud Man to repentance, he quite mistakes God's meaning, and thinks all the mercies he receives are but the reward of his own desert, and so long 'tis sure he will never think he needs repentance. But if on the other side God use him more sharply, and lay afflictions and punishments upon him, those in a proud heart work nothing but murmurings and hating of God, as if he did him injury in those punishments. As for the remedies that can be used by Man, they again must be either by way of correction or exhortation; corrections from Man will sure never work more on a proud heart, than those from God, for he that can think God unjust in them, will much rather believe it of Man. And Exhortations will do as little. For let a proud Man be admonished though never so mildly and lovingly, he looks on it as a disgrace. And therefore instead of confessing or amending the fault, he falls to reproaching his reprover as an

an over-busie or censorious person, and for Sunday that greatest and most precious act of kind- VI.ness looks on him as his enemy. And now one that thus stubbornly resists all means of cure, must be concluded in a most dangerous estate.

7. But besides this danger of sin, I told Betraying you there was another, that of punishment; to punish- and of this there will need little proof, when ment. it is consider'd, that God is the proud Man's profest enemy, that he hates and resists him, as appeared in the Texts forecited: And then there can be little doubt, that he which hath so mighty an adversary shall be sure to smart for it. Yet besides this general ground of conclusion, it may not be amiss to mention some of those Texts which particularly threaten this sin, as Prov. 16. 18. Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall: Again, Prov. 16. 5. Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord; though hand joyn in hand, yet they shall not be unpunished. The decree it seems is unalterable, and whatever endeavours are used to preserve the Proud Man, they are but vain, for he shall not gounpunished. And this is very remarkable in the story of Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 4. who though a King, the greatest in the world, yet for his Pride was driven from among Men to dwell and feed with Beasts. And it is most frequently seen, that this Sin meets with very extraordinary judgments even in this life.

Sunday But if it should not, let not the proud Man VI. think that he hath escaped God's vengeance, for it is sure there will be a most sad reckoning in the next; for if God spared not the Angels for this sin, but cast them into Hell, let no Man hope to speed better.

The folly. 8. In the third place I am to shew you the great folly of this sin; and to do that, it will be necessary to consider the several things whereof men use to be proud; they are of three sorts, either those which we call the goods of Nature, or the goods of Fortune, or the goods of Grace.

In respect of the goods of Nature. 9. By the goods of Nature, I mean Beauty, Strength, Wit, and the like; and the being proud of any of these is a huge folly. For first, we are very apt to mistake and think our selves handsome or witty when we are not, and then there cannot be a more ridiculous folly than to be proud of what we have not, and such every one esteems it in another Man, though he never supposes it his own case; and so never discerns it in himself.
 And therefore there is nothing more despi-cable amongst Men, than a proud Fool; yet no Man that entertains high opinions of his own Wit, but is in danger to be thus deceived, a Man's own judgment of himself being of all others the least to be trusted.
 But secondly, Suppose we be not out in judging, yet what is there in any of these natural endowments which is worth the being proud,

proud, there being scarce any of them which Sunday some creature or other hath not in a greater VI. degree than man? How much does the whiteness of the Lily; and the redness of the Rose exceed the white and red of the fairest face? What a multitude of creatures is there, that far surpass a Man in strength and swiftness? And divers others there are, which, as far as concerns any useful end of theirs, act much more wisely than most of us; and are therefore ofentimes in Scripture proposed to us by way of Example. It is therefore surely great unreasonableness for us to think highly of our selves for such things as are common to us with Beasts and Plants. But thirdly, if they were as excellent as we fantasie them, yet they are not at all durable, they are impaired and lost by sundry means: a Frenzy will destroy the rarest Wit; a sickness decay the freshest Beauty, the greatest strength, or however old Age will be sure to do all. And therefore to be proud of them is again a folly in this respect. But lastly, Whatever they are, we gave them not to our selves. No Man can think he did any thing towards the procuring his natural Beauty or Wit, and so can with no reason value himself for them.

10. In the second place, the folly is as The goods of Fortune.
 great to be proud of the Goods of Fortune; by them I mean Wealth and Honour, and the like; for it is sure, they add nothing of true worth to the Man; somewhat of outward

Sunday VI. pomp and bravery they may help him to, but that makes no change in the Person. You may load an Ass with Money, or deck him with rich Trappings; yet still you will not make him a whit the nobler kind of Beast by either of them. Then secondly, These are things we have no hold of, they vanish many times ere we are aware; he that is rich to day, may be poor to morrow, and then will be the less pitied by all in his poverty, the prouder he was when he was rich. Thirdly, We have them all, but as Stewards; to lay out for our Master's use, and therefore should rather think how to make our accounts, than pride our selves in our receipts. Lastly, Whatever of these we have, they, as well as the former, are not owing to our selves. But if they be lawfully gotten, we owe them only to God, whose blessing it is, that maketh rich, Prov. 10. 22. If unlawfully, we have them upon such terms that we have very little reason to brag of them. And thus you see in these several respects, the folly of this second sort of Pride.

The goods of Grace.

II. The third, is that of the goods of Grace; that is, any Vertue a Man hath. And here I cannot say, but the things are very valuable, they being infinitely more precious than all the World, yet nevertheless this is of all the rest the highest folly. And that not only in the foregoing respect, that we help not our selves to it, grace being above all things things most immediately God's work in us, Sunday but especially in this, that the being proud of VI.

Grace is the sure way to lose it. God who gives grace to the humble, will take it from the proud. For if, as we see in the Parable, Matt. 25. 28. the Talent was taken from him who had only put it to no use at all, how shall he hope to have it continued to him that hath put it to so ill, that instead of trading with it for God, hath trafficked with it for Satan? And as he will lose the Grace for the future, so he will lose all the reward of it for the time past. For let a Man have done never so many good acts, yet if he be proud of them; that Pride shall be charged on him to his destruction, but the good shall never be remembered to his reward. And this proves it to be a most wretched folly to be proud of Grace.
It is like that of Children, that pull those things in pieces they are most fond of, but yet much worse than that of theirs; for we not only lose the thing (and that the most precious that can be imagined) but we must also be eternally punished for doing so, there being nothing that shall be so sadly reckoned for in the next world as the abuse of Grace; and certainly there can be no greater abuse of it than to make it serve for an end so directly contrary to that for which it was given, it being given to make us humble, not proud, to magnifie God, not our selves.

Sunday

VI.
Means of Humility.

12. Having shewed you thus much of this sin, I suppose it will appear very necessary to be eschewed; to which purpose it will first be useful to consider what hath been already said concerning it, and that so seriously, as may work in thee not some slight dislike, but a deep and irreconcilable hatred of the sin: secondly, to be very watchful over thine own heart, that it cherish not any beginnings of it; never suffer it to feed on the fancy of thy own worth; but whenever any such thought arises, beat it down immediately with the remembrance of some of thy follies or sins, and so make this very motion of Pride an occasion of Humility. Thirdly, never to compare thy self with those thou thinkest more foolish or wicked than thy self, that so thou mayest like the Pharisee, Luke 16. 11. extol thy self for being better; but if thou wilt compare, do it with the Wise and Godly; and then thou wilt find thou comest so far short as may help to pull down thy high esteem of thy self. Lastly, To be very earnest in Prayer, that God would root out all degrees of this sin in thee, and make thee one of those poor in spirit, Matth. 5. 3. to whom the blessing even of Heaven it self is promised.

Vain-glory.

13. The second contrary to Humility I told you was Vain-glory, that is, a great thirst after the praise of Men. And first, That this is a sin, I need prove no otherwise, than by the words words of our Saviour, Joh. 5. 44. How can ye believe, that receive honour one of another; where it appears, that it is not only a sin, but such an one as hinders the receiving of Christ into the heart, for so believing there signifies. This then in the second place shews you likewise the great dangerousness of this sin, for if it be that which keeps Christ out of the heart, it is sure it brings infinite danger, since all our safety, all our hope of escaping the wrath to come, stands in receiving him. But besides the authority of this Text, common experience shews, that where ever this sin hath possession, it endangers Men to fall into any other. For he that so considers the praise of Men, that he must at no hand part with it, when ever the greatest sins come to be in fashion and credit (as God knows many are now a-days) he will be sure to commit them rather than run the disgrace of being too single and precise; I doubt there are many Consciences can witness the truth of this, so that I need say no more to prove the danger of this sin.

14. The third thing I am to shew, is the folly of it; and that will appear first, by considering what it is we thus hunt after, nothing but a little air, a blast, the breath of Men, it brings us in nothing of real advantage: for I am made never the wiser nor the better for a Man's saying I am wise and good. Besides, if I am commended, it must be either before

Sunday my face or behind my back: if the former, VI. it is very often flattery, and so the greatest abuse that can be offered, and then I must be very much a fool to be pleased with it; but if it be behind my back, I have not then so much as the pleasure of knowing it; and therefore it is a strange folly thus to pursue what is so utterly gainless. But secondly, it is not only gainless, but painful and uneasy also. He that eagerly seeks praise, is not at all master of himself, but must suit all his actions to that end, and instead of doing what his own reason and conscience (nay perhaps his worldly conveniency) directs him to, he must take care to do what will bring him in commendations, and so enslave himself to every one that hath but a tongue to commend him. Nay, there is yet a further uneasiness in it, and that is, when such a Man fails of his aim, when he misses the praise, and perhaps meets with the contrary, reproach, (which is no Man's lot more often than the vain-glorious, nothing making a Man more despised) then what disturbances and disquiets, and even tortures of mind is he under? A lively instance of this you have in Achitophel, 2 Sam. 17. 23. who had so much of this upon Abfalom's despising his counsel, that he chose to rid himself of it, by hanging himself. And sure this painful-ness that thus attends this sin, is sufficient proof of the folly of it. Yet this is not all, it

Sunday
VI.

it is yet further very hurtful. For if this vain-glory be concerning any good, or Christian Action, it destroys all the fruit of it; he that prays or gives Alms to be seen of Men, Matt. 6. 2. must take that as his reward, Verily I say unto you they have their reward; they must expect none from God, but the portion of those Hypocrites, that love the praise of men more than the praise of God. And this is a miserable folly to make such an exchange. It is like the Dog in the Fable, who seeing in the water the shadow of that Meat he held in his mouth, catcht at the shadow, and so let go his Meat. Such Dogs, such unreasonable creatures are we, when we thus let go the eternal rewards of Heaven to catch at a few good words of Men. And yet we do not only lose those eternal joys, but procure to our selves the contrary, eternal miseries, which is sure the highest pitch of folly and madness. But if the vain-glory be not concerning any vertuous action, but only some indifferent thing, yet even there also it is very hurtful; for vain-glory is a sin that wheresoever it is placed, endeavours our eternal estate, which is the greatest of all mischiefs. And even for the present it is observable, that of all other sins it stands the most in its own light, hinders it self of that very thing it pursues, For there are very few that thus hunt after praise, but they are discerned to do so, and that is sure to eclipse whatever

Sunday praise worthy thing they do, and brings VI. scorn upon them instead of reputation. And then certainly we may justly condemn this sin of folly which is so ill a manager even of its own design.

*Helps a-
 vain-glory.*

15. You have seen how wretched a thing this vain glory is in these several respects, the serious consideration whereof may be one good means to subdue it, to which it will be necessary to add, first, a great watchfulness over thy self; observe narrowly whether in any Christian duty thou at all considerest the praise of Men, or even in the most indifferent action, look whether thou have not too eager a desire of it, and if thou findest thy self inclined that way, have a very strict eye upon it, and where ever thou findest it stirring, check and resist it, suffer it not to be the end of thy actions: But in all matters of Religion let thy Duty be the Motive; in all indifferent things of common life let Reason direct thee; and though thou mayest so far consider in those things the opinion of Men, as to observe the rules of common decency, yet never think any praise that comes in to thee from any thing of that kind worth the contriving for: Secondly, set up to thy self another aim, viz. that of pleasing God: let that be thy enquiry when thou goest about any thing; whether it be approved by him. And then thou wilt not be at leisure to consider what praise it will bring thee from Men. And

surely he that weighs of how much more moment it is to please God, who is able eternally to reward us, than Man, whose applause can never do us any good, will surely think it reasonable to make the former his only care. Thirdly, If at any time thou art praised, do not be much over-joyed with it, nor think a jot the better of thy self; but if it be vertue thou art praised for, remember it was God that wrought it in thee, and give him the glory, never thinking any part of it belongs to thee; if it be some indifferent action, then remember that it cannot deserve praise, as having no goodness in it: But if it be a bad one, (as amongst Men such are sometimes likeliest to be commended) then it ought to set thee a trembling instead of rejoycing, for then that woe of our Saviour's belongs to thee: Luk. 6.26. Wo unto you when men speak well of you, for so did their Fathers to the false Prophets; and there is not a greater sign of a hardned heart, than when Men can make their sins the matter of their glory. In the last place let thy Prayers assist in the fight with this corruption.

16. A second VERTUE is MEEKNESS, Meekness. that is, a calmness and quietness of spirit contrary to the rages and impatiencies of Anger. This Vertue may be exercised either in respect of God, or his Neighbour. That towards God I have already spoken of, under the head of Humility, and that towards

Sunday our neighbour I shall hereafter. All I have

VI. here to say of it is, how it becomes a duty to our selves; that it does in respect of the great advantage we reap by it; which in mere Advantages of it.

kindness to our selves, we are to look after. And to prove that it brings us this great advantage I need say no more, but that this meekness is that to which Christ hath pronounced a blessing, Matth. 5. 5. Blessed are the meek, and not only in the next world, but even in this too, they shall inherit the earth. Indeed none but the meek person hath the true enjoyment of any thing in the world, for the angry and impatient are like sick people, who, we use to say, cannot enjoy the greatest prosperities: For let things be never so fair without, they will raise storms within their own breasts. And surely whoever hath either in himself, or others observed the great uneasiness of this passion of anger, cannot chuse but think Meekness a most pleasant thing.

17. Besides, it is also a most honourable thing, for it is that whereby we resemble Christ, Learn of me, saith he, for I am meek and lowly in heart, Matth. 11. 28. It is also that whereby we conquer our selves, overcome our own unruly passions, which of all victories is the greatest and most noble. Lastly, it is that which makes us behave our selves like Men, whereas anger gives us the fierceness and wildness of Savage Beasts. And accor;

accordingly the one is by all esteemed and loved, whereas the other is hated and abhorred, every man shunning a man in rage as they would a furious beast.

Sunday
VI.

18. Farther yet, Meekness is the sobriety of the mind, whereas anger is the direct madness; it puts a Man wholly out of his own power, and makes him do such things as himself in his sober temper abhors; how many Men have done those things in their rage, which they have repented all their lives after? And therefore surely as much as a Man is more honourable than a Beast, a sober man than a mad man, so much hath this vertue of Meekness the advantage of honour above the contrary vice of Anger.

19. Again, Meekness makes any condition tolerable and easie to be endured. He that meekly bears any suffering, takes off the edge of it that it cannot wound him; whereas he that frets and rages at it, whets it, and makes it much sharper than it would be; nay, in some cases makes that so, which would not else be so at all, as particularly, in the case of reproachful words, which in themselves can do us no harm, they neither hurt our Bodies nor lessen our Estates, the only mischief they can do us is to make us angry, and then our anger may do us many more: whereas he that meekly passes them by, is never the worse for them, nay, the better; for he shall be rewarded by God for that

Sunday that patience. Much more might be said to VI. recommend this Vertue to us, in respect of our own present advantage, but I suppose this may suffice to perswade Men to esteem of it. The harder matter will be to gain them to the practice of it, wherein Men pretend I know not what difficulties of natural constitutions, and the like; yet sure there is no Man of so cholerick a temper, but if he did heartily set about it, would find it were not impossible in some good measure to subdue it: but then he must be diligent in using means to that end. Divers of these means there are, I shall mention some few.

 obtaining
 it.*

20. As first, The imprinting deep in our minds the loveliness and benefits of meekness, together with the ugliness and mis-chiefs of anger. Secondly, To set before us the Example of Christ, who endured all re-proaches, yea, torments with perfect patience, that was led as a sheep to the slaughter, Isa. 53. 7. That when he was reviled, reviled not again, when he suffered threatned not, 1 Pet.
 2. 23. And if he, the Lord of Glory, suffered thus meekly and unjustly from his own creatures, with what face can we ever complain of any injury done to us? Thirdly, To be very watchful to prevent the very first beginnings of anger, and to that purpose to mortifie all inward peevishness and frowardness of mind, which is a sin in it self, though it proceed no further, but will also be sure, if

it be cherished, to break out into open effects of anger. Therefore whenever thou findest the least rising of it within thee, make as much haste to check it, as thou wouldst to quench a fire in thy house; but be sure thou bring no fuel to it, by entertaining any thoughts that may encrease it. And at such time especially keep a most strict watch over thy tongue, that it break not out into any angry speeches, for that breath will fan the fire; not only in thine adversary, but thy self too; therefore though thy heart be hot within stife the flame, and let it not break out; and the greater the temptation is the more earnestly lift up thy heart to God to assist thee to overcome it. Fourthly, often remember how great punishments thy sins have deserved, and then, whether thy sufferings be from God or Man, thou wilt acknowledge them to be far short of what is due to thee, and therefore wilt be ashamed to be impatient at them.

21. The third Vertue is CONSIDERATION, and this in a most special manner we owe to our Souls. For without it we shall, as raw unadvised people use to do, rush them into infinite perils. Now this Consideration is either of our State, or of our Actions. By our State, I mean what our condition is to God-ward, whether it be such that we may reasonably conclude our selves in his favour. This it much concerns us to consider and

Sunday and examine; and that not by those easie VI. rules Men are apt to frame to themselves, as whether they believe that Christ died for their sins; that they are of the number of the Elect, and shall certainly be saved: if these and the like were all that were required to put us into God's favour, none but some melancholy person could ever be out of it; for we are apt enough generally to believe comfortably of our selves. But the Rules God hath given us in his Word are those by which we must be tried at the last day, and therefore are certainly the only safe ones by which to try our selves now. And the summ of those are, that whosoever continues in any one wilful sin; is not in his favour, nor can, if he do so die, hope for any mercy at his hand.

The Rule by which to try our State.

22. Now it is highly necessary we should consider what our condition is in this respect: for since our life is nothing but a puff of breath in our nostrils, which may for ought we know be taken from us the next minute, it nearly concerns us to know how we are provided for another world, that so in case we want at present that oil in our lamps wherewith we are to meet the bridegroom, Matth. 25. 8. we may timely get it, and not for want of it be ever shut out like the foolish Virgins from his presence. The neglect of this consideration hath undone many souls, some by too easie a belief that they were in a good

 of inconfi-

good condition, without considering, and trying themselves by the foregoing Rule, but presuming either upon some slight outward performances, or upon such a false faith as I even now described; others by the wretched careless going on, without so much as asking themselves what their condition is, but hope they should do as well as their Neighbours, and so never enquiring farther; which wretched carelessness will as certainly undo the spiritual, as the like would do the temporal estate; yet in that every Man is wise enough to foresee, that a Man that never takes any accounts of his Estate to see whether he be worth something or nothing, will be sure to be a beggar in the end. But in this far weightier matter we can generally be thus improvident.

23. The second thing we are to consider, is our Actions, and those either before or after the doing of them. In the first place we are to consider before we act, and not to do any thing rashly or headily; but first to advise with our Consciences, whether this be lawful to be done, for he that follows his own inclination and does every thing which that moves him to, shall be sure to fall into a multitude of sins. Therefore consider soberly, and be assured of the lawfulness of the thing before thou venture to do it. This advisedness is in all worldly things accounted so necessary a part of wisdom, that no Man is accounted wise

VI.

Our actions.

Before we do them.

Sunday wise without it; a rash Man we look upon VI. as the next degree to a fool. And yet it is sure, there is not so much need of looking about us in any thing as in what concerns our Souls, and that not only in respect of the great value of them above all things else, but also in regard of the great danger they are in, as hath been shewed more at large in the beginning of the Treatise.

After they are done.

24. Secondly, We are to consider the actions when they are past also, that is, we are to examine whether they have been such as are allowable by the Laws of Christ. This is very necessary whether they be good or bad; if they be good, the recalling them helpeth us to the comfort of a good conscience, and that comfort again encourageth us to go on in the like; and besides it stirs us up to thankfulness to God, by whose grace alone we were enabled to do them. But if they be bad, then it is especially necessary that we thus examine them, for without this it is impossible we should ever come to amendment: for unless we observe them to have been amiss, we can never think it needful to amend, but shall still run on from one wickedness to another, which is the greatest curse any man can lie under.

Frequency of confideration.

25. The oftner therefore we use this Consideration, the better, for the less likely it is that any of our sins shall escape our knowledge. It is much to be wisht that every Man would would thus every night try the actions of the Sunday day, that so, if he have done any thing amiss, VI. he may soon check himself for it, and settle his resolutions against it, and not let it grow on to a habit and course. And that he may also early beg God's pardon, which will the easier be had the sooner it is asked, every delay of that being a great increase of the sin. And surely whoever means to take an account of himself at all, will find this the easier course, it being much easier to do it so a little at a time, and while passages are fresh in his memory, than to take the account of a long time together. Now if it be considered, that every wilful sin must have a particular repentance before it can be pardoned, methinks men should tremble to sleep without that repentance; for what assurance hath any man that lies down in his Bed, that he shall ever rise again? And then how dangerous is the condition of that Man that sleeps in an unrepented sin? The weighing of these several Motives may be a means by God's blessing, to bring us to the practice of this duty of consideration in all the parts of it.

omitting it.*

SUNDAY VII.

Of Contentedness and the contraries to it; Murmuring, Ambition, Covetousness, Envy; Helps to Contentedness; of duties which concern our Bodies; of Chastity, &c. Helps to it; of Temperance.

Contented-
ness.

SECT. I. THE Fourth VERTUE is CONTENTEDNESS, and this surely is a duty we must owe to our selves, it being that without which it is impossible to be happy. This Contentedness is a well-pleas'dness with that condition, whatever it is that God hath placed us in, not murmuring and repining at our lot, but chearfully welcoming whatsoever God sends. How great and withal how pleasant a vertue this is, may appear by the contrariety it hath to several great and painful vices; so that where this is rooted in the heart it subdues not only some such single sin, but a cluster of them together.

Contrary to murmuring.

2. And first, It is contrary to all murmuring in general, which is a sin most hateful to God, as may appear by his sharp punishments of it on the Israelites in the wilderness, as you may read in several places of the Book of Exodus, and Numbers. And surely it is also very painful and uneasy to a man's self; for if, as the Psalmist saith, it be a joyful and pleasant pleasant thing to be thankful, we may by the Sunday Rule of contraries conclude, it is a sad and VII. unpleasent thing to be murmuring, and I doubt not, every man's own experience will confirm the truth of it.

3. Secondly, It is contrary to Ambition; To Ambition. the Ambitious Man is always disliking his present condition, and that makes him so greedily to seek a higher; whereas he that is content with his own, lies quite out of the road of this temptation. Now ambition is not only a great sin in it self, but it puts men upon many other; there is nothing so horrid, which a Man that eagerly seeks greatness will stick at; Lying, Perjury, Murder, or any thing will down with him, if they seem to tend to his advancement: And the uneasiness of it is answerable to the sin. This none can doubt of, that considers what a multitude of fears and jealousies, cares and distractions there are that attend Ambition in its progress, besides the great and publick ruines that usually befall it in the end. And therefore sure contentedness is in this respect as well a Happiness as a Vertue.

4. Thirdly, It is contrary to Covetousness; To Covetousness. this the Apostle witnesseth, Heb. 13. 5. Let your Conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have; where you see contentedness is set as the direct contrary to covetousness. But of this there needs no other proof than common M 2 experience;

Sunday VII. experience; for we see the covetous Man never thinks he hath enough, and therefore can never be content: for no Man can be said to be so that thirsts after any thing he hath not. Now that you may see how excellent and necessary a vertue this is that secures us against covetousness, it will not be amiss a little to consider the nature of that sin.

Covetousness contrary to our duty to God.

5. That it is a very great crime, is most certain, for it is contrary to the very foundation of all good life; I mean those three great Duties, to God, to our Selves, to our Neighbours. First, It is so contrary to our Duty to God, that Christ himself tells us, Luke 16. 13. We cannot serve God and Mammon: He that sets his heart upon Wealth must necessarily take it off from God. And this we daily see in the covetous Man's practice, he is so eager in the gaining of riches, that he hath no time or care to perform Duty to God; let but a good bargain, or opportunity of gain come in his way, Prayer and all duties of Religion must be neglected to attend it. Nay, When the committing the greatest sin against God may be likely either to get or save him ought, his love of Wealth quickly perswades him to commit it.

To our Selves.

6. Secondly, It is contrary to the Duty we owe our Selves, and that both in respect of our Souls and Bodies, The covetous Man despises his Soul, sells that to eternal destruction for a little pelf: for so every Man does that by any any unlawful means seeks to enrich himself; Sunday nay, though he do it not by unlawful means, VII.

 yet if he have once set his heart upon Wealth, he is that covetous person upon whom the Apostle hath pronounced, That he shall not inherit the Kingdom of God, 1 Cor. 6. 10.
 Nor doth he only offend against his Soul, but his Body too. For he often denies that those necessary refreshments it wants, and for which his Wealth (as far as it concerns himself) was given him. This is so constantly the custom of rich Misers, that I need not prove it to you.

7. In the third place, Covetousness is ^{To our} ^{Neigh-} contrary to the duty we owe to our Neigh- ^{bours.} bours. And that in both the parts of it, Justice and Charity: he that loves Money im-moderately, will not care whom he cheats and defrauds, so he may bring in gain to himself: and from hence spring those many tricks of deceit and cozenage so common in the World. As for Charity, that is never to be hoped for from a covetous Man, who dreads the lessening of his own heaps more than the starving of his poor brother. You see how great a sin this is, that we may well say of it as the Apostle doth, 1 Tim. 6. 10.
The love of money is the root of all evil. And it is not much less uneasie than wicked, for between the care of getting and the fear of losing, the covetous Man enjoys no quiet hour. Therefore every Man is deeply con-M 3 cerned

Sunday VII. cerned, as he tenders his happiness either in this world or the next, to guard himself against this sin, which he can no way do, but by possessing his heart with this vertue of Contentedness.

Contentedness contrary to envy.

8. In the fourth place it is contrary to envy, for he that is content with his own condition, hath no temptation to envy anothers: How unchristian a sin this of envy is, shall hereafter be shewed: at the present, I need say no more, but that it is also a very uneasie one, it frets and gnaws the very heart of him that harbours it, But the worse this sin is, the more excellent still is this grace of Contentedness which frees us from it, I suppose I have said enough to make you think this a very lovely and desirable Vertue. And sure it were not impossible to be gained by any, that would but observe these few directions, Helps to contentedness.

1. First, to consider, that whatever our estate and condition in any respect be, it is that which is allotted us by God, and therefore is certainly the best for us, he being much better able to judge for us, than we for our selves; and therefore to be displeas'd at it is in effect to say, we are wiser than he. Secondly, Consider throughly the vanity of all worldly things, how very little there is in them while we have them: and how uncertain we are to keep them; but above all, in how little stead they will stand us at the

VII.

the day of death or judgment, and then thou canst not think any of them much worth the desiring, and so wilt not be discontented for want of them. Thirdly, Suffer not thy fancy to run on things thou hast not; many have put themselves out of love with what they have, only by thinking what they want. He that sees his neighbour possess somewhat, which himself hath not, is apt to think how happy he should be, if he were in that man's condition, and in the mean time never thinks of enjoying his own, which yet perhaps in many respects may be much happier than that of his neighbours which he so much admires. For we look but upon the outside of other mens conditions; and many a man that is envied by his neighbours, as a wonderful happy person, hath yet some secret trouble, which makes him think much otherwise of himself. Therefore never compare thy condition in any thing with those thou countest more prosperous than thy self, but rather do it with those thou knowest more unhappy, and then thou wilt find cause to rejoyce in thine own portion. Fourthly, Consider how far thou art from deserving any good thing from God, and then thou canst not but with Jacob, Gen. 32. 10. confess that thou art not worthy of the least of those mercies thou enjoyest, and instead of murmuring that they are no more, wilt see reason to admire, and praise the bounty of God,

Sunday that they are so many. Fifthly, Be often VII. thinking of the joys laid up for thee in Heaven: look upon that as thy Home, on this World only as an Inn, where thou art fain to take up in thy passage; and then as a Traveller expects not the same conveniences at an Inn, that he hath at Home; so thou hast reason to be content with whatever entertainment thou findest here, knowing thou art upon thy Journey to a place of Infinite Happiness, which will make an abundant amends for all the uneasiness, and hardship thou canst suffer in the way. Lastly, Pray to God, from whom all good things do come, that he will to all his other blessings, add this of a contented mind, without which thou canst have no taste or relish of any other.

Diligence. 10. A Fifth Duty is DILIGENCE; this is made up of two parts, Watchfulness and Industry, and both these we owe to our Souls.

Watchfulness against sin.

11. First, Watchfulness, in observing all the dangers that threaten them. Now since nothing can endanger our Souls but sin, this watchfulness is principally to be employed against that: and as in a besieged City where there is any weak part, there it is necessary to keep the strongest guard; so it is here, where ever thou findest thy inclinations such, as are most likely to betray thee to sin, there it concerns thee to be especially watchful. Observe therefore carefully to what sins either

either thy natural temper, thy company, or thy course of life do particularly incline thee, and watch thy self very narrowly in those; yet do not so lay out all thy care on those, as to leave thy self open to any other, for that may give Satan as much advantage on the other side; but let thy watch be general, against all sin, though in a special manner against those, which are like oftenest to assault thee.

VII.

12. The second part of diligence is industry or labour, and this also we owe to our Souls, for without it they will as little prosper as the Vineyard of the sluggard; which Solomon describes, Prov. 24. 30. For there is a husbandry of the Soul, as well as of the Estate; and the end of the one, as of the other, is the increasing and improving of its riches. Now the riches of the Soul are either Natural or Divine. By the Natural I mean its Faculties or Reason, Wit, Memory, and the like; by the Divine I mean the Graces of God, which are not the Souls Natural Portion, but are given immediately by God; and both these we are to take care to improve, they being both Talents, intrusted to us for that purpose.

Industry in improving gifts.

13. The way of improving the Natural is by imploying them so, as may bring in most honour to God: we must not let them lie idle by us through sloth, neither must we overwhelm them with intemperance, and brutish

Of Nature.

Sunday brutish pleasures, which is the case of too VII. many, but we must employ them, and set them on work. But then we must be sure it be not in the Devil's Service; like many, who set their wit only to the profaning of God, or cheating their neighbours, and stuff their memories with such filthiness, as should never once enter their thoughts; our use of them must be such, as may bring in most glory to God, most benefit to our neighbours, and may best fit us to make our accounts, when God shall come to reckon with us for them.

Of Grace. 14. But the other part of the Souls riches, is yet more precious, that is, Grace, and of this we must be especially careful, to husband and improve it. This is a duty expressly commanded us by the Apostle, 2 Pet. 3. 18. Grow in grace. And again in the first Chapter of that Epistle, verse 5. Give all diligence to add to your faith vertue, and to vertue knowledge, &c. Now the especial means of improving Grace is by employing it, that is, by doing those things, for the enabling of us whereunto it was given us: This is a sure means, not only in respect of that easiness, which a custom of any thing brings in the doing of it, but principally, as it hath the promise of God, who hath promised, Matth. 25. 29. That to him that hath (that is, hath made use of what he hath) shall be given, and he shall have abundance. He that diligently and faithfully employs the first beginnings of Grace,

Grace, shall yet have more, and he that in Sunday like manner husbands that more, shall yet VII. have a greater degree; so that what Solomon saith of temporal riches, is also true of spiritual, The hand of the diligent maketh rich.

15. Therefore whenever thou findest any To improve good moti- ons. good motions in thy heart, remember that is a season for this spiritual husbandry: If thou hast but a check of conscience against any sin thou livest in, drive that on till it come to a hatred; and then that hatred, till it come to a resolution; then from that resolution, proceed to some endeavours against it. Do this faithfully and sincerely, and thou shalt certainly find the grace of God assisting thee, not only in every of these steps, but also enabling thee to advance still higher, till thou come to some victory over it. Yet to this industry thou must not fail to add thy Prayers also, there being a promise that God will give the holy spirit to them that ask it, Matt. 7. 11. And therefore they that ask it not, have no reason to expect it. But it must be asked with such an earnestness, as is some way answerable to the value of the thing, which being infinitely more precious than all the World, both in respect of its own worth, and its usefulness to us, we must beg it with much more zeal and earnestness than all temporal blessings, or else we shew our selves despisers of it.

16. Having

VII.

The danger of the contrary.

16. Having directed you to the means of improving grace, I shall to quicken you to it, mention the great danger of the contrary; and that is not as in other things, the losing only those further degrees, which our industry might have helped us to, but it is the losing even of what we already have; For from him that hath not (that is again, hath not made use of what he hath) shall be taken away even that which he hath, Matth. 25. 29. God will withdraw the grace, which he sees so neglected, as we see in that parable; the Talent was taken from him that had only hid it in a Napkin, and had brought in no gain to his Lord. And this is a most sad punishment, the greatest that can befall any Man, before he comes to Hell, indeed it is some kind of foretaste of it, it is the delivering him up to the power of the Devil, and it is the banishing him from the face of God, which are not the least parts of the misery of the damned, and it is also the binding a Man over to that fuller portion of wretchedness in another World; for that is the last doom of the unprofitable Servant, Matth. 25. 30. Cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. You see there are no light dangers that attend this neglect of grace, and therefore if we have any love, nay, any common pity to our Souls, we must set our selves to this industry. I have now done with those VER-

TUES which respect our SOULS, I Sunday come now to those which concern our BO- VII.
 DIES.

17. The first of which is CHASTITY Chastity. or PURITY, which may well be set in the front of the duties we owe to our Bodies, since the Apostle, 1 Cor. 6. 18. sets the contrary as the especial sin against them, He that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own body.

18. Now this vertue of Chastity consists in a perfect abstaining from all kinds of un-cleanness, not only that of Adultery, and Fornication, but all other more unnatural sorts of it committed either upon our selves, or with any other. In a word, all acts of that kind are utterly against Chastity, save only in lawful marriage. And even there Men are not to think themselves let loose to please their brutish appetites, but are to keep themselves within such rules of moderation, as agree to the ends of marriage, which being these two, the begetting of Children, and the avoiding of Fornication, nothing must be done which may hinder the first of these ends; and the second aiming only at the subduing of lust, the keeping Men from any sinful effects of it, is very contrary to that end to make marriage an occasion of heightning and enflaming it.

19. But this vertue of Chastity reacheth not only to the restraining of the gross act, but to all lower degrees; it sets a guard upon our

Uncleanness forbidden in the very lowest degrees.

Sunday our eyes according to that of our Saviour, VII. Matth. 5. 28. He that looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart; and upon our hand, as appears by what Christ adds in that place, If thy hand offend thee cut it off: so also upon our tongues, that they speak no immodest or filthy words, Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, Ephef. 4. 29. Nay, upon our very thoughts and fancies, we must not entertain any foul or filthy desires, not so much as the imagination of any such thing. Therefore he that forbears the grosser act, and yet allows himself in any of these, it is to be suspected that it is rather some outward restraint that keeps him from it, than the conscience of the sin. For if it were that it would keep him from these too, these being sins also, and very great ones in God's sight. Besides, He that lets himself loose to these, puts himself in very great danger of the other, it being much more easie to abstain from all, than to secure against the one, when the other is allowed. But above all, it is to be considered that even these lower degrees are such as make men very odious in God's eyes, who seeth the heart, and loves none that are not pure there.

The mischiefs of it. 20. The loveliness of this Vertue of Chastity needs no other way of describing, than by considering the loathsomness and mischiefs of the contrary sin, which is first, very brutish :

tith: those desires are but the same that the beasts have, and then how far are they sunk below the nature of Men, that can boast of their sins of that kind, as of their special excellency? When if that be the measure, a Goat is the more excellent creature. But indeed they that eagerly pursue this part of Bestiality, do often leave themselves little, besides their humane shape, to difference them from beasts: This sin so clouds the understanding, and defaceth the reasonable soul. Therefore Solomon very well describes the young man that was going to the harlots house, Prov. 7. 22. He goeth after her as an Ox goeth to the slaughter.

Sunday VII.

To the Soul.

21. Nor secondly, are the effects of it better to the Body than to the Mind. The many foul and filthy, besides painful diseases, which often follow this sin, are sufficient witnesses how mischievous it is to the Body. And alas, how many are there that have thus made themselves the Devil's Martyrs? suffered such torments in the pursuit of this sin, as would exceed the invention of the greatest Tyrant? Surely they that pay thus dear for damnation, very well deserve to enjoy the purchase.

To the Body.

22. But thirdly, Besides the natural fruits of this sin, it is attended with very great and heavy Judgments from God; the most extraordinary and miraculous Judgment that ever befel any place, Fire and Brimstone from

The judgments of God against it.

Sunday from Heaven upon Sodom and Gomorrha, was VII. for this sin of uncleanness; and many examples likewise of God's vengeance may be observed on particular persons, for this sin. The incest of Amnon cost him his life, as you may read, 2 Sam. 13. Zimri and Cozbi were slain in the very act, Numb. 25. 8. And no person that commits the like hath any assurance it shall not be his own case. For how secretly soever it be committed, it cannot be hid from God, who is the sure avenger of all such wickedness. Nay, God hath very particularly threatned this sin, 1 Cor. 3. 17. If any man defile the Temple of God, him shall God destroy. This sin of uncleanness is a kind of Sacrilege, a polluting those bodies which God hath chosen for his Temples; and therefore no wonder if it be thus heavily punished.

*It shuts out
ven.*

23. Lastly, This sin shuts us out from the Kingdom of Heaven, wherein no impure thing can enter. And we never find any list of those sins, which bar men thence, but this of uncleanness hath a special place in it. Thus it is, Gal. 5. 19. and so again, 1 Cor. 6. 9. If we will thus pollute our selves, we are fit company only for those black Spirits, the Devil and his Angels, and therefore with them we must expect our portion, where our flames of lust shall end in flames of fire.

24. All this laid together, may surely recommend the vertue of Chastity to us, for the preserving of which we must be very careful.

careful, first, to check the beginnings of the temptation, to cast away the very first fancy of lust with indignation; for if you once fall to parly and talk with it, it gains still more upon you, and then it will be harder to resist; Therefore your way in this temptation is to fly rather than fight with it. This is very necessary, not only that we may avoid the danger of proceeding to act the sin, but also in respect of the present fault of entertaining such fancies, which of it self, though it should never proceed further is, as hath been shewed, a great abomination before God. Secondly, have a special care to fly idleness, which is the proper soil for these filthy weeds to grow in, and keep thy self always busied in some innocent or vertuous employment; for then these fancies will be less apt to offer themselves. Thirdly, Never suffer thy self to recal any unclean passages of thy former life with delight, for that is to act over the sin again, and will be so reckoned by God; nay perhaps thus deliberately to think of it may be a greater guilt than a rash acting of it. For this both shews thy heart to be set upon filthiness, and is also a preparation to more acts of it. Fourthly, Forbear the company of such light and wanton Persons, as either by the filthiness of their discourse, or any other means, may be a snare to thee. Fifthly, Pray earnestly, that God would give thee the Spirit of Purity, especially at the time of any

VII.

Sunday present temptation. Bring the unclean Devil VII. to Christ to be cast out, as did the Man in the Gospel; and if it will not be cast out with Prayer alone, add Fasting to it; but be sure thou do not keep up the flame by any high or immoderate feeding. The last remedy, when the former prove vain, is Marriage, which becomes a duty to him that cannot live innocently without it. But even here there must be care taken, lest this which should be for his good, become not to him an occasion of falling, for want of sobriety in the use of Marriage. But this I have toucht on already, and therefore need add no more, but an earnest intreaty that Men would consider seriously of the foulness and danger of this sin of uncleanness, and not let the commonness of it lessen their hatred of it, but rather make them abhor that shameless impudence of the world; that can make light of this sin against which God hath pronounced such heavy curses, Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judge, Heb. 13. 4. And so he will certainly do all sorts of unclean persons whatsoever.

Temperance.

25. The second VERTUE that concerns our Bodies is TEMPERANCE: And the Exercises of that are divers, as first, Temperance in Eating; secondly, in Drinking; thirdly, in Sleep; fourthly, in Recreation; fifthly, in Apparel. I shall speak of them severally; and first of Temperance in Eating. This Temperance is observed when
 our out Eating is agreeable to those ends to ~~Sunday~~ Sunday which Eating is by God and Nature designed; VII. those are first, the Being; secondly, the Well-being of our Bodies.

Ends of Eating.

26. Man is of such a frame that Eating becomes necessary to him for the preserving his life; hunger being a natural disease which will prove deadly if not prevented, and the only physick for it is Eating, which is therefore become a necessary means of keeping us alive. And that is the first end of Eating, and as Men use not to take Physick for pleasure, but remedy, so neither shall they eat.

Preserving of Life.

27. But secondly, God hath been so bountiful as to provide not only for the being, but the Well-being of our Bodies, and therefore we are not tyed to such strictness, that we may eat no more than will just keep us from starving, but we may also eat whatsoever either for kind or quantity most tends to the health and welfare of them: Now that eating which is agreeable to these ends, is within the bounds of temperance; as on the contrary, whatsoever is contrary to them, is a transgression against it; he therefore that sets up to himself other ends of Eating, as either the pleasing of his taste, or (what is yet worse) the pampering of his Body, that he may the better serve his Lust, he directly thwarts and crosses those ends of God; for he that hath those aims doth that which is very contrary to health, yea, to life it-self,

Of Health.

Sunday as appears by the many diseases and untimely deaths which surfeiting and uncleanness daily bring on Men.

Rules of Temperance in Eating.

28. He therefore that will practise this Vertue of Temperance, must neither eat so much, nor of any such sorts of Meat (provided he can have other) as may be hurtful to his health; what the sorts or quantities shall be, is impossible to set down, for that differs according to the several constitutions of Men, some Men may with temperance eat a great deal, because their stomachs require it; when another may be guilty of intemperance in eating but half so much, because it is more than is useful to him. And so also for the sort of Meat, it may be niceness and luxury for some to be curious in them, when yet some degree of it may be necessary to the infirmities of a weak stomach, which not out of wantonness but disease cannot eat the coarser Meats. But I think it may in general be said, that to healthful Bodies the plainest Meats are generally the most wholesome, but every Man must in this be left to judge for himself; and that he may do it aright, he must be careful that he never suffer himself to be enslaved to his Palate, for that will be sure to satisfy it self, whatever becomes of health or life.

it.*

29. To secure him the better, let him consider, First, How unreasonable a thing it is that the whole body should be subject to this one

one Sense of Tasting, that it must run all hazards only to please that. But it is yet much more so, that the Diviner part, the Soul, should also be thus enslaved; and yet thus it is in an intemperate Person, his very Soul must be sacrificed to this brutish appetite; for the sin of Intemperance, though it be acted by the Body, yet the Soul must share in the eternal punishment of it. Secondly, Consider how extreme short and vanishing this pleasure is, it is gone in a moment, but the pains that attend the excess of it are much more durable, and then surely it agrees not with that common reason, wherewith, as men, we are indued, to set our hearts upon it. But then in the third place, it agrees yet worse with the temper of a Christian, who should have his heart so purified and refined with the expectation of those higher and spiritual joys he looks for in another world, that he should very much despise these gross and brutish pleasures, which beasts are as capable of as we, and to them we may well be contented to leave them, it being the highest their natures can reach to; but for us who have so much more excellent hopes, it is an intolerable shame that we should account them as any part of our happiness. Lastly, The sin of Gluttony is so great and dangerous, that Christ thought fit to give an especial warning against it. Take heed to your selves that your hearts be not overcharged with

Sunday surfeiting, &c. Luke 21. 34. And you know VIII. what was the end of the rich Glutton, Luke r6. He that had fared deliciously every day, at last wants a drop of water to cool his tongue.
 So much for the first sort of Temperance, that of Eating.

SUNDAY VIII.

Of Temperance in Drinking, False ends of Drinking, viz. Good fellowship, putting away Cares, &c.

Temperance in Drinking.

Sect. I. THE second is Temperance in Drinking: and the ends of Eating and Drinking being much the same, I can give no other direct rules in this, than what were given in the former, to wit, that we drink neither of such sorts of Liquor, nor in such quantities as may not agree with the right ends of Drinking, the preserving our lives and healths: only in this there will be need of putting in one Caution; for our understandings being in more danger to be hurt by drinking than meat, we must rather take care to keep that safe, and rather not drink what we might safely in respect of our health, if it be in danger to distemper our reason. This I say, because it is possible some Mens Brains may be so weak that their heads cannot bear

that ordinary quantity of Drink which would do their Bodies no harm. And whoever is of this temper must strictly abstain from that degree of drink, or that sort of it which he finds hath that effect, yea, though it do in other respects appear not only safe but useful to his health. For though we are to preserve our healths, yet we are not to do it by a sin, as drunkenness most certainly is.

2. But alas! of those multitudes of drunkards we have in the world, this is the case but of very few, most of them going far beyond what their health requires, yea, or can bear even to the utter destruction thereof. And therefore it is plain, Men have set up to themselves some other ends of drinking than those allowable ones forementioned; it may not be amiss a little to explain what they are and withal to shew the unreasonableness of them.

3. The first, and most owned, is that which they call Good Fellowship; one Man drinks to keep another company at it. But I would ask such a one, whether if that Man were drinking rank poyson, he would pledge him for company? If he say he would not, I must tell him, that by the very same, nay, far greater reason, he is not to do this. For immoderate drinking is that very poyson; perhaps it doth not always work death immediate (yet there want not many instances of its having done even that, very many have died

Sunday died in their drunken fit) but that the custom of it does usually bring men to their ends, is past doubt; and therefore though the poyson work slowly, yet it is still poyson. But however, it doth at the present work that which a Wise Man would more abhor than death; it works madness, and frenzy, turns the Man into a Beast, by drowning that reason which should difference him from one. Certainly the effects of drink are such, that had being drunk been first enjoyned as a punishment, we should have thought him a more than ordinary Tyrant that had invented it.

Preserving of kindness. 4. A second end of drinking is said to be the maintaining of friendship, and kindness amongst Men. But this is strangely unreasonable that Men should do that towards the maintaining of friendship, which is really the greatest mischief that can be done to any Man. Did ever any think to befriend a Man, by helping to destroy his estate, his credit, his life? Yet he that thus drinks with a Man, does this; and much more; he ruins his reason, yea, his soul, and yet this must be called the way of preserving of friendship. This is so ridiculous, that one would think none could own it but when he were actually drunk. But besides, alas! experience shews us that this is fitter to beget quarrels than preserve kindness, as the many drunken brawls we every day see; with the wounds, and some-sometimes murders that accompany them, Sunday do witness. VIII.

5. A third end is said to be the chearing of their spirits, making them merry and jolly. Chearing the spirits. But sure if the mirth be such that reason must be turned out of doors before it begin, it will be very little worth; one may say with Solomon, Eccles. 2. 2. The laughter of such fools is madness. And sure they that will be drunk to put themselves in this temper, must by the same reason be glad of a Frenzy, if they could but be sure it would be of the merry sort. But little do these merry folks think what sadness they are all this while heaping up to themselves, often in this world, when by some mad pranks they play in their jollity, they bring mischief upon themselves, but however certainly in another, where this mirth will be sadly reckon'd for.

6. A fourth end is said to be the putting away of Cares: but I shall ask what those Putting away cares. Cares are: Be they such as should be put away? Perhaps they are some checks and remorse of Conscience, which must be thus charmed. And I doubt this hath proved too effectual with many to the laying them asleep. But this is the wickedest folly in the world; for if thou thinkest not these checks to have something considerable in them why do they trouble thee? But if thou do, it is impossible thou canst hope this can long secure thee from them. Thou mayest thus stop their mouths

Sunday mouths for a while, but they will one day VIII. cry the louder for it. Suppose a Thief or a Murderer knew he were pursued to be brought to Justice, would he, think you, to put away the fear of being hang'd, fall to drinking, and in the mean time take no care for his escape? or would you not think him desperately mad, if he did? Yet this is the very case here; Thy Conscience tells thee of thy danger, that thou must ere long be brought before God's Judgment-seat; and is it not madness for thee, instead of endeavouring to get thy pardon, to drink away the thought of thy danger? But in the second place, suppose these cares be some worldly ones, and such as are fit to be put away; then for shame do not so disgrace thy Reason, thy Christianity, as not to let them be as forcible to that end as a little drink. Thy Reason will tell thee it is in vain to care, where care will bring no advantage; and thy Christianity will direct thee to one on whom thou mayest safely cast all thy cares, for he careth for thee, 1. Pet. 5. 7. And therefore unless thou meanest to renounce being both a Man and a Christian, never betake thee to this pitiful shift to rid thee of thy cares. But besides, this will not do the deed neither, for though it may at the present, whilst thou art in the height of the drunken fit, keep thee from the sense of thy cares, yet when that is over, they will return again with greater greater violence; and, if thou hast any conscience, bring a new care with them, even that which ariseth from the guilt of so foul a sin. Sunday VIII.

7. A fifth end is said to be the passing away of Time. This, though it be as unreasonable as any of the former, yet, by the way, it serves to reproach idleness, which is, it seems, so burthenfome a thing, that even this vilest employment is preferred before it. But this is in many a very false plea. For they often spend time at the Pot, not only when they have nothing else to do, but even to the neglect of their most necessary business. However it is in all a most unreasonable one, for there is no Man but he may find somewhat or other to employ himself in. If he have little worldly business of his own, he may yet do somewhat to the benefit of others; but however there is no Man but hath a Soul, and if he will look carefully to that he need not complain for want of business; where there are so many corruptions to mortifie, so many inclinations to watch over, so many temptations (whereof this of drunkenness is not the least) to resist; the Graces of God to improve and stir up, and former neglects of all these to lament, sure there can never want sufficient employment; for all these require time, and so men at their deaths find; for those that have all their lives made it their business to drive away their time, would then give all the world to redeem

Sunday deem it. And sure where there is much lei-VIII. sure from worldly affairs, God expects to have the more time thus employed in spiritual exercises. But it is not likely those meaner sort of Persons, to whom this Book is intended, will be of the number of those that have much leisure, and therefore I shall not farther insist on it, only I shall say this, that what degrees of leisure they at any time have, it concerns them to employ to the benefit of their Souls, and not to bestow it to the ruin of them, as they do, who spend it in drinking.

Preventing reproach.

8. A sixth end is said to be the preventing of that reproach which is by the world cast on those that will in this be stricter than their neighbours. But in answer to this, I shall first ask, what is the harm of such reproach?
 Sure it cannot equal the least of those mis-chiefs drunkenness betrays us to. Nay, if we will take our Saviour's word, it is a happiness. Blessed, says he, are ye when men shall revile you, and say all manner of evil against you for my sake, Matt. 5. 11. And S. Peter tells us, 1 Pet. 4. 14. If ye be reproached for the Name of Christ, happy are ye; And sure to be reproached for obedience to any command of Christ's, is to be reproached for his Name.
 Secondly, Let it be remembered that at our Baptism we solemnly renounced the world; and shall we now so far consider it, as for a few scoffs of it to run our selves on all the temporal

temporal evils before mentioned; and which is much worse, the wrath of God and eternal destruction? But thirdly, if your fear reproach, why do ye do that which will bring reproach upon you from all wise and good Men, whose opinion alone is to be regarded; And it is certain drinking is the way to bring it on you from all such. And to comfort thy self against that, by thinking thou art still applauded by the foolish and worst sort of Men, is as if all the mad-men in the World should agree to count themselves the only sober Persons, and all others mad, which yet sure will never make them the less mad, nor others the less sober. Lastly, Consider the heavy doom Christ hath pronounc'd on those that are ashamed of him, and so are all those that for fear of reproach shall shrink from their obedience to him, Matt. 8.38. Whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of the Father with the holy Angels. There is none but will at that day desire to be owned by Christ: but whoever will not here own him, that is, cleave fast to his commands, notwithstanding all the scorns, nay persecutions of the World, shall then certainly be cast off by him. And he that will adventure thus to maintain his credit among a company of Fools and Mad-men, deserves well to have it befall him: But after all this, it

Sunday
VIII.

Sunday it is not sure that even these will despise thee VIII. for thy sobriety, it is possible they may seem to do so to fright thee out of it; but if their hearts were searched, it would be found they do even against their wills bear a secret reverence of sober Persons, and none fall more often under their scorn and despising, than those that run with them to the same excess of riot; for even he that sticks not to be drunk himself, will yet laugh at another that he sees so.

9. There is a seventh end, which though every Man thinks too base to own, yet it is too plain it prevails with many; and that is the bare pleasure of the drink; but to these I confess it will not be fit to say much, for he that is come to this lamentable degree of sottishness, is not like to receive benefit by any thing can be said: yet let me tell even this Man, that he of all others hath the most means of discerning his fault; for this being such a ground of drinking as no body will own, he is condemn'd of himself; yea, and all his fellow-drunkards too; for their denying it, is a plain sign they acknowledge it a most abominable thing. And if Esau were called a profane person, Heb. 12. 6. for selling but his birth right for a mess of pottage, and that too when he had the necessity of hunger upon him; what name of reproach can be bad enough for him who sells his health, his reason, his God, his soul for a cup of drink, and that that when he is so far from needing it, that perhaps he hath already more than he can keep; I shall say no more to this sort of Persons, but let me warn all those that go on in this sin on any of the former grounds, that a little time will bring them even to this which they profess to loath; it being daily seen that those which first were drawn into the sin for the love of the company, at last continue in it for the love of the drink.

10. I can think but of one end more, that is, That of Bargaining. Men say it is necessary for them to drink, in this one respect of trading with their Neighbours, bargains being most conveniently to be struck up at such meetings. But this is yet a worse end than all the rest, for the bottom of it is an aim of cheating and defrauding others; we think when men are in drink we shall the better be able to over-reach them; and so this adds the sin of cozenage and defrauding to that of drunkenness. Now that this is indeed the intent, is manifest, for if it were only the dispatch of bargains were aimed at, we should chuse to take men with their wits about them: therefore the taking them when drink hath distempered them, can be for nothing but to make advantage of them. Yet this often proves a great folly as well as a sin; for he that drinks with another in hope to over-reach him, doth many times prove the weaker brain'd, and becomes drunk first, and

ing.

Sunday and then he gives the other that opportunity VIII. of cheating him, which he designed for the cheating of the other. Now this end of drinking is so far from becoming an excuse, that it is a huge heightning of the sin; for if we may not drink intemperately upon any occasion, much less upon so wicked an one as is the cozening and defrauding of our brethren.

Degrees of this sin.

II. I suppose I have now shewed you the unreasonableness of those Motives, which are ordinarily brought in excuse of this sin.
I am yet further to tell you, that it is not only that huge degree of drunkenness which makes Men able neither to go nor speak, which is to be lookt on as a sin, but all lower degrees, which do at all work upon the understanding, whether by dulling it and making it less fit for any employment, or by making it too light and airy, apt to apish and ridiculous mirth, or what is worse, by inflaming Men in orage and fury. These or what ever else make any change in the Man, are to be reckoned in to this sin of drunkenness: Nay, further, the drinking beyond the natural ends of drinking, that is, beyond moderate refreshment, is a sin, though by the strength of a Man's brain it makes not the least change in him; and therefore those that are not actually drunk, yet can spend whole days, or any considerable part of them in drinking, are so far from being innocent, that that greater woe belongs to them which is pro-

pronounced, Isa. 5. 22. against those that are Sunday mighty to drink. For though such a Man VIII. may make a shift to preserve his wits, yet that wit serves him to very little purpose, when his employment is still but the same with him that is the most sottishly drunk, that is to pour down drink.

12. Nay this Man is guilty of the greatest The great waste: first, of the good creatures of God; guilt of That drink which is by God's Providence in- the strong tended for the refreshing and relieving of us, drinkers.
 is abused and mispent when it is drunk beyond that measure which those ends require; and sure there is not the meanest of these creatures we enjoy, but the abuse of them shall one day be accounted for, and he that drinks longest hath the most of that guilt.
 But in the second place, This is a waste of that which is much more precious, our Time, which is allowed us by God to work out our Salvation in, and must be strictly reckoned for, and therefore ought every minute of it to be most thriftily husbanded to that end in actions of good life; but when it is thus laid out, it tends to the direct contrary, even the working out our damnation. Besides, He that thus drinks, though he escape being drunk himself, he is yet guilty of all the drunkenness that any of his company fall under; for he gives them encouragement to drink on by his example, especially if he be one of any Authority; but if he be one O whose

Sunday whose company the rest are fond of, his company VIII. is then a certain ensnaring of them, for then they will drink too, rather than lose him. There is yet a greater fault that many of these stronger brain'd drinkers are guilty of, that is, the setting themselves purposely to make others drunk, playing as it were, a prize at it, and counting it matter of triumph and victory to see others fall before them: This is a most horrible wickedness, it is the making our selves the Devil's Factors, endeavouring all we can to draw our poor brethren into eternal misery, by betraying them to so grievous a sin; and therefore it may well be reckoned as the highest step of this Vice of drinking, as having in it the sin of mischieving others added to the excess in our selves. And though it be lookt upon in the world as a matter only of jest and merriment to make others drunk, that we may sport our selves with their ridiculous behaviour, yet that mirth will have a sad conclusion, there being a woe expressly threatned by God to this very sin, Hab. 2. 15. Wo unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that putteth thy Bottle to him, and makest him drunk, that thou mayest look on their nakedness. And sure he buys his idle pastime very dear, that takes it with such a woe attending it.

The great mischiefs of this sin.

13. I have now gone through the several motives to, and degrees of this sin of drunkenness, wherein I have been the more particular, cular, because it is a sin so strangely reigning Sunday amongst us: no Condition, no Age, or scarce VIII.

Sex, free from it, the great dishonour of God, reproach of Christianity, and ruine not only of our own Souls hereafter, but even of all our present advantages and happiness in this life: there being no sin which betrays each single committer to more mischiefs in his understanding, his health, his credit his estate, than this one doth. And we have reason to believe this sin is one of those common crying guilts which have long lain heavy upon this Nation, and pulled down those many sad judgments we have groaned under.

14. Therefore, Christian Reader, let me Exhortati- now intreat, nay conjure thee by all that on to for- tenderness and love thou oughtest to have sake it. to the honour of God, the credit of thy Christian Profession, eternal welfare of thine own Soul, the prosperity of the Church and Nation, whereof thou art a member; Nay, by that love which certainly thou hast to thy own temporal welfare, to think sadly of what hath been spoken; and then judge, whether there be any pleasure in this sin which can be any tolerable recompense for all those mischiefs it brings with it. I am confident no Man in his wits can think there is; and if there be not, then be ashamed to be any longer that fool, which shall make so wretched a bargain, but begin at this instant

Sunday a firm and a faithful resolution, never once VIII. more to be guilty of this swinish sin, how often soever thou hast heretofore fallen into it, and in the fear of God betake thee to a strict Temperance, which when thou hast done thou wilt find thou hast made not only a gainful but a pleasant exchange; for there is no Man that hath tried both courses, but his own heart will tell him there is infinitely more present comfort and pleasure in Sobriety and Temperance, than ever all his drunken revellings afforded him.

The difficulties of doing so considered.

Seeming necessity of drink.

15. The main difficulty is the first breaking off the custom, and that arises partly from our selves; partly from others. That from our selves may be of two sorts; the first is, When by the habit of drinking, we have brought such false thirsts upon our selves that our Bodies seem to require it, and this wants nothing but a little patience to overcome. Do but refrain some few days, and it will afterwards grow easie; for the hardness arising only from custom, the breaking off that does the business. If thou say, it is very uneasie to do so, consider, whether if thou hadst some disease which would certainly kill thee if thou didst not for some little time refrain immoderate drinking, thou wouldst not rather forbear than die. If thou wouldst not, thou art so brutish a sot that it is in vain to perswade thee; but if thou hadst, then consider how unreasonable it is for thee not to do it in this case also; the habit of drinking may well pass for a mortal disease, it proves so very often to the Body, but will most certainly to the Soul; and therefore it is madness to stick at that uneasiness in the cure of this, which thou wouldest submit to in a less danger. Set therefore but a resolute purpose to endure that little trouble for a small time, and this first difficulty is conquered, for after thou hast a while refrained, it will be perfectly easie to do so still.

16. The second difficulty is that of spending the time, which those that have made drinking their trade and business, know scarce how to dispose of. But the very naming of this difficulty directs to the cure; get thee some business, somewhat to employ thy self in, which, as I have already shewed, will be easily found by all sorts of persons; but those meaner, to whom I now write, can sure never want it ready at hand, they being generally such as are to be maintained by their labour, and therefore to them I need only give this advice, to be diligent in that business they have, to follow that close as they ought; and they will have little occasion to seek out this way of spending their time.

17. There is another sort of difficulty, which I told you arises from others, and that is either from their persuasions or reproaches. It is very likely, if thy old companions see

VIII.

Want of employment.

Perswasions and re-proaches of men.

Sunday thee begin to fall off, they will set hard to thee, to bring thee back to thy old course; they will urge to thee the unkindness of forsaking the company of thy friends, the sadness of renouncing all that mirth and jollity, which good fellows (as they call them) enjoy, and if thou canst not thus be won, they will affright thee with the reproach of the world, and so try if they can mock thee out of thy sobriety.

*The means of resisting
them.*

18. The way to overcome this difficulty is to foresee it; therefore when thou first entrest on thy course of Temperance, thou art to make account thou shalt meet with these (perhaps many other) Temptations, and that thou mayest make a right judgment whether they be worthy to prevail with thee, take them before hand and weigh them, consider whether that false kindness that is maintained among men by drinking, be worthy to be compared with that real and everlasting kindness of God, which is lost by it; whether that foolish vain mirth bear any weight with the present joys of a good Conscience here, or with those greater of Heaven hereafter. Lastly, Whether the unjust reproach of wicked men, the shame of the World be so terrible, as the just reproof of thine own Conscience at the present, and that eternal confusion of face that shall befall all those that go on in this sin, at the last day; weigh all these, I say, I need not say in advantages with

in the balance of the Sanctuary, but even in the scales of common reason, and sure thou wilt be forced to pronounce, that the motives to Temperance infinitely outweigh those against it. When thou hast thus advisedly judged, then fix thy resolution accordingly; and whenever any of these temptations come to stagger thee, remember thou hast formerly weighed them, knowest the just value of them, and that they are a most unworthy price for those precious advantages thou must give in exchange for them. And therefore hold fast thy resolution, and with indignation reject all motions to the contrary.

19. But be sure, thou thus reject them at their very first tender, and do not yield in the least degree; for if once thou givest ground thou art lost, the sin will by little and little prevail upon thee, Thus we see many, who have professed to be resolved upon great Temperance, yet for want of this care have adventured into the company of good fellows; when they have been there, they have at the first been over-intreated to take a cup, after that another, till at last they have taken their rounds as freely as any of them, and in that flood of drink drowned all their sober resolutions. Therefore whoever thou art, that dost really desire to forsake the sin, take care to avoid the occasions and beginnings of it; to which end it will be good openly to declare and own thy purposes

Sunday poses of sobriety, that so thou mayest discourage men from assaulting thee. But if either thou art ashamed to own it, or seemest to be so, they will quickly make use of that shame to bring thee to break it.

The security of doing so.

20. If thou be thus wary to keep thee from the first beginnings, thou art then sure never to be overtaken with this sin; for it is like the keeping the out-works of a besieged City, which, so long as they are stoutly defended, there is no danger; but if they be either surpris'd or yielded the City cannot long hold out. The advice therefore of the Wise Man is very agreeable to this matter. Eccles. 19. 1. He that despiseth small things shall perish by little and little. But because, as the Psalmist saith, Psalms 127. 1. Except the Lord keep the City, the watchman watcheth but in vain: Therefore to this guard of thy self add thy most earnest Prayers to God, that he will also watch over thee, and by the strength of his grace enable thee to resist all temptations to this sin.

The efficacy of these means, if not hindered by love of the sin.

21. If thou do in the sincerity of thy heart use these means, there is no doubt but thou wilt be able to overcome this vice, how long soever thou hast been accustomed to it; therefore if thou do still remain under the power of it, never excuse thy self by the impossibility of the task, but rather accuse the falseness of thy own heart, that hath still such a love to this sin, that thou wilt not set roundly to the means of subduing it, 22. Per-

22. Perhaps the great commonness of the Sunday fin and thy particular custom of it may have VIII. made it so much thy familiar, thy bosom acquaintance, that thou art loth to entertain That love makes a man loth to believe it dangerous. hard thoughts of it, very unwilling thou art to think that it means thee any hurt, and therefore art apt to speak peace to thy self, to hope that either this is no sin, or at most but a frailty, such as will not bar thee out of Heaven: but deceive not thy self, for thou mayest as well say there is no Heaven, as that drunkenness shall not keep thee thence; I am sure the same Word of God which tells us there is such a place of happiness, tells us also that drunkards are of the number of those that shall not inherit it, 1 Cor. 6. 10. And again, Gal. 5. 21. Drunkenness is reckoned among those works of the flesh, which they that do shall not inherit the Kingdom of God. And indeed had not these plain Texts, yet mere reason would tell us the same, that that is a place of infinite purity, such as flesh and blood, till it be refined and purified, is not capable of, as the Apostle tells us, 1 Cor. 15. 53. and if as we are mere men, we are too gross and impure for it, we must sure be more so when we have changed our selves into Swine, the foulest of Beasts, we are then prepared for the Devils to enter into, as they did into the herd, Mark 5. 13. and that not only some one or two, but a Legion; a troop and multitude of them. And of this we daily

Sunday daily see examples, for where this sin of VIII. drunkenness hath taken possession, it usually comes as an harbinger to abundance of others; each act of drunkenness prepares a man not only for another of the same sin, but of others; lust and rage, and all brutish appetites are then let loose, and so a Man brings himself under that curse which was the saddest David knew how to foretel to any, Psaln 63. 28. The falling from one wickedness to another. If all this be not enough to af-fright thee out of this drunken fit, thou may'st still wallow in thy vomit, continue in this sottish senseless condition, till the flames of Hell rowse thee, and then thou wilt by sad experince find what now thou wilt not believe, That the end of these things, as the Apostle saith, Rom. 6. 21. is death. God in his infinite mercy timely awake the hearts of all that are in this sin, that by a timely forsaking it they may fly from the wrath to come. I have now done with this second part of Temperance, concerning Drinking.

SUNDAY IX.

Temperance in sleep: the rule of it, &c. Mischiefs of sloth, of Recreations, Cautions to be observed in them; of Apparel, &c.

Sect. I. THE Third part of TEMPERANCE Sleep. concerns SLEEP; And Temperance in that also must be measured by the end for which sleep was ordained by God, which was only the refreshing and supporting of our frail bodies, which being of such a Temper that continual labour and toil tires and wearies them out, Sleep comes as a Medicine to that weariness, as a repairer of that decay, that so we may be enabled to such labours as the duties of Religion or works of our Calling require of us. Sleep was intended to make us more profitable, not more idle; as we give rest to our Beasts, not that we are pleased with their doing nothing, but that they may do us the better service.

2. By this therefore you may judge what is temperate sleeping; to wit, That which tends to the refreshing and making us more lively and fit for action, and to that end a moderate degree serves best. It will be impossible to set down just how many hours is that moderate degree, because, as in eating so in sleep, some constitutions require more than

Sunday than others: Every Man's own experience IX. must in this judge for him, but then let him judge uprightly, and not consult with his sloth in the case: for that will still, with Solomon's fluggard, cry, A little more sleep, a little more slumber, a little more folding of the hands to sleep, Prov. 24. 23. but take only so much as he really finds to tend to the end forementioned.

The many Sins that follow the transgression of it.

3. He that doth not thus limit himself falls into several sins under this general one of sloth: as first, he wastes his time, that precious talent which was committed to him by God to improve, which he that sleeps away, doth like him in the Gospel, Matth. 25. 18.
Hides it in the earth, when he should be trading with it; and you know what was the doom of that unprofitable servant, Verse 30. Cast ye him into outer darknes: He that gives himself to darknes of sleep here, shall there have darknes without sleep, but with weeping and gnashing of teeth. Secondly, He injures his Body: immoderate sleep fills that full of diseases, makes it a very sink of humours, as daily experience shews us. Thirdly, He injures his Soul also, and that not only in robbing it of the service of the Body, but in dulling its proper faculties, making them useles and unfit for those employments to which God hath designed them; of all which ill husbandry the poor Soul must one day give account. Nay, lastly, He affronts and despises

despises God himself in it, by crossing the Sunday very end of his creation, which was to serve IX. God in an active obedience, but he that sleeps away his life, directly thwarts and contradicts that, and when God saith, Man is born to labour, his practice saith the direct contrary, that Man is born to rest. Take heed therefore of giving thy self to immoderate sleep, which is the committing of so many sins in one.

4. But besides the sin of it, it is also very Other mis- hurtful in other respects, it is the sure bane of chiefs of thy outward estate, wherein the sluggish sloth. person shall never thrive; according to that observation of the Wise Man, Prov. 23. 21. Drowsiness shall cover a man with rags; that is, the slothful Man shall want convenient clothing; nay, indeed it can scarce be said, that the sluggard lives. Sleep you know is a kind of death, and he that gives himself up to it, what doth he but die before his time? Therefore if untimely death be to be looked upon as a curse, it must needs be a strange folly to chuse that from our own sloth, which we dread so much from God's hand.

5. The fourth part of Temperance con- Temperance cerns Recreations, which are sometimes ne- in Recrea- cessary both to the Body and the Mind of a tion. Man, neither of them being able to endure a constant toil without somewhat of refreshment between; and therefore there is a very lawful use of them; but to make it so, it

Sunday it will be necessary to observe these Cautions.
IX.

*Cautions to be observed in
them.*

6. First, We must take care that the kind of them be lawful, that they be such as have nothing of sin in them; we must not to recreate our selves do any thing which is dishonourable to God, or injurious to our neighbour, as they do who make profane or filthy backbiting discourse their recreation. Secondly, We must take care that we use it with moderation: and to do so, we must first be sure not to spend too much time upon it, but remember that the end of recreation is to fit us for business, not to be it self a business to us. Secondly, We must not be too vehement and earnest in it, nor set our hearts too much upon it, for that will both ensnare us to the using too much of it, and it will divert and take off our minds from our more necessary employments: like School-boys, who after a play-time, know not how to set themselves to their Books again. Lastly, We must not set up to our selves any other end of recreations but the Lawful one, of giving us moderate refreshment.

ends of sports.*

7. As first, We are not to use sports only to pass away our time, which we ought to study how to redeem, not sling away; and when it is remembered how great a work we have here to do, the making our calling and election sure, the securing our title to Heaven hereafter, and how uncertain we are what time

Sunday

time shall be allowed us for that purpose; it will appear our time is that which of all other things we ought most industriously to improve. And therefore sure we have little need to contrive ways of driving that away which flies so fast of it self, and is so impossible to recover. Let them that can spend whole days and nights at Cards and Dice, and idle pastimes consider this, and withal, whether they ever bestowed a quarter of that time towards that great business of their lives, for which all their time was given them, and then think what a woful reckoning they are like to make, when they come at last to account for that precious treasure of their time. Secondly, We must not let our covetousness have any thing to do in our recreations; if we play at any Game, let the end of our doing it be merely to recreate our selves, not to win money, and to that purpose be sure never to play for any considerable matter: for if thou do, thou wilt bring thy self into two dangers, the one of covetousness, and a greedy desire of winning, the other of rage and anger at thy ill fortune, if thou happen to lose: both which will be apt to draw thee into other sins besides themselves. Covetousness will tempt thee to cheat and cozen in Gaming, and anger to swearing and cursing, as common experience shews us too often. If thou find thy self apt to fall into either of these in thy gaming, thou must either

Sunday either take some course to secure thy self against them, or thou must not permit thy self to play at all: for though moderate play be in it self not unlawful, yet if it be the occasion of sin, it is so to thee, and therefore must not be ventured on. For if Christ commands us so strictly to avoid temptations that if our very eyes and hands offend us (that is, prove snares to us) we must rather part with them, than to be drawn to sin by them: how much rather must we part with any of these unnecessary sports, than run the hazard of offending God by them? He that so plays, lays his soul to stake, which is too great a prize to be played away. Besides, He loses all the recreation and sport he pretends to aim at, and instead of that sets himself to a greater toil than any of those labours are he was to ease by it. For sure the desires and fears of the covetous, the impatience and rage of the angry Man are more real pains than any the most laborious work can be.

in Apparel.*

Apparel designed for covering of shame.

8. The last part of Temperance is that of APPAREL, which we are again to measure by the agreeableness to the ends for which cloathing should be used. Those are especially these three: First, The hiding of nakedness. This was the first occasion of Apparel, as you may read, Gen. 3. 21. and was the effect of the first sin; and therefore when we remember the original of clothes, we have so little reason to be proud of them, that that on the contrary we have cause to be Sunday humbled and ashamed, as having lost that in- IX. nocency which was a much greater ornament than any the most glorious Apparel can be. From this end of clothing we are likewise engaged to have our Apparel modest, such as may answer this end of covering our shame: And therefore all immodest fashions of Apparel, which may either argue the wantonness of the wearer, or provoke that of the beholder, or to be avoided.

9. A second end of Apparel, is the fencing Fencing the body from Cold, thereby to preserve the from cold. health thereof: and this end we must likewise observe in our clothing; we must wear such kind of habits, as may keep us in that convenient warmth, which is necessary to our healths. And this is transgress, when out of the vanity of being in every fantastick fashion, we put our selves in such clothing as either will not defend us from cold, or is some otherway so uneasie, that it is rather a hurt than a benefit to our bodies to be so clad. This is a most ridiculous folly, and yet that which People that take a pride in their clothes are usually guilty of.

10. A third end of Apparel is the distin- Distinction guishing or differencing of Persons, and that of Persons. first, in respect of Sex; secondly, in respect of qualities. First, Clothes are to make difference of Sex; this hath been observed by all Nations, the habits of Men and Women have P always

Sunday always been divers. And God himself expressly provided for it among the Jews, by commanding that the Man should not wear the Apparel of the Woman, nor the Woman of the Man. But then secondly, There is also a distinction of qualities to be observed in apparel; God hath placed some in a higher condition than others, and in proportion to their condition it befits their cloathing to be. Gorgeous apparel, our Saviour tells us, is for Kings Courts, Luke 7.25. Now this end of apparel should also be observed, Men and Women should content themselves with that sort of cloathing which agrees to their Sex and condition, not striving to exceed, and equal that of a higher rank, nor yet making it matter of envy, among those of their own estate, vying who shall be finest: but let every man cloath himself in such sober attire as befits his place and calling, and not think himself disparaged, if another of his neighbours have better than he.

11. And let all remember that cloaths are things which add no true worth to any, and therefore it is an intolerable vanity to spend any considerable part either of their thoughts, time or wealth upon them, or to value themselves ever the more for them, or despise their poor brethren that want them. But if they desire to adorn themselves, let it be as S. Peter adviseth the women of his time, 1 Pet. 3.4. In the hidden man of the heart, even the ornament namment of a week and quiet spirit. Let them Sunday cloath themselves as richly as is possible IX.

 with all Christian virtues, and that is the raiment that will set them out lovely in God's eyes, yea, and in Mens too, who, unless they be fools and Idiots, will more value thee for being good than fine; and sure one plain Coat thou puttest upon a poor Man's back will better become thee, than twenty rich ones thou shalt put upon thine own.

12. I have now gone through the several Too much parts of Temperance, I shall now in conclu sparing a sion add this general caution, that though in fault as all these particulars I have taken notice only well as of the one fault of excess, yet it is possible excess. there may be one on the other hand: Men may deny their Bodies that which they necessarily require to their support, and well being. This is, I believe, a fault not so common as the other, yet we sometimes see some very niggardly Persons, that are guilty of it; that cannot find in their hearts to borrow so much from their Chests as may fill their bellies, or cloath their backs, and that are so intent upon the world, so moiling, and drudg-ing in it, that they cannot afford themselves that competent time of sleep, or recreation, that is necessary. If any that hath read the former part of this Discourse be of this temper, let him not comfort himself, that he is not guilty of those excesses there complained of, and therefore conclude himself a good

Sunday Christian, because he is not intemperate; IX. for whoever is this covetous creature, his abstaining shall not be counted to him as the vertue of Temperance, for it is not the love of Temperance, but wealth, that makes him refrain; and that is so far from being praiseworthy, that it is that great sin which the Apostle tells us, 1 Tim. 6. 10. Is the root of all evil; such a Man's Body will one day rise in judgment against him, for defrauding it of its due portion, those moderate refreshments and comforts which God hath allowed it. This is an Idolatry beyond that of offering the children to Moloch, Lev. 20. 3. they offered but their children, but this covetous wretch sacrifices himself to his god Mammon, whilest he often destroys his health, his life, yea, finally his Soul too, to save his Purse. I have now done with the second head of duty, that to our selves, contained by the Apostle under the word Soberly.

SUN.

SUNDAY X.

Sunday
X.

Of Duties to our Neighbour. Of Justice, Negative, Positive. Of the sin of Murder, of the hainousness of it, the Punishment of it, and the strange discoveries thereof. Of Maiming, &c.

Sect. 1. I COME now to the third part ^{Duty to} of Duties, those to our NEIGH- ^{our Neigh-}BOUR, which are by the Apo- ^{bour.}stle summed up in gross in the word [Righteousness] by which is meant not only bare Justice, but all kind of Charity also, for that is now by the Law of Christ become a debt to our neighbour, and it is a piece of unrighteousness to defraud him of it. I shall therefore build all the particular duties we owe to our Neighbour on those two general ones, Justice and Charity.

2. I begin with JUSTICE, whereof, ^{Justice.} there are two parts, the one Negative, the other Positive: the Negative Justice is to do no wrong, or injury to any. The Positive Justice is to do right to all; that is, to yield them whatsoever appertains or is due unto them. I shall first speak of the Negative ^{Negative.} Justice, the not injuring or wronging any. Now because a Man is capable of receiving wrong in several respects; this first part of Justice extends it self into several branches, Sunday answerably to those capacities of injury. A X. Man may be injured either in his Soul, his Body, his Possessions, or Credit; and therefore this duty of Negative Justice lays a restraint on us in every of these. That we do no wrong to any Man in respect either of his Soul, his Body, his Possessions, or his Credit.

To the Soul.

3. First, This Justice ties us to do no hurt to his Soul; and here my first work must be to examine what harm it is that the Soul can receive; it is, we know, an invisible substance which we cannot reach with our eye, much less with our swords and weapons, yet for all that it is capable of being hurt and wounded; and that even to death.

In the natural sense.

4. Now the Soul may be considered either in a natural or spiritual sense; in the natural it signifies that which we usually call the Mind of a Man, and this, we all know, may be wounded with grief or sadness, as Solomon saith, Prov. 15. 13. By sorrow of heart the spirit is broken. Therefore whoever doth causlessly afflict or grieve his neighbour, he transgresses this part of Justice, and hurts and wrongs his Soul. This sort of injury malicious and spiteful Men, are very often guilty of; they will do things, by which themselves reap no good, nay, often much harm, only that they may vex and grieve another; this is a most savage, inhumane humour, thus to take pleasure in the sadness and afflictions of others; and whoever harbours it in his heart, may may truly be said to be possess'd with a Devil, Sunday X. for it is the nature only of those accursed spirits to delight in the miseries of Men; and till that be cast out, they are fit only to dwell as the possess'd person did, Mark 5. 2. Among graves and tombs, where there are none capable of receiving affliction by them.

5. But the Soul may be considered also in In the Spiritual. the spiritual fence, and so it signifies that immortal part of us which must live eternally, either in bliss or woe in another world. And the Soul thus understood is capable of two sorts of harm: First, That of sin. Secondly, That of punishment; the latter whereof is certainly the consequent of the former; and therefore though God be the inflicter of punishment, yet since it is but the effect of sin, we may justly reckon, that he that draws a man to sin, is likewise the betrayer of him to punishment, as he that gives a Man a mortal wound, is the cause of his death; therefore under the evil of Sin both are contained, so that I need speak only of that.

6. And sure there cannot be a higher sort Drawing to sin the greatest injury. of wrong, than the bringing this great evil upon the Soul. Sin is the disease and wound of the Soul, as being the direct contrary to Grace; which is the health and soundness of it: Now this wound we give to every Soul whom we do by any means whatsoever draw into sin.

Sunday

X.
Direct
meant of it.

7. The ways of doing that are divers, I shall mention some of them, whereof though some are more direct than others, yet all tend to the same end. Of the more direct ones there is, first, the commanding of sin, that is, when a Person that hath power over another shall require him to do something which is unlawful; an example of this we have in Nebuchadnezzar's commanding the worship of the Golden Image, Dan. 3. 4. and his copy is imitated by any Parent or Master, who shall require of his child or servant to do any unlawful act. Secondly, there is counselling of sin, when Men advise and perswade others to any wickedness: Thus Job's Wife counselled her husband to curse God, Job 2. 7. And Achitophel advised Absolom to go in to his Father's Concubines, 2 Sam. 16. 21. Thirdly, There is inciting and alluring to sin by setting before Men the pleasures or profits they shall reap by it. Of this sort of enticement Solomon gives warning, Prov. 1. 10. My son, if sinners intice thee, consent thou not; if they say, Come with us, let us lay wait for blood, let us lurk privily for the innocent without a cause, &c. and Verse the 13th. you may see what is the bait, by which they seek to allure them. We shall find all precious substance; we shall fill our houses with spoil. Cast in thy lot among us, let us all have one purse. Fourthly, there is assistance in sin; that is, when Men aid and help others either in contriving or acting acting a sin. Thus Jonadab helpt Amnon in ~~Sunday~~ plotting the Ravishing of his Sister, 2 Sam. X. 13. All these are direct means of bringing this great evil of sin upon our brethren.

8. There are also others, which though Indirect, they seem more direct, may yet be as effectual towards that ill end, as first, example in sin; he that sets others an ill pattern, does his part to make them imitate it, and too often it hath that effect; there being generally nothing more forcible to bring Men into any sinful practice, than the seeing it used by others, as might be instanced in many sins, to which there is no other temptation, but their being in fashion. Secondly, There is encouragement in sin, when either by approving, or else at least by not shewing a dislike, we give others confidence to go on in their wickedness. A third means is by justifying and defending any sinful act of another, for by that we do not only confirm him in his evil, but endanger the drawing others to the like, who may be the more inclinable to it, when they shall hear it so pleaded for. Lastly, The bringing up any reproach upon strict and Christian Living, as those do who have the ways of God in derision; this is a means to affright Men from the practice of duty, when they see it will bring them to be scorned and despised: this is worse than all the former, not only in respect of the Man who is guilty of it (as it is an
an

Sunday an evidence of the great prophaneness of his X. own heart) but also in regard of others, it having a more general ill effect than any of the former can have; it being the betraying Men not only to some single acts of disobedience to Christ, but even to the casting off all subjection to him; by all these means we may draw on our selves this great guilt of injuring and wounding the souls of our brethren.

Men sadly to consider whom they have thus injured.

9. It would be too long for me to instance in all the several sins, in which it is usual for Men to ensnare others; as drunkenness, un-cleanness, rebellion, and a multitude more, But it will concern every Man for his own particular, to consider sadly what mischiefs of this kind he hath done to any, by all, or any of these means, and to weigh well the greatness of the injury. Men are apt to boast of their innocency towards their neighbours, that they have done wrong to no Man; but God knows many that thus brag, are of all others the most injurious persons: perhaps they have not maimed his body, nor stolen his goods: but alas! the body is but the case and cover of the Man, and the goods some appurtenances to that, 'tis the soul is the Man, and that they can wound and pierce without remorse, and yet with the adulterers, Prov.
30. 20. say, They have done no wickedness; but glory of their friendly behaviour to those whom they thus betray to eternal ruine; for whomsoever thou hast drawn to any any sin, thou hast done thy part to ascertain Sunday to those endless flames. And then think with X. thy self how base a treachery this is: thou wouldst call him a treacherous villain, that should, while he pretends to embrace a Man, secretly stab him: but this of thine is as far beyond that, as the Soul is of more value than the Body; and Hell worse than Death.

 And remember yet farther, that besides the cruelty of it to thy poor Brother, it is also most dangerous to thy self, it being that against which Christ hath pronounced a woe, Mat. 18. 7. and verse 6. he tells us that whoever shall offend (that is, draw into sin) any of those little ones, it were better for him that a milstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.
 Thou mayest plunge thy poor Brother into perdition: but as it is with wrestlers, he that gives another a fall, commonly falls with him, so thou art like to bear him company to that place of torment.

10. Let therefore thy own and his danger Heartily beget in thee a sense of the greatness of this to bewail sin, this horrid piece of injustice to the preci- it. ous soul of thy neighbour. Bethink thy self seriously to whom thou hast been thus cruel, whom thou hast enticed to drinking, advised to rebellion, allur'd to lust, stirr'd up to rage, whom thou hast assisted or encouraged in any ill course, or discouraged and disheartned by thy profane scoffings at piety in general

Sunday or at any conscionable strict walking of his
 X. in particular; and then draw up a Bill of indictment; accuse and condemn thy self as a Cain, a murtherer of thy brother, heartily and deeply bewail all thy guilts of this kind, and resolve never once more to be a stumbling block, as S. Paul calls it, Rom. 14. in thy brother's way.

Endeavour to repair it. 11. But this is not all, there must be some fruits of this repentance, brought forth; now in all sins of injustice, restitution is a necessary fruit of repentance, and so it is here, thou hast committed an act (perhaps many) of high injustice to the soul of thy brother; thou hast robbed it of its innocency, of its title to Heaven, thou mayest now endeavour to restore all this to it again, by being more earnest and industrious to win him to repentance, than ever thou wert to draw him to sin: use now as much art to convince him of the danger, as ever thou didst to flatter him with the pleasures of his Vice; in a word, countermine thy self by using all those methods and means to recover him, that thou didst to destroy him, and be more diligent and zealous in it, for 'tis necessary thou shouldest, both in regard of him and thy self. First, in respect of him, because there is in Man's nature so much a greater promptness and readiness to evil than to good, that there will need much more pains and diligence to instil the one into him, than the other: besides, fides, the Man is supposed to be already accustomed to the contrary, which will add much to the difficulty of the work. Then in respect of thy self: if thou be a true penitent, thou wilt think thy self obliged, as S. Paul did, To labour more abundantly, and wilt be ashamed, that when thou art trading for God, bringing back a Soul to him, thou shouldst not pursue it with more earnestness, than while thou wert an agent of Satans; besides, the remembrance that thou wert a means of bringing this poor Soul into this snare must necessarily quicken thy diligence to get him out of it. So much for the first part of negative Justice, in respect of the Souls of our brethren.

12. The second concerns the Bodies, and to those also this justice binds thee to do no wrong nor violence. Now of wrongs to the Body there may be several degrees, the highest of them is killing, taking away the life; this is forbid in the very letter of the sixth Commandment, Thou shalt do no murder.

13. Murder may be committed either by open violence; when a man either by sword or any other Instrument takes away anothers life, immediately and directly; or it may be done secretly and treacherously, as David murdered Uriah, not with his own Sword, but with the Sword of the children of Ammon, 2 Sam. 11. 17. And Jezebel Naboth by a false accusation, 1 King 11. 13. And so divers have

X.

Negative Justice to the Body.In respect of the Life.Several ways of being guilty of Murder.

Sunday have committed this sin of murder by poison, false witness, or some such concealed ways. The former is commonly the effect of a sudden rage, the latter hath several originals, some times it proceeds from some old malice fixt in the heart towards the Person; sometimes from some covetous or ambitious desires; such an one stands in a Man's way to his profit or preferment, and therefore he must be removed; and sometimes again it is to cover shame, as in the case of Strumpets, that murder their Infants that they may not betray their filthiness. But besides these more direct ways of killing, there is another, and that is, when by our persuasions and enticements we draw a Man to do that which tends to the shortning of his life, and is apparent to do so; he that makes his neighbour drunk, if by that drunkenness the Man comes to any mortal hurt, which he would have escaped if he had been sober, he that made him drunk is not clear of his death; or if he die not by any such sudden accident; yet if drinking cast him into a disease, and that disease kill him, I know not how he that drew him to that excess can acquit himself of his murder in the eyes of God, though humane Laws touch him not. I wish those who make it their business to draw in customers to that trade of debauchery, would consider it. There is yet another way of bringing this guilt upon our selves, and that is by inciting
and

and stirring up others to it, or to that degree ~~Sunday~~ of anger and revenge which produces it; X.
 and he that sets two Persons at variance, or seeing them already so, blows the coals, if murder ensue, he certainly hath his share in the guilt, which is a consideration that ought to affright all from having any thing to do in the kindling or encreasing of contention.

14. Now for the hainousness of this sin of Murder; I suppose none can be ignorant, The hainousness of the sin. that it is of the deepest dye, a most loud crying sin. This we may see in the first act of this kind, that ever was committed, Abel's blood crieth from the earth, as God tells Cain, Gen. 4. 10. Yea, the guilt of this sin is such that it leaves a stain even upon the Land where it is committed, such as is not to be washt out, but by the blood of the Murderer; as appears, Deut. 19. 12, 13. The Land cannot be purged of blood, but by the blood of him that shed it, and therefore though in other cases the flying to the Altar secured a Man, yet in this of wilful Murder no such refuge was allowed, but such a one was to be taken even thence, and delivered up to Justice, Exod. 21. 14. Thou shalt take him from my Altar that he may die. And it is yet farther observable, that the only two Precepts which the Scripture mentions, as given to Noah after the Flood, were both in relation to this sin; that of not eating blood Gen. 9. 4. being a ceremony, to beget in Men

Sunday a greater horror of this sin of Murder, and X. so intended for the preventing of it. The other was for the punishment of it, Gen. 9. 6. He that sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed; and the reason of this strictness is added in the next words, For in the Image of God made he man; where you see that this sin is not only an injury to our brother, but even the highest contempt and despite towards God himself, for it is the defacing of his Image, which he hath stamped upon Man. Nay yet further, it is the usurping of God's proper right and authority. For it is God alone, that hath right to dispose of the Life of Man; 'twas he alone that gave it, and it is he alone that hath power to take it away; but he that murders a Man, does, as it were, wrest this power out of God's hand, which is the highest pitch of rebellious presumption.

The great punishment attending it.

15. And as the sin is great, so likewise is the punishment; we see it frequently very great and remarkable, even in this World; (besides those most fearful effects of it in the next) blood not only cries, but it cries for vengeance, and the great God of recompences, as he styles himself, will not fail to hear it: very many examples the Scripture gives us of this: Ahab and Jezebel that murdered innocent Naboth, for greediness of his Vineyard, were themselves slain, and the Dogs licked their blood in the place where they had had shed his, as you may read in that story; Sunday so Absalom, that slew his brother Ammon, af- X. ter he had committed that sin, fell into another, that of rebellion against his King and Father, and in it miserably perished. Ra- chab and Baanah, that slew Ishbesheth, were themselves put to death, and that by the very Person they thought to endear by it. Many more instances might be given of this out of the Sacred Story, and many also out of Humane, there have been no Age but hath yielded multitudes of Examples of this kind, so that every Man may furnish himself out of the Observations of his own time.

16. And it is worth our Notice, what The strange strange, and even miraculous Means it hath discoveries often pleased God to use, for the discovery of it.
 of this sin; the very brute creatures have often been made instruments of it; nay, often the extreme Horror of a Man's own Conscience hath made him betray himself: so that 'tis not any closeness a man uses in the acting of this sin, that can secure him from the vengeance of it; for he can never shut out his own conscience, that will in spite of him be privy to the fact, and that very often proves the means of discovering it to the world; or if it should not do that, yet it will sure act Revenge on him, it will be such a Hell within him, as will be worse than death: This we have seen in many, who after the commission of this sin, have never been able to enjoy a Q minutes

Sunday minutes rest, but have had that intolerable X. anguish of mind, that they have chosen to be their own murderers rather than live in it.
 These are the usual effects of this sin even in this world, but those in another are yet more dreadful, where surely the highest degrees of torment belong to this high pitch of wickedness; for if as our Saviour tells us, Matth.
 5.22. Hell fire be the portion of him that shall but call his Brother Fool, what degree of those burnings can we think proportiona-ble to this so much greater an injury?

We must watch diligently against all approaches of this sin.

17. The consideration of all this ought to possess us with the greatest horror, and abomination of this sin, and to make us extremely watchful of our selves, that we never fall into it, and to that end to prevent all those occasions which may insensibly draw us into this Pit. I mentioned at first several things which are wont to be originals of it, and at those we must begin, if we will surely guard our selves. If therefore thou wilt be sure never to kill a man in thy rage, be sure never to be in that rage, for if thou permittest thy self to that, thou canst have no security against the other, anger being a madness that suffers us not to consider, or know what we do when it has once possessed us. Therefore when thou findest thy self begin to be inflamed, think betimes whither this may lead thee, if thou lettest loose to it, and immediately put the bridle upon this headstrong strong passion; so again, if thou wilt be sure thy malice shall not draw thee to it, be sure never to harbour one malicious thought in thy heart, for if it once settle there, it will gather such strength, that within a while thou wilt be perfectly under the power of it, so that it may lead thee even to this horrible sin at its pleasure; be therefore careful at the very first approach of this treacherous guest, to shut the doors against it, never to let it enter thy mind; so also if thou wilt be sure thy covetousness, thy ambition, thy lust, or any other sinful desire shall not betray thee to it, be sure thou never permit any of them to bear any sway with thee, for if they get the dominion, as they will soon do, if they be once entertain'd in the heart, they will be past thy controul, and hurry thee to this or any other sin, that may serve their ends. In like manner, if thou wouldst not be guilty of any of the mortaleffects of thy neighbours drunkenness, be sure not to intice him to it, nor accompany him at it, and to that purpose do not allow thy self in the same practice, for if thou do, thou wilt be labouring to get company at it. Lastly, If thou wilt not be guilty of the murder committed by another, take heed thou never give any encouragement to it, or contribute any thing to that hatred, or contention, that may be the cause of it. For when thou hast either kindled or blowed the fire, what knowest thou whom

it

Sunday it may consume? Bring always as much water as thou canst, to quench, but never bring one drop of Oil to encrease the flame. The like may be said of all other occasions of this sin not here mentioned; and this careful preserving our selves from these, is the only sure way to keep us from this sin: therefore as ever thou wouldst keep thy self innocent from the great offence, guard thee warily from all such In-lets, those steps and approaches towards it.

a great injury.*

18. But although murder be the greatest, yet it is not the only Injury that may be done to the Body of our Neighbour; there are others which are also of a very high nature; the next in degree to this, is Maiming him, depriving him of any Member, or at least of the use of it, and this is a very great wrong and mischief to him, as we may discern by the Judgment of God himself, in the case of the bond-servant, who should by his Master's means lose a Member, Exod. 21.26. the freedom of his whole life was thought but a reasonable recompence for it. He shall let him go free, saith the Text, for his eye; nay, though it were a less considerable part, if it were but a tooth, which of all other may be lost with the least damage, yet the same amends was to be made him, Verse 27.

That which every Man dreads for himself.

19. But we need no other way of measuring this injury, than the judgment of every Man in his own case; how much does every man man dread the loss of a limb? So that if he be by any accident or disease, in danger of it, he thinks no pains or cost too much to preserve it. And then, how great an Injustice, how contrary to that great rule of doing as we would be done to, is it, for a Man to do that to another, which he so unwillingly suffers himself.

But if the Person be poor, one that must labour for his living, the Injury is yet greater: It is such, as may in effect, amount to the former sin of Murder; for as the Wise Man says, Ecclus. 24. 21. The poor man's bread is his life, and he that deprives him thereof, is a blood-shedder. And therefore he that deprives him of the means of getting his Bread, by disabling him from labour, is surely no less guilty. In the law it was permitted to every Man that had sustained such a damage by his Neighbour, to require the Magistrate to inflict the like on him, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, as it is, Exod. 21. 24.

20. And though unprofitable revenge be not now allowed to us Christians, yet sure it is the part of every one who hath done this injury, to make what satisfaction lies in his power; 'tis true, he cannot restore a Limb again (which by the way should make men wary how they do those mischiefs which it is so impossible for them to repair) but yet he may satisfy for some of the ill effects of that loss. If that have brought the man to want

Sunday and penury, he may, nay he must, if he
 X. have but the least ability, relieve and support him, yea, though it be by his own extraordinary labour; for if it be a duty of us all to be eyes to the blind, and feet to the lame, as Job speaks, much more must we be so to them whom our selves have made blind and lame. Therefore whoever hath done this injury to any of his poor brethren, let him know he is bound to do all that is possible towards the repairing of it? if he do not, every new suffering that the poor Man's wants bring upon him, becomes a new charge and accusation against him, at the tribunal of the just Judge.

and stripes injuries also.*

12. There are yet other degrees of injury to the Body of our Neighbour. I shall mention only two more, wounds and stripes; a man may wound another, which though it finally cause loss neither of life nor limb, is yet an endangering of both; and the like may be said of stripes; both of which however are very painful at the present, nay perhaps very long after; and pain of all temporal evils, is to be accounted the greatest, for it is not only an evil in it self, but it is such an one, that permits us not, whilest we are under it, to enjoy any other good; a man in pain having no taste of any the greatest delights: if any man despise these, as light injuries, let him again ask himself, how he would like it, to have his own body slasht or bruised, and put to pass under those painful Sunday means of cure, which are many times necessary in such cases? I presume there is no Man would willingly undergo this from another, and why then shouldst thou offer it to him? X.

22. The truth is, this strange cruelty to others, is the effect of a great Pride, and haughtiness of heart: we look upon others with such contempt, that we think it no matter how they are used; we think they must bear blows from us, when in the meantime we are so tender of our selves, that we cannot hear the least word of disparagement, but we are all on a flame. The provocations to these injuries are commonly so slight, that did not this inward pride dispose us to such an angrieness of humour that we take fire at every thing, it were impossible we should be moved by them. Nay, some are advanced to such a wantonness of cruelty, that without any provocation at all, in cool blood as they say, they can thus wrong their poor brethren, and make it part of their pastime and recreation to cause pain to others. Thus some tyrannous humours take such a pleasure in tormenting those under their power, that they are glad when they can but find a pretence to punish them, and then do it without all moderation: and others will set Men together by the ears, only that they may have the sport of seeing the scuffle; like the old Ro-

Sunday mans, that made it one of their publick X. sports, to see men kill one another ; and sure we have as little Christianity as they, if we can take delight in such spectacles, 23. This savageness and cruelty of mind is so unbecoming the nature of a Man, that he is not allowed to use it even to his Beast ; how intolerable is it then towards those, that are of the same nature, and which is more, are heirs of the same eternal hopes with us ?

 They that shall thus transgress against their neighbours in any of the foregoing particulars, or whatever else is hurtful to the Body, are unjust Persons, want even this lowest sort of Justice, the Negative to their Neighbours, in respect of their Bodies.

24. Neither can any Man excuse himself, by saying what he has done, was only in return of some injury offered him by the other ; for suppose it be so, that he have indeed received some considerable wrong, yet cannot he be his own Revenger without Injury to that Man, who is not, by being thine enemy, become thy vassal or slave, to do with him what thou list ? Thou hast never the more right of dominion over him, because he hath done thee wrong, and therefore if thou hadst no power over his Body before, 'tis certain thou hast none now, and therefore thou art not only Uncharitable (which yet were sin enough to damn thee) but unjust in every act of violence thou dost to him, Nay, this Injustice

Injustice ascends higher, even to God himself, who hath reserved Vengeance as his own peculiar right, Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord, Rom. 12. 19. and then he that will act revenge for himself, what does he, but inroach upon this special Right and Prerogative of God, snatch the Sword, as it were, out of his hand, as if he knew better how to wield it? Which is at once a robbery, and contempt of the Divine Majesty.

SUNDAY XI.

Of Justice about the Possessions of our Neighbour; against injuring him, as concerning his Wife, his Goods. Of Oppression, Theft. Of paying of Debts, &c.

Sect. I. THE Third Part of Negative Justice concerns the Possessions of our Neighbours: what I mean by Possessions, I cannot better explain, than by referring you to the Tenth Commandment, the end of which is to bridle all covetous appetites and desires towards the Possessions of our Neighbour. There we find reckoned up, not only his House, Servants and Cattle, which may all pass under the one general name of his Goods or Riches, but particularly his Wife, as a principal

His Possessions.

Sunday cipal part of his possessions, and therefore XI. when we consider this duty of Negative Justice, in respect of the possessions of our Neighbour, we must apply it to both, his Wife, as well as his Goods.

His Wife. 2. The especial and peculiar right that every Man hath in his Wife is so well known, that it were vain to say any thing in proof of it; the great impatience that every husband hath to have this right of his invaded, shews that it is sufficiently understood in the world, and therefore none that does this injury to another, can be ignorant of the greatness of it. The corrupting of a Man's Wife, enticing her to a strange bed, is by all acknowledged to be the worst sort of theft, infinitely beyond that of the Goods.

The enticing a man's Wife the greatest injustice.

To the Woman.

3. Indeed there is in this one, a heap of the greatest injustices together; some towards the Woman, and some towards the Man: Towards the Woman there are the greatest imaginable; it is that injustice to her Soul, which was before mentioned as the highest of all others, 'tis the robbing her of her innocency, and setting her in a course of the horriest wickedness (no less than lust and perjury together) from which it is probable she may never return, and then it proves the damning of her eternally. Next it is in respect of this world the robbing her of her credit, making her abhorred and despised; and her very name a reproach among all all men; and besides it is the depriving her Sunday of all that happiness of life, which arises XI. from the mutual kindness and affection that is between Man and Wife, instead whereof this brings in a loathing and abhorring of each other, from whence flow multitudes of mischiefs, too many to rehearse, in all which the Man hath his share also.

4. But besides those, there are to him ^{To the} many and high injustices; for it is first the ^{Man.} robbing him of that, which of all other things he accounts most precious, the love and faithfulness of his Wife, and that also wherein he hath such an incommunicable right, that himself cannot, if he would, make it over to any other; and therefore sure it cannot without the utmost injustice be torn from him by any. Nor is this all, but it is farther the ingulfing him (if ever he come to discern it) in that most tormenting passion of jealousy, which is of all others the most painful, and which oft puts Men upon the most desperate attempts, it being as Solomon says, Prov. 6. 34. The rage of a man. It is yet farther, the bringing upon him all that scorn and contempt which by the unjust measures of the world fall on them, which are so abused, and which is by many esteemed the most insufferable part of the wrong; and though it be true, that it is very unjust he should fall under reproach, only because he is injured, yet unless the world could be new moulded

Sunday moulded it will certainly be his Lot, and XI. therefore it adds much to the Injury. Again, this may indeed be a Robbery in the usual sense of the word, for perhaps it may be the thrusting in the Child of the Adulterer into his Family, to share both in the maintenance and Portions of his own Children: and this is an arrant Theft: first in respect of the Man, who surely intends not the providing for another man's child, and then in respect of the children, who are by that means defrauded of so much as that goes away with. And therefore, whosoever hath this circumstance of the sin to repent of, cannot do it effectually, without restoring to the Family, as much as he hath by this means robb'd it of.

*The most
ble.*

5. All this put together, will sure make this the greatest and most provoking Injury that can be done to a Man, and (which heightens it yet more) it is that, for which a Man can never make Reparations; for unless it be in the circumstance before mentioned, there is no part of this Sin, wherein that can be done; to this purpose it is observable in the Jewish Law, that the Thief was appointed to restore fourfold, and that freed him; but the Adulterer having no possibility of making any Restitution, any Satisfaction, he must pay his Life for his offence, Lev. 20. 10. And tho' now-adays Adulterers speed better, live many days to renew their guilt, and perhaps to laugh at those, whom they have thus thus injured, yet let them be assured, there must one day be a sad reckoning, and that whether they repent or not; If by God's grace they do come to repentance, they will then find this to be no cheap sin, many anguishes of soul, terrors and perplexities of conscience, groans and tears it must cost them; and indeed, were a man's whole life spent in these Penitential Exercises, 'twere little enough to wipe off the guilt of any one single act of this kind: what overwhelming sorrows then are requisite for such a trade of this sin, as too many drive? Certainly it is so great a task, that it is highly necessary for all that are so concerned, to set to it immediately, lest they want time to go through with it, for let no Man flatter himself, that the guilt of a course and habit of such a sin can be washed away with a single act of repentance; no, he must proportion the repentance to the fault, and as one hath been a habit and course, so must the other also. And then how strange a madness is it for men to run into this sin, (and that with such painful pursuits, as many do) which he knows must at the best hand, that is, supposing he do repent of it, cost him thus dear? But then if he do not repent, infinitely dearer: it loses him all his title to Heaven, that place of purity, and gives him his portion in the lake of fire where the burnings of his lust shall end in those everlasting burnings. For how closely soever he hath

XI.

Sunday hath acted this sin, be it so that he may have XI said with the adulterer in Job 25. 15. No eye seeth me, yet 'tis sure he could not in the greatest obscurity shelter himself from God's sight, with whom the darkness is no darkness, Psalms 139. 12. And he it is, who hath expressly threatned to judge this sort of offenders, Heb. 13. 4. Adulterers God will judge. God grant that all that live in this foul guilt, may so seasonably, and so thoroughly judge themselves, that they may prevent that severe and dreadful judgment of his.

His goods. 6. The second thing to which this Negative justice to our Neighbour's Possessions reacheth, is his Goods, under which general word is contained all those several sorts of things, as House, Land, Cattle, Money, and the like, in which he hath a right and property; these we are by the rule of this justice to suffer him to enjoy without seeking, either to work him damage in any of them, or to get any of them to our selves: I make a difference between these two, because there may be two several grounds or motives of this injustice; the one malice, the other covetousness.

Malicious injustice. 7. The malicious Man desires to work his Neighbour's mischief, though he get nothing by it himself: 'tis frequently seen that men will make havock and spoil of the goods of one, to whom they have a grudge, though they never design to get any thing to themselves selves by it, but only the pleasure of doing a Sunday spite to the other. This is a most hellish hu- XI. mour, directly answerable to that of the Devil, who bestows all his pains and industry not to bring in any good to himself, but only to ruine and undo others: and how contrary it is to all rules of justice, you may see by the Precept given by God to the Jews concerning the goods of an enemy; where they were so far from being allowed a liberty of spoil and destruction, that they are expressly bound to prevent it, Exod. 23. 4, 5. If thou meet thine enemies Ox, or his Ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again: If thou see the Ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, and wouldst forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him: Where you see it is a debt we owe to our very enemies, to prevent that loss and damage, which by any accident he is in danger of? and that even with some labour and pains to our selves. How horrible an injustice is it then, purposely to bring that loss and damage on him? Whoever is guilty of this, let him never excuse himself by saying he hath not enriched himself by the spoil of his Neighbour, that he hath nothing of it cleaves to his finger, for sure this malicious injustice is no less a fault than the covetous one: nay, I suppose in respect of the principle and cause, from which it flows, it may be greater, this hatred of another being worse than the immoderate love

Sunday love of our selves; whoever hath thus mischieft his Neighbour, he is as much bound to repair the Injury, to make satisfaction for the loss, as if he had enriched himself by it.

XI.

Injustice.*

8. But on the other side, let not the covetous defrauder therefore judge his sin light, because there is another, that in some one respect outweighs it, for perhaps in others his may cast the scales; certainly it does in this one, that he that is unju for greediness of gain, is like to multiply more acts of this sin, than he that is so out of malice: for 'tis impossible any Man should have so many objects of his Malice, as he may have of his Covetousness, there is no Man at so general a defiance with all mankind, that he hates every body; but the covetous man hath as many objects of his Vice, as there be things in the world he counts valuable. But I shall not longer stand upon this comparison, 'tis sure they are both great and crying sins, and that is ground enough of abhorring each: Let us descend now to the several branches of this sort of Covetous Injustice; 'tis true, they may all bear the name of Robbery, or Theft, for in effect they are all so, yet for methods sake it will not be amiss to distinguish them into these Three; Oppression, Theft, and Deceit.

Oppression.

9. By Oppression, I mean that open and bare fac'd Robbery of seizing upon the Possessions of others, and owning and avowing the the doing so. For the doing of this there are several instruments; as first, That of power, by which many Nations and Princes have been turned out of their Rights, and many private Men out of their Estates: Sometimes again, Law is made the instrument of it; he that covets his neighbours lands or goods, pretends a claim to them, and then by corrupting of Justice, by Bribes and Gifts, or else over-ruling it by greatness and authority, gets judgment on his side; this is a high oppression, and of the worst sort, thus to make the Law, which was intended for the protection and defence of mens Rights, to be the means of overthrowing them; and it is a very heavy guilt, that lies both on him that procures, and on him that pronounces such a sentence; yea, and on the Lawyer too, that pleads such a cause, for by so doing he assists in the oppression. Sometimes again, the very necessities of the oppressed, are the means of his oppression, thus it is in the case of Extortion, and griping Usury: A Man in extreme want of Money, and this gives opportunity to the Extortioner to wrest unconscionably from him, to which the poor Man is forced to yield, to supply his present wants. And thus also it is often with exacting Landlords, who, when their poor Tenants know not how to provide themselves elsewhere, rack and skrew them beyond the worth of the thing. All these, and many the

like

Sunday
XI.

Sunday like are but several ways of acting this one XI. sin of Oppression, which becomes yet the more hainous, by how much the more helpless the Person is that is thus oppressed, therefore the oppression of the widow and fatherless, is in Scripture mentioned as the height of this sin.

God's vengeance against it.

10. It is indeed a most crying guilt, and that against which God hath threatned his heavy vengeance, as we read in divers Texts of Scripture; thus it is, Ezek. 18. 12. He that hath oppressed the poor, and hath spoiled by violence, he shall surely die, his blood shall be upon him; and the same sentence is repeated against him, verse 18. Indeed God hath so peculiarly taken upon him the protection of the poor and oppressed, that he is engaged as it were in honour to be their avenger; and accordingly, Psalm 12. We see God solemnly declare his resolution of appearing for them, verse 5. For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the Lord, I will set him in safety from him. The advice therefore of Solomon is excellent, Prov. 22. 22. Rob not the poor, because he is poor; neither oppress the afflicted in the gate, for the Lord will plead their cause, and will spoil the soul of those that spoiled them; they are like in the end to have little joy of the booty it brings them in, when it thus engages God against them.

11. The

11. The second sort of this Injustice is ~~Sunday~~ Theft, and of that also there are two kinds, ^{XI.} the one the withholding what we should ^{Theft.} pay, and the other taking from our Neighbour what is already in his possession.

12. Of the first sort, is the not paying of Debts, whether such as we have borrowed, ^{Not paying what we borrow.} or such as by our own voluntary Promise are become our Debts; for they are equally due to him that can lay either of these claims to them, and therefore the withholding of either of them, is a Theft. a keeping from my Neighbour that which is his; yet the former of them is rather the more injurious, for by that I take from him that which he once actually had, (be it Money or whatever else) and so make him worse than I found him. This is a very great, and very common Injustice. Men can now a-days, with as great confidence deny him that asks a Debt, as they do him that asks an Alms; nay, many times 'tis made matter of quarrel for a Man to demand his own: Besides the many attendances the Creditor is put to in pursuit of it, are a yet further Injury to him, by wasting his time, and taking him off from other business, and so he is made a loser that way too. This is so great Injustice, that I see not how a Man can look upon any thing he possesses as his own right, whilst he thus denies another his. It is the duty of every Man in debt, rather to strip himself of all, and cast himself

Sunday again naked upon God's Providence, than XI. thus to feather his nest with the spoils of his Neighbours. And surely it would prove the more thriving course, not only in respect of the Blessing which may be expected upon justice, compared with the curse that attends the contrary, but even in worldly prudence also ; for he that defers paying of debts, will at last be forc'd to it by Law, and that upon much worse terms than he might have done it voluntarily, with a greater charge, and with such a loss of his credit, that afterward in his greatest necessities he will not know where to borrow. But the sure way for a Man to secure himself from the guilt of this injustice, is never to borrow more than he knows he hath means to repay, unless it be of one, who knowing his disability, is willing to run the hazard. Otherwise he commits this sin at the very time of borrowing ; for he takes that from his Neighbour upon promise of paying, which he knows he is never likely to restore to him, which is a flat robbery.

*What we
 for.*

The same justice which ties Men to pay their own debts, ties also every Surety to pay those debts of others for which he stands bound, in case the Principal either cannot, or will not : for, by being bound, he hath made it his own debt, and must in all justice answer it to the Creditor, who, it's presumed, was drawn to lend on confidence of his security, and therefore is directly cheated and betrayed betrayed by him, if he see him not satisfied. Sunday XI.

 If it be thought hard that a Man should pay for that which he never received benefit by; I shall yield it, so far as to be just matter of wariness to every Man, how he enter into such engagements, but it can never be made an excuse for the breaking them.

As for the other sort of debt, that which is brought upon a Man by his own voluntary promise, that also cannot without great injustice be withholden; for it is now the Man's right, and then 'tis no matter, by what means it came to be so. Therefore we see David makes it part of the description of a just Man, Psal. 15. 4. That he keeps his Promises, yea, though they are made to his own disadvantage: And surely, he is utterly unfit to ascend to that holy Hill, there spoken of, either as that signifies the Church here, or Heaven hereafter, that does not punctually observe this part of Justice. To this sort of Debt, may be reduced the Wages of the Servant, the Hire of the Labourer; and the withholding of these is a great sin, and the Complaints of those that are thus injured, ascend up to God. Behold (saith S. James) the hire of the labourers which have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth, and the cries of them that have reaped, are entred into the ear of the Lord of Sabbaoth: Deut. 24. 14, 15. We find a strict command in this matter, Thou shalt not oppress

Sunday XII. oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, at his day shalt thou give him his hire, neither shall the Sun go down upon it. for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it, lest he cry against thee to the Lord, and it be sin unto thee. This is one of those loud clamorous sins, which will not cease crying, till it bring down God's vengeance; and therefore, though thou hast no justice to thy poor Brother, yet have at least so much mercy to thy self, as not to pull down judgments on thee by thus wronging him.

SUNDAY XII.

Of Theft; Stealing; of Deceit in Trust, in Traffick; of Restitution, &c.

*Stealing the Goods
of our Neighbour.*

SECT. I. THE second part of Theft, is the taking from our Neighbour that which is already in his possession: and this may be done either more violently, and openly, or else more closely and sliely; the first is the manner of those that rob on the way, or plunder houses, where by force they take the Goods of their Neighbour: the other is the way of the pilfering Thief, that takes away a Man's goods unknown to him; I shall not dispute which of these is the worst, 'tis enough that they are both such Acts of Injustice, justice as make men odious to God, unfit Sunday for humane society, and betray the actors to XII.

 the greatest mischiefs, even in this World, death it self being by Law appointed the reward of it; and there are few that follow this trade long, but at last meet with that fruit of it. I am sure 'tis madness for any to believe he shall always steal securely, for he is to contend with the Industry of all those whom he shall thus injure, whose Losses will quicken their wits for the finding him out, and which is infinitely more, he is to struggle with the justice of God, which doth usually pursue such men to destruction, even in this world; witness the many strange discoveries that have been made of the craftiest Thieves. But, however, if he were secure from the vengeance here, I am sure nothing but repentance and reformation can secure him from the vengeance of it hereafter. And now when these dangers are weighed, 'twill sure appear, that the Thief makes a pitiful bargain; he steals his Neighbour's Money, or Cattle, and in exchange for it, he must pay his Life, or his Soul, perhaps both; and if the whole world be too mean a Price for a Soul, as he tells us, Mark 8. 36. who best knew the value of them, having himself bought them, what a strange madness is it, to barter them away for every petty trifle. as many do. who have got such a habit of stealing, that not the meanest, worthless thing can

Sunday escape their fingers? under this Head of XII. Theft, may be ranked the Receivers of stoln Goods, whether those that take them, as partners in the Theft, or those that buy them, when they know, or believe, they are stoln. This, many (that pretend much to abhor theft) are guilty of, when they can by it, buy the thing a little cheaper than the common rate. And here also comes in the concealing of any goods a Man finds of his Neighbours, which, whosoever restores not, if he know, or can learn out the owner, is no better than a Thief; for he withholds from his Neighbour that which properly belongs to him: And sure 'twill not be uncharitable to say, That he that will do this, would likewise commit the grosser Theft, were he by that no more in danger of Law, than in this he is.

Deceit.

The third part of Injustice is Deceit, and in that there may be as many acts, as there are occasions of Intercourse and Dealing between Man and Man.

2. It were impossible to name them all, but I think they will be contained under these Two general Deceits, in Matters of Trust, and in matters of Traffick or Bargaining: unless it be that of Gaming, which therefore, here by the way, I must tell you, is as much a Fraud and Deceit, as any of the rest.

In Trust.

3. He that deceives a Man, in any Trust that is committed to him, is guilty of a great Injustice, and that the most treacherous sort of

Sunday
XII.

of one, it is the joyning of two great sins in one, defrauding and promise-breaking; for in all trusts, there is a promise implied, if not exprest; for the very accepting of the trust, contains under it a promise of fidelity: These Trusts are broken sometimes to the living, sometimes to the dead; to the living there are many ways of doing it, according to the several kinds of the Trust; sometimes a Trust is more general, like that of Potiphar to Joseph, Gen. 39. 4. a Man commits to another all that he hath, and thus Guardians of Children, and sometimes Stewards are intrusted; sometimes again it is more limited, and restrained to some one special thing: a Man intrusts another to bargain or deal for him in such a particular, or he puts some one thing into his hands, to manage and dispose: Thus among Servants 'tis usual for one to be intrusted with one part of the Master's goods, and another with another part of them. Now in all these, and the like Cafes, whosoever acts not for him that intrusts him, with the same faithfulness, that he would for himself, but shall either carelessly lose, or prodigally imbezzle the things committed to him, or else convert them to his own use, he is guilty of this great sin of betraying a Trust to the living. In like manner, he that being intrusted with the execution of a dead Man's Testament, acts not according to the known intention of the dead Man, but enriches himself

Sunday self by what is assigned to others, he is guilty XII. of this sin, in respect of the dead, which is so much the greater, by how much the dead hath no means of remedy and redress, as the living may have. It is a kind of robbing of Graves, which is a Theft, of which Men naturally have such a horror, that he must be a very hardned Thief, that can attempt it. But either of these frauds are made yet more hainous, when either God, or the poor are immediately concern'd in it; that is, when any thing is committed to a Man, for the uses either of Piety, or Charity: This adds sacrilege to both the fraud and the Treachery, and so gives him title to all those curses that attend those several sins, which are so heavy, that he that for the present gain will adventure on them, makes as ill; nay, a much worse bargain than Gebazi, 2 King 5. 27. who by getting the Raiment of Naaman, got his Leprosie too.

In Traffick. 4. The second sort of Fraud is in matters of Traffick and Bargain, wherein there may be deceit, both in the Seller and Buyer; that of the Seller, is commonly either in concealing the faults of the commodity, or else in over-rating it.

The Sellers concealing the faults of his Ware. 5. The ways of concealing its faults, are ordinarily these, either first by denying that it hath any such fault; nay, perhaps commending it for the direct contrary quality, and this is down right lying, and so adds that

fin

fin to the other, and if that lye be confirmed by an Oath, as it is too usually; then the yet greater guilt of Perjury comes in also; and then, what a heap of sins is here gathered together? Abundantly enough to sink a poor soul to destruction, and all this only to skrew a little more Money out of his Neighbour's Pocket, and that sometimes so very little, that 'tis a miracle, that any man that thinks he has a Soul, can set it at so miserable a contemptible price. A second means of concealing, is by using some Art to the thing, to make it look fair, and to hide the faults of it, and this is acting a lye, though it be not speaking one, which amounts to the same thing, and has surely in this case as much of the intention of cheating and defrauding, as the most impudent forswearing can have. A third means is the picking out ignorant Chapmen: This is, I believe, an Art too well known among Tradesmen, who will not bring out their faulty Wares to men of skill, but keep them to put off to such, whose unskilfulness may make them passable with them. And this is still the same deceit with the former; for it all tends to the same end, the cozening and defrauding of the Chapman, and then it is not much odds, whether I make use of my own Art, or his Weakness, for the purpose. This is certain, he that will do justly, must let his Chapman know what he buys; and if his own Skill enable him not to judge, (nay,

Sunday
XII.

Sunday (nay, if he do not actually find out the fault)
XII. thou art bound to tell it him, otherwise thou makest him pay for somewhat which is not there, he presuming there is that good quality in it, which thou knowest is not, and therefore thou mayest as honestly take his Money for some goods of another Man's, which thou knowest thou canst never put into his possession, which I suppose no Man will deny to be an arrant cheat. To this head of concealment may be referred that deceit of false weights and measures, for that is the concealing from the buyer a defect in the quantity, as the other was in the quality of the commodity, and is again the making him pray for what he hath not. This sort of fraud is pointed at particularly by Solomon, Prov. 11. 1. with this note upon it, that it is an abomination to the Lord.

His over-rating it.

6. The second part of fraud in the Seller, lies in over-rating the Commodity; though he have not disguised or concealed the faults of it, and so have dealt fairly in that respect, yet if he set an unreasonable price upon it, he defrauds the buyer. I call that an unreasonable price, which exceeds the true worth of the thing, considered with those moderate gains, which all Tradesmen are presumed to be allowed in the Sale: whatever is beyond this, must in all likelihood be fetcht in by some of these ways: as first, by taking advantage of the Buyers ignorance in the value of the thing, which is the same with doing Sunday it in the goodness, which hath already been XII. shewed to be a deceit; or secondly, by taking advantage of his necessity; Thou findest a Man hath present and urgent need of such a thing, and therefore takest this opportunity to set the Dice upon him: but this is that very sin of Extortion, and Oppression spoken of before; for it is sure, nothing can justly raise the price of any thing, but either its becoming dearer to thee; or its being some way better in its self; but the necessity of thy Brother causes neither of these; his nakedness doth not make the Cloaths thou fellest him, stand thee in ever the more, neither doth it make them any way better; and therefore to rate them ever the higher is to change the way of trading, and sell even the Wants and Necessities of thy Neighbour, which sure is a very unlawful vocation. Or thirdly, it may be by taking advantage of the Indiscretion of the Chapman. A Man perhaps earnestly fancies such a thing, and then suffers that fancy to over rule his reason, that he resolves to have it upon any terms. If thou findest this in him, and thereupon raisest thy rate, this is to make him buy his folly, which is of all others the dearest purchase; 'tis sure his fancy adds nothing to the real value no more than his necessity did in the former case, and therefore should not add to the price. He therefore that will deal justly
of

Sunday justly in the business of selling, must not
XII. catch at all advantages, which the temper of his Chapman may give, but consider soberly what the thing is worth, and what he would afford it for to another, of whom he had no such advantage, and accordingly rate it to him at no higher a price.

Fraud in the Buyer.

7. On the Buyers part there are not ordinarily so many opportunities of Fraud; yet it is possible a Man may sometimes happen to sell somewhat, the worth whereof he is not acquainted with, and then it will be as unjust for the Buyer to make gain by his ignorance, as in the other case it was for the Seller: But that which often falls out, is the case of necessity, which may as probably fall on the Seller's side, as the Buyers. A Man's wants compel him to sell, and permit him not to stay to make the best Bargain, but force him to take the first offer, and here for the buyer to grate upon him, because he sees him in that strait, is the same fault which I before shewed it to be in the Seller.

Many Temptations to Deceit in Traffick.

8. In this whole business of Traffick there are so many opportunities of deceit, that a Man had need fence himself with a very firm resolution; nay, love of Justice, or he will be in danger to fall under temptation; for as the Wise Man speaks, Eccl. 27.9. As a Nail sticks fast between the joinings of the Stones; so doth Sin stick close between buying and selling: It is so interwoven with all Trades,

so

so mixt with the very first principles and grounds of them, that it is taught together with them, and so becomes part of the Art; so that he is now adays scarce thought fit to manage a Trade, that wants it, while he that hath most of this Black Art of defrauding, applauds and hugs himself; nay, perhaps boasts to others, how he hath overreach'd his Neighbour.

What an intolerable shame is this, that we Christians, who are by the Precepts of our Master, set to those higher duties of Charity, should instead of practising them, quite unlearn those common rules of Justice, which meer Nature teaches? For, I think, I may say, there are none of those several branches of Injustice, towards the possessions of our Neighbour, which would not be adjudged to be so by any sober Heathen: so that, as St. Paul tells those of the Circumcision, that the Name of God was blasphemed among the Gentiles, by that unagreeable that was betwixt their Practice, and their Law, Rom. 1. 24. So now may it be said of us, that the Name of Christ is blasphemed among the Turks and Heathens, by the vile and scandalous lives of us, who call our selves Christians, and particularly in this sin of Justice; for shame let us at last endeavour to wipe off this reproach from our profession, by leaving these practices; to which methinks this one single consideration should be enough to perswade us.

the way to enrich a

among which, one there is of such a nature, as may prevail with the arrantest worldling, and that is, that this course doth not really tend to the enriching of him; there is a secret curse goes along with it, which like a Canker eats out all the benefit was expected from it. This no Man can doubt, that believes the Scripture, where there are multitudes of Texts to this purpose: thus Prov. 22. 16. He that oppresseth the poor to encrease his riches, shall surely come to want. So Habak. 2. 6. Woe to him that encreaseth that which is not his! how long? And he that ladeth himself with thick Clay, shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee, and awake that shall vex thee? And thou shalt be for booties to them. This is commonly the fortune of those that spoil and deceive others, they at last meet with some that do the like to them. But the place in Zachary is most full to this purpose, Chap. 5. where under the sign of a flying roll, is signified the curse that goes forth against this sin, Verse, 4. I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of Hosts, and it shall enter into the House of the Thief, and into the house of him that sweareth falsely by my Name, and it shall consume it with the timber thereof, and with the stones thereof. Where you see Theft and Perjury are the two sins, against which this curse is aimed, (and they too often go together in the matter of defrauding) and the nature of this curse is,

to

Sunday

to consume the House, to make an utter destruction of all that belongs to him that is guilty of either of these sins. Thus whilst thou art ravening after thy neighbours goods, or house, thou art but gathering fuel to burn thine own. And the effect of these threatenings of God we daily see in the strange improsperousness of ill gotten estates, which every man is apt enough to observe in other mens cases; he that sees his Neighbour decline in his estate, can presently call to mind, This was gotten by oppression or deceit; yet so sottish are we, so bewicht with the love of gain, that he that makes this observation, can seldom turn it to his own use, is never the less greedy, or unjust himself for that vengeance he discerns upon others.

10. But alas? If thou couldst be sure that thy unjust possessions should not be torn from thee, yet when thou remembrest, how dear thou must pay for them in another world, thou hast little reason to brag of thy prize. Thou thinkest thou hast been very cunning when thou hast over-reacht thy brother; But God knows all this while there is another over-reaching thee and cheating thee of what is infinitely more precious, even thy Soul; the Devil herein deals with thee as Fishers use to do; those that will catch a great Fish, will bait the hook with a less, and so the great one coming with greediness to devour that, is himself taken. So thou that are gaping

Soul eternally.*

ping

Sunday XII. ping to swallow up thy poor brother, and thy self made a prey to that great devourer. And alas? what will it ease thee in Hell that thou hast left wealth behind thee upon the earth, when thou shalt there want that, which the meanest begger here enjoys, even a drop of water to cool thy tongue? Consider this, and from henceforth resolve to imploy all that pains and diligence thou hast used to deceive others, in rescuing thy self from the frauds of the grand deceiver.

The necessity of Restitution.

II. To this purpose it is absolutely necessary, that thou make restitution to all whom thou hast wronged: For as long as thou keepest any thing of the unjust gain, 'tis as it were an earnest penny from the Devil, which gives him full right to thy Soul. But perhaps it may be said, it will not in all cases be possible to make restitution to the wronged party, peradventure he may be dead; in that case then make it to his Heirs, to whom his right descends. But it may further be objected, That he that hath long gone on in a course of fraud, may have injured many, that he cannot now remember, and many, that he hath no means of finding out: in this case all I can advise is this: First, to be as diligent as is possible, both in recalling to mind who they were, and endeavouring to find them out; and when after all thy care, that proves impossible, let thy Restitutions be made to the poor, and that they may not be

be made by halves, be as careful as thou canst Sunday to reckon every the least mite of unjust gain: XII.
but when that cannot exactly be done, as 'tis sure it cannot by those who have multiplied the acts of fraud, yet even there let them make some general measures, whereby to proportion their restitution: as for example, a Tradesman that cannot remember how much he hath cheated in every single parcel, yet may possibly guess in the gross whether he have usually over-reacht to the value of a third, or a fourth part of the wares, and then what proportion soever he thinks he has so defrauded, the same proportion let him now give out of that estate he hath raised by his Trade: but herein it concerns every man to deal uprightly as in the presence of God, and not to make advantage of his own forgetfulness, to the cutting short of the Restitution, but rather go on the other hand, and be sure rather to give too much, than too little. If he do happen to give somewhat over, he need not grudge the charge of such a sin offering, and 'tis sure he will not, if he do heartily desire an atonement. Many other difficulties there may be in this business of restitution, which will not be foreseen, and so cannot now be particularly spoke to; but the more of those there are, the greater horrour ought men to have of running into the sin of injustice, which it will be so difficult, if not impossible for them to repair, and the Sunday more careful ought they to be to mortify that XIII. which is the root of all injustice, to wit, Co-vetousness.

S U N D A Y XIII.

Of false Reports, False Witness, Slanders, Whisperings; Of Scoffing for Infirmities, Calamities, Sins, &c. Of Positive Justice, Truth. Of Lying. Of Envy and Detraction. Of Gratitude, &c.

His Credit. Sect. I. THE Fourth Branch of Negative Justice concerns the Credit of our Neighbours, which we are not to lessen, or impair by any means, particularly not by false Reports. Of false Reports there may be two sorts, the one is when a man says something of his neighbour, which he directly knows to be false, the other when possibly he has some slight surmise, or jealousy of the thing; but that upon such weak grounds, that 'tis as likely to be false as true. In either of these cases, there is a great guilt lies upon the reporter. That there doth so in the first of them, no body will doubt, every one acknowledging that it is the greatest baseness to invent a lye of another; but there is as little reason to question the other, for he that reports a thing as a truth, which is but uncertain, certain, is a lyar also, or if he do not report it as a certainty, but only as a probability, yet then though he be not guilty of the lye, yet he is of the injustice of robbing his Neighbour of his credit; for there is such an aptness in men to believe ill of others, that any the lightest jealousy will, if once it be spread abroad, serve for that purpose; and sure it is a most horrible injustice upon every slight surmise and fancy to hazard the bringing so great an evil upon another; especially when it is considered, that those surmises commonly spring rather from some censoriousness, peevishness, or malice in the surmiser, than from any real fault in the person so suspected.

Sunday
XIII.

2. The manner of spreading the false Reports of both kinds, is not always the same; sometimes it is more open and avowed, sometimes more close and private: the open is many times by false Witnesses before the Courts of Justice: and this not only hurts a man in his credit, but in other respects also: 'tis the delivering him up to the punishment of the Law, and according to the nature of the crime pretended, does him more or less mischief; but if it be of the highest kind, it may concern his life, as we see it did in Naboth's case, 1 Kings 21. How great and crying a sin it is in this respect, as also in that of the Perjury, you may learn from what hath been said of both those sins. I am now False Witnesses.

Sunday
XIII.

to consider it only as it touches the credit ; and to that it is a most grievous wound, thus to have a crime publickly witnessed against one, and such as is scarce curable by any thing that can afterwards be done to clear him, and therefore whoever is guilty of this, doth a most outrageous injustice to his neighbour ; this is that which is expressly forbidden in the Ninth Commandment, and was by God appointed to be punished by the inflicting of the very same suffering upon him, which his false testimony aimed to bring upon the other, Deut. 19. 16.

Publick Slanders.

3. The second open way of spreading these reports, is by a publick and common declaring of them ; though not before the Magistrate, as in the other case, yet in all companies, and before such as are likely to carry it farther, and this is usually done with bitter railings and reproaches, it being an ordinary Art of Slanderers, to revile those whom they slander ; that so by the sharpness of the accusation, they may have the greater impression on the minds of the hearers : this both in respect of the slander, and the railing is a high injury, and both of them such, as debar the committers from Heaven ; thus Psal. 15. where the upright man is described, that shall have his part there, this is one special thing, verse 3. That he slandereth not his neighbour. And for railing, the Apostle in several places reckons it amongst those works of the flesh, flesh, which are to shut men out both from ^{Sunday} the Church here by excommunication, as you ^{XIII.} may see, 1 Cor. 15. 11. and from the Kingdom of God hereafter, as it is 1 Cor. 6. 10.

4. The other more close and private way ^{Whispering.} of spreading such reports is that of the Whisperer, he that goes about from one to another, and privately vents his slanders, not out of an intent by that means to make them less publick, but rather more: this trick of delivering them by way of secret, being the way to make them both more believed, and more spoken of too; for he that receives such a Tale, as a secret from one, thinks to please some body else, by delivering it as a secret to him also; and so it passes from one hand to another, till at last it spread over a whole Town. This sort of slanderer is of all others the most dangerous, for he works in the dark, ties all he speaks to, not to own him as the author; so that whereas in the more publick accusations, the party may have some means of clearing himself, and detecting his accuser, here he shall have no possibility of that, the slander, like a secret poison, works incurable effects, before ever the man discern it. This sin of whispering is by S. Paul mentioned among those great crimes, which are the effects of a reprobate mind, Rom. 1. 29. It is indeed one of the most incurable wounds of this sword of the tongue: the very bane and pest of humane society; and that which not only

XIII. robs single persons of their good names, but oftentimes whole Families, nay publick Societies of men of their peace; what ruines, what confusions hath this one sin wrought in the World? 'tis Solomon's observation, Prov. 18. 28. That a Whisperer separateth chief friends, and sure one may truly say of tongues thus imployed, that they are set on fire of Hell, as S. James saith, Chap. 3. 6.

Several
steps towards this sin.

5. This is such a guilt that we are to beware of all the degrees of approach to it, of which there are several steps; the first is the giving ear to, and cherishing of those that come with slanders, for they that entertain and receive them, encourage them in the practice; for as our common Proverb says, If there were no Receivers, there would be no Thief; so if there were none that would give an ear to tales, there would be no tale bearers. A second step is, the giving too easy credit to them, for this helps them to attain part of their end. They desire to get a general ill opinion of such a man, but the way of doing it must be by causing it, first in particular men: and if thou suffer them to do it in thee, they have so far prospered in their aim. And for thy own part thou doest a great Injustice to thy neighbour, to believe ill of him without a just ground, which the accusation of such a person certainly is not. A third step is the reporting to others, what is thus told thee; by which thou makest thy self directly ly a party in the slander, and after thou hast ^{Sunday} unjustly withdrawn from thy Neighbour ^{XIII.} thy own good opinion, endeavourest to rob him also of that of others. This is very little below the guilt of the first whisperer, and tends as much to the ruin of our Neighbour's credit. And these several degrees, have so close a dependance one upon another, that it will be very hard for him that allows himself the first, to escape the other, and indeed he that can take delight to hear his Neighbour defamed, may well be presumed of so malicious a humour, that 'tis not likely he should stick at spreading the slander. He therefore that will preserve his innocence in this matter, must never in the least degree cherish or countenance any that brings these false reports. And it is not less necessary to his peace, than to his innocency; for he that once entertains them, must never expect quiet, but shall be continually incited, and stirred up even against his nearest and dearest relations; so that this whisperer, and slanderer is to be lookt on by all, as a common enemy, he being so as well to those to whom, as of whom he speaks.

6. But besides this grosser way of slandering, there is another, whereby we may impair and lessen the credit of our Neighbour, ^{Despising and Scoffing.} and that is by contempt and despising one common effect whereof is scoffing and deriding him. This is very injurious to a man's reputation.

Sunday reputation. For the generality of men do XIII. rather take up Opinions upon trust, than judgment; and therefore if they see a man despised and scorned, they will be apt to do the like. But besides this effect of it, there is a present injustice in the very act of despising and scorning others. There are ordinarily but Three things which are made the occasions of it, (unless it be with such, with whom Vertue and Godliness are made the most reproachful things, and such despising is not only an injury to our Neighbour, but even to God himself, for whose sake it is that he is so despised) those Three are, first, the Infirmities; secondly, the Calamities; thirdly, the Sins of a Man; and each of these are very far from being ground of our triumphing over him.

For Infirmities.

7. First, For Infirmities, be they either of body or mind, the deformity and unhand-somness of the one, or the weakness and folly of the other, they are things out of his power to help, they are not his faults, but the wise dispensations of the great Creator, who bestows the excellencies of body and mind as he pleases; and therefore to scorn a man, because he hath them not, is in effect to reproach God who gave them not to him.

For Calamities.

8. So also for the calamities and miseries that befall a man, be it want or sickness, or whatever else, these also come by the providence of God, who raiseth up and pulleth down, down, as seems good to him, and it belongs Sunday

not to us to judge, what are the motives to him to do so, as many do, who upon any affliction that befalls another, are presently concluding, that sure it is some extraordinary guilt, which pulls this upon him, though they have no particular to lay to his charge. This rash judgment our Saviour reproves in the Jews, Luke 13. where on occasion of the extraordinary sufferings of the Galileans, he asks them, Verse 2, 3. Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things? I tell you nay, but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. When we see God's hand heavy upon others, it is no part of our business to judge them, but our selves, and by repentance to prevent, what our own sins have deserved. But to reproach and revile any that are in affliction, is that barbarous cruelty taken notice of by the Psalmist, as the height of wickedness, Psalms 69. 26. They persecute him whom thou hast smitten, and they talk to the grief of them whom thou hast wounded: In all the miseries of others, compassion becomes a debt to them; how unjust are they then, that instead of paying them that debt, afflict them with scorn and reproach?

9. Nay, the very Sins of men, though as For Sins.

of compassion, and that in the highest degree, as being the things which of all others make a Man the most miserable. In all these cases, if we consider how subject we are to the like our selves, and that it is only God's mercy to us, by which we are preserved from the worst that any man else is under, it will surely better become us to look up to him with thankfulness, than down on them with contempt and despising. Thus you see the direct injustice of scorning and contemning our brethren, to which when that other is added, which naturally follows, as a consequent of this, to wit, the begetting the like contempt in others, there can sure be no doubt of its being a great and horrible injustice to our Neighbour in respect of his credit.

Destroying the credit a great injury.

13. Now how great the injury of destroying a man's credit is, may be measured by these two things; first, the value of the thing he is robb'd of, and secondly, the difficulty of making reparations. For the first, 'tis commonly known, that a man's good name is a thing he holds most precious, oftentimes dearer than his life, as we see by the hazards men sometimes run to preserve even a mistaken reputation; but 'tis sure it is that, which hath even by sober men been esteemed one of the greatest happinesses of life: And to some sort of men, such especially as subsist by dealings in the world, 'tis so necessary, that it may well be reckoned as the means of their their livelyhood, and then sure, 'tis no slight Sunday matter to rob a man of what is thus valuable XIII.

to him.

11. Secondly, The Difficulty of making And irreparable. reparations encreaseth the injury, and that is such in this case of defamation, that I may rather call it an impossibility, than a Difficulty. For when men are possess'd of an ill opinion of a person, 'tis no easy matter to work it out? so that the slanderer is herein like a young Conjuror, that raises a Devil he knows not how to lay again. Nay, suppose men were generally as willing to lay down ill conceits of their Neighbours as they are to take them up, yet how is it possible for him that makes even the most publick recantation of his slander, to be sure that every man that hath come to the hearing of the one, shall do so of the other also? And if there be but one person that doth not, (as probably there will be many) then is the reparation still short of the injury.

12. This consideration is very fit to make Let every men afraid of doing this wrong to their guilty per- Neighbour; but let it not be made use of to son must do excuse those that have already done the all he can wrong, from endeavouring to make the best to repair reparations they can; for though 'tis odds, it the injury. will not equal the injury, yet let them however do what they are able towards it. And this is so necessary towards the obtaining pardon of the sin, that none must expect the one,
that

Sunday that do not perform the other. Whosoever XIII. therefore sets himself to repent of his faults of this kind, must by all prudent means endeavour to restore his neighbour to that degree of credit he hath deprived him of; and if that be not to be done without bringing the shame upon himself of confessing publicly the slander, he must rather submit to that, than be wanting to this necessary part of Justice, which he owes to the wronged party.

Justice in the Thoughts.

13. Thus I have gone through these four Branches of Negative Justice to our Neighbour; wherein we must yet farther observe, that this Justice binds us, not only in respect of our words and actions, but of our very thoughts and affections also; we are not only forbid to hurt, but to hate, not only restrained from bringing any of these evils forementioned upon him, but we must not so much as wish them before, nor delight in them after they have befallen him; we must take no pleasure either in the sin of his Soul, or hurt of his Body: we must not envy him any good thing he enjoys, nor so much as wish to possess our selves of it; neither will it suffice us, that we so bridle our tongue, that we neither slander, nor revile, if we have that malice in our hearts, which makes us wish his discredit; or rejoyce, when we find it procured, though we have no hand in the procuring it. This is the peculiar property perty of God's Laws, that they reach to the heart; whereas mens can extend only to the words and actions; and the reason is clear, because he is the only Law-giver, that can see what is in the heart; therefore if there were the perfectest innocency in our tongue and hands, yet if there be not this purity of heart, it will never serve to acquit us before him. The counsel therefore of Solomon is excellent, Prov. 4. 23. Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life. Let us strictly guard that, so that no malicious unjust thought enter there; and that not only as it may be the means of betraying us to the grosser act, but also as it is in it self such a pollution in God's sight, as will unfit us for the blessed Vision of God, whom none but the pure in heart have promise of seeing, Matth. 5. 8. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.

Sunday
XIII.

14. I come now to speak of the positive part of Justice, which is the yielding to every man that which by any kind of right he may challenge from us. Of these dues there are some that are general to all mankind, others that are restrained within some certain conditions and qualities of men, and become due only by vertue of those qualifications.

Positive
Justice.

15. Of the first sort, that is, those that are due to all men, we may reckon first the speaking Truth, which is a common debt we

Sunday owe to all mankind; Speech is given us as XIII. the instrument of intercourse and society one with another, the means of discovering the mind which otherwise lies hid and concealed, so that were it not for this, our conversations would be but the same as of Beasts: Now this being intended for the good and advantage of mankind, 'tis a due to it, that it be used to that purpose; but he that lyes, is so far from paying that debt, that on the contrary he makes his Speech the means of injuring and deceiving him he speaks to.

Lying expressly forbidden in Scripture.

16. There might much be said to shew the several sorts of Obligations we lie under to speak truth to all men, but supposing I write to Christians, I need not insist upon any other, than the Commands we have of it in Scripture: thus Eph. 4. 25. the Apostle commands that putting away lying, they speak every Man Truth with his Neighbour: And again, Col. 3. 9. Lye not one to another: And Prov. 6. 17. a lying tongue is mentioned as one of those things that are abominations to the Lord. Yea so much doth he hate a Lye, that it is not the most pious and religious end that can reconcile him to it; the man that lyes, though in a zeal to God's glory, shall yet be judged as a sinner, Rom. 3. 7. What shall then become of those multitudes of men that lye on quite other ends? Some out of malice, to mischief others; some out of covetousness to defraud their Neighbours; some out of

of pride, to set themselves out ; and some out of fear, to avoid danger, or hide a fault. But of a yet stranger sort than all these are those, that do it without any discernible temptation, that will tell lyes by way of story, take pleasure in telling incredible things, from which themselves reap nothing but the reputation of impertinent Lyars.

17. Among these divers kinds of falsehood, Truth is become such a rarity among us, that it is a most difficult matter, to find such a Man as David describes, Psalms 15. 2. That speaketh the truth from his heart. Men have so glibb'd their tongues to lying, that they do it familiarly upon any or no occasion, never thinking that they are observed either by God or Man. But they are extremely deceived in both ; for there is scarce any sin (that is at all endeavoured to be hid) which is more discernible even to Men : they that have a custom of lying, seldom fail (be their memory never so good) at some time or other to betray themselves ; and when they do, there is no sort of sin meets with greater scorn and reproach ; a Lyar being by all accounted a title of the greatest infamy and shame. But as for God, 'tis madness to hope that all their Arts can disguise them from him, who needs none of those casual ways of discovery, which Men do, but sees the heart, and so knows at the very instant of speaking, the falshood of what is said :

and

Sunday
XIII.The great commonness and folly of this sin.

Sunday and then by his Title of the God of Truth, XIII. is tied not only to hate, but punish it : and accordingly you see, Rev. 22. that the Lyars are in the number of thole who are shut out of the new Jerusalem ; and not only so, but also have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone. If therefore thou be not of the humour of that unjust judge, Christ speaks of, Luke 18. 2. who neither feared God, nor regarded man, thou must resolve on this part of Justice, the putting away Lying, which is abhorred by both.

*Courteous behaviour a due to all
 men.*

18. A second thing we owe to all, is Humanity and Courtesie of behaviour, contrary to that sullen churlishness we find spoken of in Nabal, who was of such a temper, that a man could not speak to him, 1 Sam. 25. 17. There is sure so much of respect due to the very nature of Mankind, that no accidental advantage of Wealth or Honour, which one Man hath above another, can acquit him from that debt to it, even in the person of the meanest ; and therefore that crabbed and harsh behaviour to any that bears but the form of a Man, is an injustice to that nature he partakes of. And when we consider how much that nature is dignified by the Son of God his taking it upon him, the obligation to reverence it is yet greater, and consequently the sin of thus contemning it.

*Not pryed by the proud
 man.*

19. This is the common guilt of all proud and haughty persons, who are so busie in admiring miring themselves, that they over-look all that is valuable in others, and so think they owe not so much as common civility to other Men, whilst they set up themselves, as Nebuchadnezzar did his Image, to be worshipped of all. This is sure very contrary to what the Apostle exhorts, Rom. 12. 10. In honour prefer one another: And again, Phil. 2. 4. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others; and let such remember the sentence of our blessed Saviour, Luke 14. 11. He that exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted, which we often find made good to us, in the strange downfalls of proud Men. And it is no wonder, for this sin makes both God and Men our enemies; God, as the Scripture every where testifies, abhors it, and all that are guilty of it, and men are by means of it used so contemptuously and unkindly by us, that they are by nothing more provoked against us; and then whom God and Man thus resist, who shall secure and uphold?

20. A third thing we owe to all is Meekness; that is, such a patience and gentleness towards all, as may bridle that mad passion of anger, which is not only very uneasy to our selves, as hath already been shewed, but also very mischievous to our neighbours, as the many outrages, that are oft committed in it, do abundantly testify. That this duty of Meekness is to be extended to all men,

Meekness a due to all Men.

Sunday there is no doubt ; for the Apostle in exprefs XIII. words commands it, 1 Thes. 5. 14. Be patient towards all men, and that it should seem, in spite of all provocation to the contrary, for the very next words are, See that none render evil for evil, or railing for railing ; and Timothy is commanded to exercise this Meekness even towards them who oppose themselves against the Doctrine of the Gospel, 2 Tim. 2. 25. which was a case, wherein some heat would probably have been allowed, if it might have been in any.

 very insufferable.*

21. This vertue of Meekness is so necessary to the preserving the peace of the World, that it is no wonder, that Christ, who came to plant Peace amongst Men, should enjoin Meekness to all, I am sure the contrary effects of rage and anger are every where discernable ; it breeds disquiet in Kingdoms, in Neighbourhoods, in Families, and even between the nearest Relations ; 'tis such a humour, that Solomon warns us never to enter a friendship with a Man that is of it, Prov. 22. 24. Make no friendship with an angry man, and with a furious man thou shalt not go. It makes a Man unfit to be either friend or companion, and indeed makes one insufferable to all that have to do with him, as we are again taught by Solomon, Prov. 21. 19. where he prefers the dwelling in a wilderness, rather than with a contentious and angry woman ; and yet a Woman has ordinarily only that one weapon of the tongue to offend with. Indeed, ^{Sunday} to any that have not the same unquietness of XIII. humour, there can scarce be a greater uneasiness, than to converse with those that have it, tho' it never proceed farther than words. How great this sin is, we may judge by what our Saviour says of it, Matth. 5. where there are several degrees of punishment allotted to several degrees of it, but alas! we daily out-go that which he there sets as the highest step of this sin; the calling, Thou fool! is a modest sort of reviling, compared with those multitudes of bitter reproaches we use in our rages.

22. Nay, We often go yet higher; re- ^{It leads to}proaches serve not our turn, but we must ^{that great} curse too. How common is it to hear Men use ^{sin of cursing.} the horridest execrations and cursings, upon every the slightest cause of displeasure? Nay, perhaps without any cause at all; so utterly have we forgot the rule of the Apostle, Rom. 12. 14. Bless, and curse not; yea, the precept of our blessed Saviour himself, Matth. 5. 44. Pray for those that despitefully use you. Christ bids us pray for those who do us all injury, and we are often cursing those who do us none. This is a kind of saying our Prayers backward indeed, which is said to be part of the Ceremony the Devil uses at the making of a Witch, and we have in this case also reason to look on it, as a means of bringing us into acquaintance and league with that Sunday XIII. accursed spirit here, and to a perpetual abiding with him hereafter. 'Tis the language of Hell, which can never fit us to be Citizens of the new Jerusalem, but marks us out for inhabitants of that land of darkness. I conclude this with the advice of the Apostle, Ephes. 4. 31. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking be put away from you, with all malice.

Particular dues.

23. Having spoken thus far of those common dues, wherein all Men are concerned and have a right ; I am now to proceed to those other sorts of dues, which belong to particular persons, by virtue of some special qualification. These qualifications may be of three kinds, that of Excellency, that of Want, and that of Relation.

A respect due to men of extraordinary gifts.

24. By that of Excellency, I mean any extraordinary gifts, or endowments of a person ; such as Wisdom, Learning, and the like, but especially Grace. These being the singular gifts of God, have a great value and respect due to them, wheresoever they are to be found ; and this we must readily pay, by a willing and glad acknowledgment of those his gifts in any he has bestowed them on, and bearing them a reverence and respect answerable thereunto, and not out of an overweening of our own excellencies, despise and undervalue those of others, as they do who will yield nothing to be reason, but what themselves speak, nor any thing piety, piety, but what agrees with their own Sunday practice. XIII.

25. Also we must not envy or grudge that they have those gifts, for that is not only an injustice to them, but injurious also to God who gave them, as it is at large set forth in the Parable of the labourers, Matth. 20. where he asks them who grumbled at the Master's bounty to others, Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with my own? Is thine eye evil because mine is good? This envying at God's goodness to others, is in effect a murmuring against God, who thus disposes it; neither can there be a greater, and more direct opposition against him, than for me to hate and wish ill to a Man, for no other reason, but because God has loved and done well to him. And then in respect of the Man, 'tis the most unreasonable thing in the World, to love him the less, merely because he has those good qualities, for which I ought to love him more.

26. Neither must we detract from the excellencies of others, we must not seek to eclipse or darken them by denying either the kinds or degrees of them, by that means to take off that esteem which is due to them. This sin of Detraction is generally the effect of the former, of Envy; he that envies a Man's worth, will be apt to do all he can to lessen it in the opinions of others, and to that purpose will either speak slightly of his

Sunday excellencies, or if they be so apparent, that XIII. he knows not how to cloud them, he will try if he can, by reporting some either real, or feigned infirmity of his, take off from the value of the other, and so by casting in some dead flies, as the Wise Man speaks, Eccles. 10. 1. strive to corrupt the savour of the ointment. This is a great injustice, and directly contrary to that duty we owe, of acknowledging and reverencing the gifts of God in our brethren.

The folly of both these sins.

27, And both those sins of Envy and Detraction do usually prove as great Follies, as wickedness; the envy constantly brings pain and torment to a Man's self, whereas if he could but cheerfully and gladly look on those good things of another, he could never fail to be the better for them himself; the very pleasure of seeing them would be some advantage to him: But besides that those gifts of his Brother may be many ways helpful to him; his Wisdom and Learning may give him instruction, his piety and Vertue example, &c. But all this the envious Man loseth, and hath nothing in exchange of it, but a continual fretting, and gnawing of heart.

28. And then for Detraction, that can hardly be so manag'd, but it will be found out; he that is still putting his Caveats against Mens good thoughts of others, will quickly discover himself to do it out of envy, and then that will be sure to lessen their esteem esteem of himself, but not of those he envies, it being a sort of bearing testimony to those excellencies, that he thinks them worth the envying.

Sunday
XIII.

29. What hath been said of the value and respect due to those excellencies of the mind, may in a lower degree be applied to the outward advantages of honour, greatness, and the like. These, tho' they are not of equal value with the former (and such for which no Man is to prize himself) yet in regard that these degrees and distinctions of Men are by God's Wise Providence disposed for the better ordering of the World, there is such a civil respect due to those, to whom God hath dispens'd them, as may best preserve that order, for which they were intended. Therefore all Inferiours are to behave themselves to their Superiours with modesty and respect, and not by a rude boldness confound that order which it hath pleased God to set in the World, but according as our Church-Catechism teaches, Order themselves lowly and reverently to all their Betters. And here the former caution against Envy comes in most seasonably; these outward advantages being things, of which generally Men have more taste than of the other, and therefore will be more apt to envy and repine to see others exceed them therein; to this therefore all the former considerations against Envy will be very proper and the more necessary

A respect due to men, in regard of their ranks and qualities.

Sunday necessary to be made use of, by how much XIII. the temptation is in this case to most minds the greater.

Dues to those that are in any sort of want.

30. The second qualification is that of Want; whoever is in distress for any thing, wherewith I can supply him, that distress of his makes it a duty in me so to supply him, and this in all kinds of wants. Now the ground of its being a duty, is, that God hath given Men abilities not only for their own use, but for the advantage and benefit of others, and therefore what is thus given for their use, becomes a debt to them, whenever their need requires it. Thus he that is ignorant and wants knowledge, is to be instructed by him that hath it, and this is one special end why that knowledge is given him; The tongue of the learned is given to speak a word in season, Isai. 50. 4. He that is in sadness and affliction, is to be comforted by him that is himself in chearfulness. Thus we see St. Paul makes the end of God's comforting him, that he might be able to comfort them that are in any trouble, 2 Cor. 1. 4. He that is in any course of sin, and wants reprehension and counsel, must have that want supplied to him by those who have such abilities and opportunities, as may make it likely to do good. That this is a justice we owe to our Neighbour, appears plainly by that Text, *Levit. 19. 17. Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, thou shalt in any wise reprove him,
 and*

and not suffer sin upon him ; where we are under the same obligation to reprove him, that we are not to hate him. He that lies under any slander, or unjust defamation, is to be defended and cleared by him that knows his innocence, or else he makes himself guilty of the slander, because he neglects to do that which may remove it ; and how great an injustice that of slandering our Neighbour is, I have already shewed.

Sunday
XIII.

31. Lastly, He that is in poverty and need, To the poor. must be relieved by him that is in plenty ; and he is bound to it, not only in charity, but even in justice. Solomon calls it a due, Prov. 3. 27. With-hold not good from him to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it : and what that good is, he explains in the very next verse : Say not to thy neighbour, Go and come again, and to morrow I will give, when thou hast it by thee. It seems, 'tis the with-holding a due, so much as to defer giving to our poor neighbour. And we find God did among the Jews separate a certain portion of every man's increase to the use of the poor, a tenth every third year (which is all one with a thirtieth part every Year) Deut. 14. 28, 29. And this was to be paid, not as a charity, or liberality, but as a debt ; they were unjust, if they with-held it. And surely we have no reason to think, that Christian justice is sunk so much below the Jewish, that either nothing at all, or a less pro-

Sunday XIII. proportion is now required of us. I wish our practice were but at all answerable to our obligation in this point, and then surely we should not see so many Lazarus's lie unrelieved at our doors, they having a better right to our superfluities, than we our selves have ; and then what is it but arrant robbery to bestow that upon our vanities, nay, our sins, which should be their portion ?

God withdraws those abilities which are not thus employed.

32. In all the foregoing cases, he that hath ability is to look upon himself, as God's steward, who hath put it into his hands to distribute to them that want ; and therefore not to do it, is the same injustice and fraud, that it would be in any steward to purse up that Money for his private benefit, which was intrusted to him, for the maintenance of the family ; and he that shall do thus, hath just reason to expect the doom of the unjust steward, Luke 16. to be put out of his stewardship, to have those abilities taken from him, which he hath so unfaithfully employed. And as for all the rest, so particularly for that of wealth, 'tis very commonly to be observed, that it is withdrawn from those that thus defraud the poor of their parts, the griping Miser coming often by strange undiscernible ways to poverty ; and no wonder, he having no title to God's blessing on his heap, who does not consecrate a part to him in his poor Members. And therefore we see the Israelites, before they could make that challenge of God's promise to bless bles them, Deut. 26. 15. Look down from thy holy habitation, and bless thy people Israel, &c. Sunday XIII.

 They were first to pay the poor Man's tythes, vers. 12. without which they could lay no claim to it. This with-holding more than is meet, as Solomon says, Prov. 11. 24. tends to poverty; and therefore as thou wouldst play the good husband for thy self, be careful to perform this justice according to thy ability to all that are in want.

33. The third qualification is that of Relation, and of that there may be divers sorts, arising from divers grounds, and duties answerable to each of them. There is first a relation of a Debtor to a Creditor; and he that stands in that relation to any, whether by virtue of bargain, loan or promise, 'tis his duty to pay justly what he owes, if he be able (as on the other side, if he be not, 'tis the Creditors, to deal Charitably and Christianly with him, and not to exact of him beyond his ability.) But I need not insist on this, having already, by shewing you the sin of with-holding debts, informed you of this duty. Duties in respect of Relation.

34. There is also a relation of an obliged Person to his Benefactor, that is, one that hath done him good, of what kind soever, whether spiritual or corporal; and the duty of that person is, first, Thankfulness, that is, a ready and hearty acknowledgment of the courtesy received: Secondly, Prayer for God's Gratitude to Benefactors.

Sunday God's blessings and rewards upon him ; and, XIII. Thirdly, an endeavour, as opportunity and ability serves, to make returns of kindness, by doing good turns back again. This duty of gratitude to Benefactors is so generally acknowledged by all, even the most barbarous and savagest of men, that he must have put off much of his humane nature, that refuses to perform it. The very Publicans and sinners, as our Saviour says, do good to those who do good to them.

The contrary too common.

35. Yet how many of us fail even in this ? How frequent is it to see Men, not only neglect to repay courtesies, but return injuries instead of them ? It is too observable in many particulars, but in none more, than in the case of advice, and admonition, which is of all others, the most precious part of kindness, the realest good turn that can be done from one Man to another. And therefore those that do this to us, should be look'd on, as our prime and greatest Benefactors. But alas ! how few are there that can find gratitude, shall I say ? nay, patience for such a courtesy ? Go about to admonish a Man of a fault, or tell him of an Errour, he presently looks on you as his enemy : You are, as St. Paul tells the Galatians, chap. 4. 16. Become his enemy, because you tell him the truth ; such a pride there is in Mens hearts, that they must not be told of any things amiss, though it be with no other intent, but that they may may amend it. A strange madness this is, the same that it would be in a sick man, to flie in the face of him that comes to cure him, on a fancy that he disparag'd him in supposing him sick ; so that we may well say with the Wise Man, Prov. 12. 1. He that hateth reproof is brutish. There cannot be in the World a more unhappy temper, for it fortifies a Man in his sins ; raises such Mounts and Bulwarks about them, that no Man can come to assault them, and if we may believe Solomon, destruction will not fail to attend it, Prov. 29. 1. He that being often reprov'd hardneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy. But then again, in respect of the Admonisher, 'tis the greatest injustice, I may say, cruelty that can be : He comes in tenderness and compassion to rescue thee from danger ; and to that purpose puts himself upon a very uneasie task ; for such the general impatience Men have to admonition, hath now made it ; and what a defeat, what a grief is it to him to find, that instead of reforming the first fault, thou art run into a second, to wit, that of causeless displeasure against him ? This is one of the worst, and yet, I doubt, the commonest sort of unthankfulness to Benefactors, and so a great failing in that duty we owe to that sort of relation. But perhaps these will be look'd on as remote relations, (yet 'tis sure they are such as challenge all that duty I have assign'd to them.)

I shall

Sunday XIV. I shall in the next place proceed to those relations which are by all acknowledged to be of the greatest nearness.

SUNDAY XIV.

Of duty to Magistrates, Pastors. Of the Duty of Parents to Children, &c. Of Childrens duty unto Parents, &c.

SECT. 1. THE first of those nearer sorts of Relations, is that of a Parent ; and here it will be necessary to consider the several sorts of Parents, according to which the duty of them is to be measured. Those are these three ; the Civil, the Spiritual, the Natural.

Duties to Parents.

Duties to the Supreme Magistrate.

2. The Civil Parent is he whom God hath establish'd the Supreme Magistrate, who by a just right possesses the Throne in a Nation. This is the common Father of all those that are under his authority. The duty we owe to this Parent, is first Honour and Reverence, looking on him, as upon one on whom God hath stamped much of his own power and authority, and therefore paying him all honour and esteem, never daring, upon any pretence whatsoever, to speake evil of the Ruler of our people, Acts 23. 5.

Honour.

Tribute.

3. Secondly, Paying Tribute ; This is expressly commanded by the Apostle, Rom. 13. 6.

Pay

Pay ye tribute also, for they are God's Ministers attending continually upon this very thing. God has set them apart as Ministers for the common good of the People; and therefore 'tis all Justice, they should be maintained and supported by them. And indeed when it is considered, what are the cares and troubles of that high calling, how many thorns are platted in every Crown, we have very little reason to envy them these dues; and it may truly be said, there is none of their poor labouring subjects that earns their living so hardly.

4. Thirdly, We are to pray for them; Prayers for them. this is also expressly commanded by the Apostle, 1 Tim. 2. 2. to be done for Kings, and for all that are in authority. The businesses of that calling are so weighty, the dangers and hazards of it so great, that they of all others need prayers for God's direction, assistance, and blessing; and the prayers that are thus poured out for them, will return into our own bosoms, for the blessings they receive from God tend to the good of the People, to their living a quiet and peaceable life, as it is in the close of the Verse forementioned.

5. Fourthly, We are to pay them Obedience. This is likewise strictly charged by the Apostle, 1 Pet. 2. 13. Submit your selves to every ordinance of Man for the Lord's sake whether it be to the King as supreme, or unto Governours as those that are sent by him. We owe such an obedience to the supreme power,

Sunday that whoever is authorized by him, we are to this purpose, Rom. 13. 1. Let every Soul be subject to the higher Powers : And again, ver. 2. Who- ever resisteth the Powers, resisteth the Ordinance of God. And 'tis observable that these precepts were given at a time, when those powers were Heathens, and cruel persecutors of Christianity ; to shew us that no pretence of the wickedness of our Rulers can free us from this duty.

 An obedience we must pay either active or Passive: the Active in the case of all lawful commands; that is, when ever the Magistrate commands something, which is not contrary to some command of God, we are then bound to act according to that command of the Magistrate, to do the things he requires. But when he enjoyns any thing contrary to what God hath commanded, we are not then to pay him this active obedience; we may, nay, we must refuse thus to act, (yet here we must be very well assured that the thing is so contrary, and not pretend conscience for a cloak of stubbornness) we are in that case to obey God rather than man. But even this is a season for the passive obedience, we must patiently suffer, what he inflicts on us for such refusal, and not, to secure our selves, rise up against him. For who can stretch his hand against the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless, says David to Abishai, 1 Sam. 26. 9. And that at a time when David was under a great persecution from

from Saul, nay, had also the assurance of the Kingdom after him; and S. Paul's sentence in this case is most heavy, Rom. 13. 2. They that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. Here is very small encouragement to any to rise up against the lawful Magistrate, for though they should so far prosper here, as to secure themselves from him by this means, yet there is a King of Kings from whom no power can shelter them, and this damnation in the close will prove a sad prize of their Victories. What is on the other side the Duty of the Magistrate to the People will be in vain to mention here, none of that rank being like to read this Treatise, and it being very useles for the People to enquire, what is the duty of their Supreme, wherein the most are already much better read, than in their own; it may suffice them to know, that whatsoever his duty is, or however performed, he is accountable to none but God, and no failing of his part can warrant them to fail of theirs.

6. The second sort of Parents are the spiritual; that is, the Ministers of the Word, whether such, as be Governours in the Church, or others under them, who are to perform the same offices to our Souls, that our natural Parents do to our Bodies. Thus S. Paul tells the Corinthians, that in Christ Jesus he had begotten them through the Gospel, 1 Cor. 4. 15. and the Galatians, Chap. 4. 19. That he travels in birth of them, till Christ be

Sunday formed in them: and again, 1 Cor. 3.2. He had fed XIV. them with milk; that is, such Doctrines as were agreeable to that infant state of Christianity they were then in; but he had stronger meat for them of full age, Heb. 5. 14. All these are the offices of a Parent, and therefore they that perform them to us, may well be accounted as such.

Love.

7. Our duty to these is first to love them, to bear them that kindness, which belongs to those who do us the greatest benefits. This is required by S. Paul, 1 Thess. 5. 13. I beseech you brethren, mark them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you, and esteem them very highly in love for their works sake. The work is such as ought in all reason to procure them love, it being of the highest advantage to us.

Esteem.

8. Secondly, it is our duty to value and esteem them, as we see in the text now mentioned; and surely this is most reasonable, if we consider either the nature of their work, or who it is that employs them. The nature of their work is of all others the most excellent. We use to value other professions proportionably to the dignity and worth of the things they deal in. Now surely there is no Merchandice of equal worth with a Soul, and this is their Traffick, rescuing precious Souls from perdition; and if we consider further, who it is that employs them, it yet adds to the reverence due to them. They are Ambassadors for Christ, 2 Cor. 5. 20. and

Am-

Ambassadors are by the Laws of all Nations to be used with a respect answerable to the quality of those that send them. Therefore Christ tells his Disciples, when he sends them out to preach, He that despiseth you despiseth me, and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me, Luke 10. 16. It seems there is more depends on the despising of Ministers, than men ordinarily consider, 'tis the despising of God and Christ both. Let those think of this, who make it their pastime and sport to affront and deride this calling. And let those also, who dare presume to exercise the Offices of it, without being lawfully called to it, which is a most high presumption; 'tis as if a man of his own head should go as an Ambassador from his Prince. The Apostle says of the Priests of the Law, which yet are inferiour to those of the Gospel, That no man taketh this honour to himself, but he which was called of God, Heb. 5. 4. How shall then any man dare to assume this greater honour to himself, that is not called to it? Neither will it suffice to say, They have the inward call of the Spirit; for since God hath established an order in the Church, for the admitting Men to this Office, they that shall take it upon them without that authority, resist that Ordinance, and are but of the number of those Thieves and Robbers, as our Saviour speaks, Jahn 10. Which come not in by the door. Besides, the sad experience of these

Sunday
XIV.

Sunday times shews, that many who pretend most XIV. to this inward call of the Spirit, are called by some other Spirit than that of God, the Doctrines they vent, being usually directly contrary to that Word of His, on which all true doctrines must be founded. Such are to be lookt on as those Seducers, those false Prophets, whereof we are so often warn'd in the Epistles of the Apostles. And whosoever countenances them, or follows them, partakes with them in their guilt. It is recorded of Jeroboam, as a crying sin, that he made of the meanest of the People Priests; that is, such as had by God's Institution no right to it: and whoever hearkens to these uncalled Preachers, runs into that very sin; for without the encouragement of being followed, they would not long continue in the course, and therefore they that give them that encouragement, have much to answer for; and are certainly guilty of the sin of despising their true Pastors, when they shall thus set up these false Apostles against them. This is a guilt this age is too much concerned in: God in his mercy so timely convince us of it, as may put a stop to that confusion and impiety, which breaks in so fast upon us by it.

nance.*

9. Thirdly, We owe to them maintenance, but of this I have spoken already in the first part of this Book, and shall not here Obedience. repeat. Fourthly, We owe them obedience;

Obey

Obey them, saith the Apostle, that have the Rule over you, and submit your selves, for they watch for your Souls, Heb. 13. 17. This obedience is to be paid them in spiritual things: that is, whatsoever they out of God's Word shall declare to us to be God's Commands, these we are diligently to obey, remembering that it is not they but God requires it, according to that of Christ, He that heareth you heareth me, Luke 10. 6. And this whether it be delivered by the way of publick preaching, or private exhortation; for in both, so long as they keep them to the rule, which is God's Word, they are the Messengers of the Lord of Hosts, Mal. 2. 7. This obedience the Apostle enforceth from a double motive, one taken from their Ministry, another from themselves. They watch, says he, for your Souls, as they that must give an account, that they may do it with joy and not with grief. The people are by their obedience to enable their Pastors to give a comfortable account of their Souls; and it is a most unkind return of all their care and labours, to be put to grieve for the ill success of them. But then in the second place 'tis their own concernment also; they may put their Ministers to the discomfort of seeing all their pains cast away, but themselves are like to get little by it, that (says the Apostle, Heb. 13. 17.) will be unprofitable for you; 'tis your selves that will finally prove the losers by it, you lose all those glorious rewards, which

Sunday are here offered, as the crown of this obedience, you get nothing but an addition to your
XIV. sin and punishment; for as our Saviour tells the Pharisees, if he had not come and spoken to them, they had not had sin, Joh. 15. 24. that is in comparison with what they then had; so certainly they that never had the Gospel preached to them, are much more innocent than they that have heard and resisted it. And for the punishment, what Christ told those to whom he had preached, That it should be more tolerable for Tyre and Sydon, which were heathen Cities, than for them, the same undoubtedly we may conclude for our selves.

Prayers for them.

10. Lastly, We are to pray for them; This S. Paul every where requires of his spiritual Children; thus Eph. 6. 7, 8. having commanded Prayer for all Saints, he adds, And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mystery of the Gospel, And so again, Col. 4. 3. And this remains still a duty to these Spiritual Fathers, to pray for such assistances of God's Spirit to them, as may enable them rightly to discharge that Holy Calling. I shall omit to set down here, what is the duty of Ministers to the People, upon the same consideration, on which I forbear to mention the duty of Magistrates.

Duties to our natural Parents.

11. The Third sort of Parent is the natural, the Fathers of our Flesh, as the Apostle calls them, Heb. 12. 9. And to these we owe severseveral duties; as first, we owe them reverence and respect; we must behave our selves towards them with all humility and observance, and must not upon any pretence of infirmity in them despise or contemn them, either in outward behaviour, or so much as inwardly in our hearts. If indeed they have infirmities it must be our business to cover and conceal them; like Shem and Japhet, who, while cursed Cham published and disclosed the nakedness of their Father, covered it, Gen. 9. 23. and that in such a manner too, as even themselves might not behold it. We are as much as may be to keep our selves from looking on those nakednesses of our Parents, which may tempt us to think irreverently of them. This is very contrary to the practice of too many children, who do not only publish and deride the infirmities of their Parents, but pretend they have those infirmities they have not; there is ordinarily such a pride and headiness in youth that they cannot abide to submit to the counsels and directions of their Elders, and therefore to shake them off, are willing to have them pass for the effects of dotage, when they are indeed the fruits of sobriety and experience. To such the exhortation of Solomon is very necessary, Prov. 24. 22. Hearken to thy Father that begat thee, and despise not thy Mother when she is old. A multitude of texts more there are in that Book to this purpose, which shews that the wisest men thought it necessary for

Sunday
XIV.
Reverence.

Sunday for Children to attend to the counsel of XIV. their Parents. But the youth of our age set up for Wisdom the quite contrary way, and think they then become wits, when they are advanced to the despising the counsel, yea, mocking the persons of their Parents. Let such, if they will not practise the exhortations, yet remember the threatning of the Wise Man, Prov. 30.
17. The eye that mocketh his father and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young Eagles shall eat it.

Leve. 12. A second duty we owe to them is Love; we are to bear them a real kindness, such as may make us heartily desirous of all manner of good to them, and abhor to do any thing that may grieve and disquiet them. This will appear but common gratitude, when 'tis remembred what our Parents have done for us, how they were not only the instruments of first bringing us into the World, but also of sustaining and supporting us after; and certainly they that rightly weigh the cares and fears, that go to the bringing up of a child, will judge the love of that child to be but a moderate return for them. This love is to be expressed several ways, first, in all kindness of behaviour, carrying our selves not only with an awe and respect, but with kindness and affection, and therefore most gladly and readily doing those things, which may bring joy and comfort to them, and carefully avoiding whatever may grieve

grieve and afflict them. Secondly, This love is to be exprest in praying for them. The debt a Child owes to a Parent is so great, that he can never hope himself to discharge it, he is therefore to call in God's aid, to beg of him that he will reward all the good his Parents have done for him, by multiplying his blessings upon them; what shall we then say to those children that instead of calling to Heaven for blessings on their Parents, ransack Hell for curses on them, and pour out the blackest execrations against them? This is a thing so horrid, that one would think they needed no perswasion against it, because none could be so vile as to fall into it; but we see God himself, who best knows mens hearts, saw it possible, and therefore laid the heaviest punishment upon it, He that curseth Father or Mother, let him die the death, Exod. 21. 17. And alas! our daily experience tells us, 'tis not only possible but common, even this of uttering curses. But 'tis to be feared, there is another yet more common, that is, the wishing curses, though fear or shame keep them from speaking out. How many children are there that either through impatience of the Government, or greediness of the possessions of the Parents, have wisht their deaths? But whosoever doth so, let him remember, that how slyly and fairly soever he carry it before men, there is one that sees those secretest wishes of his heart, and in his sight he assuredly passes passes for this hainous offender, a curser of his Parents. And then let it be considered, that God hath as well the power of punishing, as of seeing, and therefore since he hath pronounced death to be the reward of that sin, 'tis not unreasonable to expect he may himself inflict it, that they who watch for the death of their Parents, may untimely meet with their own. The Fifth Commandment promiseth long life as the reward of honouring the Parent, to which 'tis very agreeable that untimely death be the punishment of the contrary; and sure there is nothing more highly contrary to that duty, than this we are now speaking of, the cursing our Parents.

Obedience.

13. The third Duty we owe to them is Obedience; this is not only contained in the Fifth Commandment, but expressly enjoined in other places of Scripture, Ephes. 6. 1. Children obey your Parents in the Lord, for this is right; and again, Col. 3. 20. Children obey your Parents in all things, for this is well-pleasing to the Lord. We owe to them an obedience in all things, unless where their commands are contrary to the commands of God, for in that case our duty to God must be preferred; and therefore if any Parent shall be so wicked, as to require his child to steal, to lye, or to do any unlawful thing, the child then offends not against his duty, though he disobey that command, nay, he must disobey or else he offends against a higher duty, even that he owes owes to God his Heavenly Father. Yet when 'tis thus necessary to refuse Obedience, he should take care to do it in such a modest, and respectful manner, that it may appear 'tis conscience only, and not stubbornness moves him to it. But in case of all lawful commands, that is, when the thing commanded is either good, or not evil, when it hath nothing in it contrary to our duty to God, there the child is bound to obey, be the command in a weightier or lighter matter. How little this duty is regarded is too manifest every where in the World, where Parents generally have their children no longer under command, than they are under the rod; when they are once grown up, they think themselves free from all obedience to them; or if some do continue to pay it, yet let the motive of it be examined, and 'twill in too many be found only worldly prudence. They fear to displease their Parents, lest they should shorten their hand towards them, and so they shall lose somewhat by it; but how few are there that obey purely upon conscience of Duty? This sin of Disobedience to Parents was by the Law of Moses punishable with death, as you may read Deut. 21. 18. but if Parents now adays should proceed so with their children, many might soon make themselves childless.

12. But of all the acts of disobedience, that of marrying against the consent of the Parent is Especially in their Marriage.

Sunday is one of the highest. Children are so much XIV. the goods, the possessions of their Parent, that they cannot without a kind of Theft, give away themselves without the allowance of those that have the right in them; and therefore we see under the Law, the Maid that had made any vow, was not suffered to perform it, without the consent of the Parent, Numb. 30. 5. The right of the Parent was thought of force enough to cancel and make void the Obligation, even of a Vow, and therefore surely it ought to be so much considered by us, as to keep us from making any such, whereby that right is infringed.

Ministring to their wants.

15. A fourth duty to the Parent, is to assist and minister to them in all their wants of what kind soever, whether weakness and sickness of Body, decayedness of understanding, or poverty and lowness in estate; in all these the child is bound, according to his ability to relieve and assist them: for the two former, weakness of body, and infirmity of mind, none can doubt of the duty, when they remember how every child did in his infancy receive the very same benefit from the Parents; the child had then no strength to support, no understanding to guide it self; the care of the Parents was fain to supply both these to it, and therefore in common gratitude, whenever either of these becomes the Parents case, as sometimes by great age, or some

some accident both do, the Child is to perform the same offices back again to them. As for that of Relieving their poverty, there is the very same Obligation to that with the former, it being but just to sustain thy Parent who has formerly sustained thee: but besides this, Christ himself teacheth us, that this is contained within the Precept of honouring their Parents: for when, Mark 7. 13. he accuses the Pharisees of rejecting the Commandment of God, to cleave to their own Traditions, he instances in this particular concerning the relieving of Parents, whereby 'tis manifest that this is a part of that duty which is enjoined in the Fifth Commandment, as you may see at large in the Text, and such a duty it is, that no pretence can absolve or acquit us of it. How then shall those answer it, that deny relief to their poor Parents, that cannot part with their own excesses and superfluities, which are indeed their sins, to satisfy the necessities of those to whom they owe their being? Nay, some there are yet worse, who out of Pride scorn to own their Parents in their Poverty: Thus it often happens, when the child is advanced to Dignity or Wealth, they think it a disparagement to them to look on their Parents that remain in a low condition, it being the betraying, as they think, to the World the meanness of their birth, and so the poor Parent fares the worse for the prosperity of his

Sunday
XIV.

Sunday his child. This is such a pride and unnaturalness together, as will surely find a sharp vengeance from God; for if Solomon observe of Pride alone, that it is the fore-runner of destruction, Prov. 16. 18. we may much rather conclude so of it, when it is thus accompanied.

Duty to be paid even to the worst of Parents. 16. To this that hath been said of the duty of Children to their Parents, I shall add only this; that no unkindness, no fault of the Parent, can acquit the child of this duty; but as S. Peter tells Servants, 1 Pet. 2. 18. That they must be subject not only to the good and gentle Masters, but also to the froward; so certainly it belongs to children to perform duty, not only to the kind and virtuous, but even to the harshest, and wickedest Parent. For though the gratitude due to a kind Parent, be a very forcible motive to make the child pay his duty, yet that is not the only nor chiefest ground of it; that is laid in the Command of God, who requires us thus to honour our Parents, and therefore though we should suppose a Parent so unnatural, as never to have done any thing to oblige the Child (which can hardly be imagined) yet still the Command of God continues in force, and we are in Conscience of that, to perform that duty to our Parents, though none of the other tye of gratitude should lie on us.

Duty of Parents to Children. But as this is due from the Child to the Parents, so on the other side there are other things things also due from the Parents to the Child, and that throughout the several States and Ages of it. Sunday XIV.

17. First, There is the care of nourishing and sustaining it, which begins from the very birth, and continues a duty from the Parent, till the Child be able to perform it to himself; this is a duty which nature teaches; even the savage beasts have a great care and tenderness in nourishing their young, and therefore may serve to reproach and condemn all Parents, who shall be so unnatural as to neglect this. I shall not here enter into the question, Whether the Mother be obliged to give the Child its first nourishment, by giving it Suck her self, because 'twill not be possible to affirm universally in the Case, there being many circumstances, which may alter it, and make it not only lawful, but best not to do it: all I shall say, is, that where no impediment of sickness, weakness, or the like does happen, 'tis surely best for the Mother herself to perform this Office, there being many advantages to the Child by it, which a good Mother ought so far to consider, as not to sell them to her own sloth, or niceness, or any such unworthy motive; for where such only are the grounds of forbearing it, they will never be able to justify the omission, they being themselves unjustifiable. To nourish them.

But besides this first care, which belongs to the body of the Child, there is another, Bring them to Bapt.

Sunday which should begin near as early, which be-XIV. longs to their Souls, and that is the bringing them to the Sacrament of Baptism, thereby to procure them an early right to all those precious advantages, which that Sacrament conveys to them. This is a duty the Parents ought not to delay, it being most reasonable, that they who have been instruments to convey the stain and pollution of sin to the poor Infant, should be very earnest and industrious to have it washed off, as soon as may be: Besides, the life of so tender a creature is but a blast, and many times gone in a moment; and though we are not to despair of God's mercy to those poor Children, who die without Baptism, yet surely those Parents commit a great fault by whose neglect it is that they want it.

*Educate
 them.*

18. Secondly, The Parents must provide for the education of the Child; they must, as Solomon speaks, Prov. 22. 6. Train up the Child in the way he should go. As soon therefore as Children come to the use of reason, they are to be instructed, and that first in those things which concern their eternal well-being, they are by little and little to be taught all those things which God hath commanded them as their duty to perform; as also what glorious rewards he hath provided for them, if they do it, and what grievous and eternal punishment, if they do it not. These things ought as early as is possible, to be instilled into into the minds of children, which (like new vessels) do usually keep the favour of that which is first put into them; and therefore it nearly concerns all Parents to look they be at first thus seasoned with Virtue and Religion. 'Tis sure if this be neglected, there is one ready at hand to fill them with the contrary: the Devil will be diligent enough to instill into them all wickedness and vice, even from their cradles; and there being also in all our natures so much the greater aptness to evil, than to good, there is need of great care and watchfulness to prevent those endeavours of that enemy of Souls, which no way can be, but by possessing them at first with good things, breeding in them a love to virtue and a hatred of vice; that so when the temptations come, they may be armed against them. This surely is above all things the duty of Parents to look after, and the neglect of it is a horrible cruelty; we justly look upon those Parents, as most unnatural wretches, that take away the life of their Child; but alas! that is mercy and tenderness, compared to this of neglecting his education, for by that he ruins his Soul, makes him miserable eternally; and God knows, multitudes of such cruel Parents there are in the World, that thus give up their Children to be possess'd by the Devil, for want of an early acquainting them with the ways of God: nay indeed, how few there are that

Sunday do conscionably perform this duty, is too apparent by the strange rudeness and ignorance that is generally among youth; the Children of those who call themselves Christians, being frequently as ignorant of God and Christ, as the meekest Heathens. But whoever they are that thus neglect this great duty, let them know that it is not only a fearful misery they bring upon their poor children, but also a horrible guilt upon themselves. For as God says to the careless Watchman, Ezek. 3. 18. That if any soul perish by his negligence, that soul shall be required at his hands; so surely will it fare with all Parents who have this office of Watchmen entrusted to them by God over their own Children. A second part of education is the bringing them up to some employment, busying them in some honest exercise, whereby they may avoid that great snare of the Devil, Idleness: and also be taught some useful Art or Trade, whereby when they come to age, they may become profitable to the Commonwealth, and able to get an honest living themselves.

Means towards the education of Children.

19. To this great duty of Education of Children there is required as means, first, Encouragement; secondly, Correction. Encouragement is first to be tried, we should endeavour to make Children in love with duty, by offering them rewards and invitations, and whenever they do well, take notice of it, and encourage them to go on. It is an ill course some Parents hold, who think they must never appear to their Children but with a face of fowreness and austerity; this seems to be that which S. Paul forewarns Parents of, when he bids Fathers not to provoke their Children to wrath, Col. 3. 21. To be as harsh and unkind to them, when they do well, as if they do ill, is the way to provoke them; and then the Apostle tells us in the same Verse, what will be the issue of it, they will be discouraged, they will have no heart to go on in any good course, when the Parent affords them no countenance. The second means is correction, and this becomes reasonable, when the former will do no good, when all fair means, persuasions, and encouragements prevail not, then there is a necessity of using sharper; and let that be first tried in words, I mean not by railing and foul language; but in sober, yet sharp reproof; but if that fail too, then proceed to blows; and in this case, as Solomon says, He that spareth the rod hateth his Son, Prov. 13. 24. 'Tis a cruel fondness, that to spare a few stripes at present, will adventure him to those sad mischiefs, which commonly befall the Child that is left to himself. But then this Correction must be given in such a manner, as may be likely to do good; to which purpose it must first be given timely; the Child must not be suffered to run on in any ill, till it hath got a habit, and a stubbornness too. This is a

an

Sunday
XIV.

Sunday great error in many Parents, they will let XIV. their Children alone for divers years, to do what they list, permit them to lye, to steal, without ever so much as rebuking them, nay, perhaps please themselves to see the witty shifts of the Child, and think it matters not what they do while they are little: but alas! all that while the vice gets root, and that many times so deep an one, that all they can do afterwards, whether by words or blows, can never pluck it up. Secondly, Correction must be moderate, not exceeding the quality of the fault, nor the tenderness of the Child. Thirdly, it must not be given in rage, if it be, it will not only be in danger of being immoderate, but it will lose its effects upon the Child, who will think he is corrected, not because he has done a fault, but because his Parent is angry, and so will rather blame the Parent than himself; whereas on the contrary, care should be taken to make the Child as sensible of the fault, as of the smart, without which he will never be throughly amended.

The Parent to watch over their Souls even when they are grown up.

20. Thirdly, After Children are grown up, and are past the age of Education, there are yet other offices for the Parent to perform to them; the Parent is still to watch over them, in respect of their Souls, to observe how they practise those precepts which are given them in their Education, and accordingly to exhort, incourage, or reprove, as they find occasion.

21. So

21. So also for their outward estate, they are to put them into some course of living in the World; if God hath blest the Parent with wealth, according to what he hath he must distribute to his Children, remember that since he was the instrument of bringing them into the World, he is, according to his ability, to provide for their comfortable living in it; they are therefore to be lookt on as very unnatural Parents, who, so they may have enough to spend in their own riots and excess, care not what becomes of their Children, never think of providing for them. Another fault is usual among Parents in this business; they defer all the provisions for them, till themselves be dead, heap up, perhaps, great matters for them against that time, but in the mean time afford them not such a competency, as may enable them to live in the World. There are several mischiefs come from this: First, it lessens the Child's affection to his Parent, nay, sometimes it proceeds so far, as to make him wish his death: which though it be such a fault, as no temptation can excuse a Child, yet 'tis also a great fault in a Parent, to give that temptation. Secondly, it puts the Child upon shifts and tricks, many times dishonest ones, to supply his necessities; this is, I doubt'not, a common effect of it, the hardness of Parents has often put Men upon very unlawful courses, which when they are once acquainted with, perhaps they never leave, though the first occasion cease; and therefore Parents ought to beware how they run them upon those hazards. Besides, the Parent loses that contentment, which he might have in seeing his Children live prosperously and comfortably, which none but an arrant Earthworm would exchange for the vain imaginary pleasure of having Money in his Chest. But in this business of providing for Children there is yet another thing to be heeded, and that is, that the Parent get that wealth honestly, which he makes their portion; else 'tis very far from being a provision; there is such a Curse goes along with an ill gotten Estate, that he that leaves such a one to his Child, doth but cheat and deceive him, makes him believe he has left him wealth, but has withal put such a canker in the bowels of it, that is sure to eat it out. This is so common an observation, that I need say nothing to confirm the truth of it; would God it were as generally laid to heart, as it seems to be generally taken notice of: Then surely Parents would not account it a reasonable motive to unjust dealing, that they may thereby provide for their Children, for this is not a way of providing for them; nay 'tis the way to spoil them of whatever they have lawfully gathered for them; the least mite of unlawful gain being of the nature of leaven which sowres the whole lump, bringing down curses upon all all a man possesseth. Let all Parents therefore satisfy themselves with such Provisions for their Children, as God shall enable them honestly to make, assuring themselves how little soever it be, 'tis a better portion than the greatest wealth unjustly gotten; according to that of Solomon, Prov. 16. 8. Better is a little with righteousness, than great revenue without right.

22. A fourth thing the Parent owes to the Child is good Example, he is not only to set him rules of vertue and godliness, but he must himself give him a pattern in his own practice; we see the force of example is infinitely beyond that of precept, especially where the Person is one to whom we bear a reverence, or with whom we have a continual conversation; both which usually meet in a Parent. It is therefore a most necessary care in all Parents to behave themselves so before their Children, that their example may be a means of winning them to vertue. But alas! this age affords little of this care, nay, so far 'tis from it, that there are none more frequently the instruments of corrupting Children, than their own Parents. And indeed how can it be otherwise! While Men give themselves liberty to all wickedness, 'tis not to be hoped, but that the Children which observe it, will imitate it; the Child that sees his Father drunk, will surely think he may be so too, as well as his Father.

them good Example.

Sunday So he that hears him swear will do the like, and so for all other vices; and if any Parent that is thus wicked himself, should happen to have so much more care of his Child's Soul than his own, as to forbid him the things which himself practises, or correct him for the doing them; 'tis certain the Child will account this a great injustice in his Father, to punish him for that which himself freely does, and so he is never likely to be wrought upon by it. This consideration lays a most strict tie upon all Parents to live Christianly, for otherwise they do not only hazard their own Souls, but those of their Children also, and as it were, purchase an estate of inheritance in Hell.

To bless them.

23. A fifth duty of Parents is blessing their Children; the way of doing that is double, first, by their Prayers; they are by daily and earnest Prayer to commend them to God's protection and blessing, both for their spiritual and temporal Estate; and secondly, by their piety: they are to be such Persons themselves as that a blessing may descend from them upon their posterity. This is often promised in Scripture to Godly men, that their seed shall be blessed. Thus in the second Commandment, God promises to shew mercy to the thousandth generation of them that love him and keep his Commandments. And it is very observable in the Jews, that though they were a stiff-necked generation, and had very grie-grievously provoked God, yet the godliness of their forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, did many times move God to save them from destruction; on the other side, we see that even good men have fared the worse for the Iniquities of their Fathers; thus when Josiah had destroyed Idolatry, restored God's service, and done good beyond all the Kings that were before him, yet there was an old arrear of Manasseh his Grandfather, which all this piety of his would not blot out, but he resolves to cast Judah also out of his sight, as you may read at large, 2 Kings 23. If therefore Parents have any bowels, any kindness towards their Children, any real desire of their prosperity, let them take care by their own godly life to entail a blessing upon them.

Sunday

24. Sixthly, Parents must take heed, that they use their power over their Children with equity and moderation, not to oppress them with unreasonable Commands, only to exercise their own authority, but in all things of weight to consider the real good of their Children, and to press them to nothing, which may not consist with that. This is a rule whereof Parents may often have use, but in none greater than in the business of marrying their Children, wherein many that otherwise are good Parents, have been to blame; when out of an eagerness of bestowing them wealthily, they force them to marry utterly against

Sunday their own inclination, which is a great ty-XIV. ranny, and that which frequently betrays them to a multitude of mischiefs, such as all the wealth in the world cannot repair. There are two things which Parents ought especially to consider in the matching their Children ; the first, how they may live Christianly ; and to that purpose to chuse a vertuous and pious Person to link them with ; the second is, how they may live chearfully and comfortably in this world ; and to that end, though a competency of Estate may be necessary to be regarded, yet surely abundance is no way requisite, and therefore that should not be too vehemently sought after ; that which much more tends to the happiness of that state, is the mutual kindness and liking of the parties, without which marriage is of all other the most uncomfortable condition, and therefore no Parent ought to thrust a Child into it. I have now done with the first sort of Relation, that of a Parent.

SUNDAY XV.

Sunday
XV.

Of duty to our Brethren, and Relations, Husband, Wife, Friends, Masters, Servants.

Sect. I. THE second sort of Relation Dues to Brethren. is that of a Brother; now Brotherhood may be twofold, either natural, or spiritual; the former may in the largest extent contain under it all Mankind, all that partake of the same nature; but I shall not consider it so in this place, having already mentioned those general duties which belong to all as such. I now speak of that natural Brotherhood Natural. that is between those that are the Children of the same immediate Parent; and the duty of these is to have united hearts and affections: this nature points out to them, they partaking in a more especial manner of each others substance, and therefore ought to have the greatest tenderness and kindness, each to other; thus we see Abraham makes it an Argument, why there should be no contention between him and Lot because they were brethren, Gen. 13. 8. And though by brethren there is meant only Cousins, yet that helps the more strongly to conclude that this nearer relation is in reason to be a greater bar to strife, as also that this kindness is in some degree to be extended to all that have any nearness of blood to us.

2. This

XV.

The necessity of Love among Brethren.

grounded in their Hearts; if it be not, they will be of all others in most danger of disagreeing; for the continual conversation that is amongst them whilst they are at home in the Father's house, will be apt to minister some occasion of jar. Besides the equality that is among them in respect of birth, often makes them inclinable to envy each other, when one is in any respect advanced above the other. Thus we see Joseph's brethren envied him, because he had most of his Father's love, and Rachel envied her sister Leah, because she was fruitful; therefore for the preventing of such temptations, let all who have brethren and sisters, possess their mind with a great and real kindness to them, look on them as parts of themselves, and then they will never think fit either to quarrel with them, or to envy them any advantage, any more than one part of the body does another of the same body, but will strive to advance and help forward the good of each other.

Spiritual Brotherhood.

3. The second kind of Brotherhood is spiritual; that contains all those who profess the same faith with us: the Church in our Baptism becomes a Mother to each baptized person; and then surely, they that have the relation of Children to her, must have also the relation of brethren to each other; and to this sort of brethren also we owe a great deal of of tenderness and affection; the spiritual bond of Religion should of all others the most closely unite our hearts. This is the Brotherhood which S. Peter exhorts us to love, 1 Pet. 2. 17. And to it we are in an especial manner bound to do all good offices. Do good, saith the Apostle, to all, but especially to them that are of the household of Faith, Gal. 6. 10. Our compassions are to be most melting towards them of all others, in all their needs; Christ tells us, that whosoever gives but a cup of cold water to any in the name of a Disciple, shall not lose his reward, Matth. 10. 42. From whence we may assure our selves that this peculiar love to Christians as Christians, is very acceptable in his sight.

4. Several duties there are required of us to these brethren; one principal, is the holding Communion with them, and that first in Doctrine; we are constantly to continue in the belief and profession of all those necessary truths, by which we may be mark'd out as followers and Disciples of Christ. This is that faith which S. Jude speaks of, which was once delivered to the Saints, Jud. 3. by keeping whereof we continue still united to this spiritual brotherhood, in respect of profession, which we must constantly do, what storms and persecutions soever attend it, according to the exhortation of the Apostle, Hebr. 10. 22. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering. Secondly; we are also,

Our duty to hold communion with these brethren.

Sunday also as opportunity serves to communicate XV. with them in all holy offices; we must be diligent in frequenting the Assemblies of the Saints, which is as it were the badge of our profession: and therefore he that willingly withdraws himself from these, gives ground to suspect he will be apt to renounce the other also. But these parts of communion we find strictly maintained by the first Christians, Act. 2. 42. They continued stedfastly in the Apostles doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. They continued, and that stedfastly, they were not frightened from it by any Persecutions, though that were a time wherein they were tired with the sharpest sufferings; which may teach us that it is not the danger that attends this Duty, can acquit us of it.

To bear with their infirmities.

5. Secondly, we are to bear with the infirmities of our Christian Brethren, according to the advice of S. Paul. Rom. 15. 1. We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak. If one that holds all necessary Christian truths, happen yet to be in some error, we are not for this, either to forsake his communion, or despise his Person. This S. Paul teaches us in the case of that weak brother, Who by error made a causeless scruple about meats, Rom. 14. where he bids the stronger Christians, that is, those who being better instructed, discerned him to be in an error, yet to receive him nevertheless, and not to despise him ; as, on the other side, he bids that weak one not to judge the stronger. The lesser differences in Opinion must be born with on both sides, and must not in the least abate our brotherly charity towards each other.
 not

6. Thirdly, we are to endeavour the restoring of any fallen Brother, that is, to bring him to repentance, after he hath fallen into any sin. Thus St. Paul commands the Galatians, that they should restore him that was Overtaken in a fault, considering themselves lest they were also tempted. We are not to look on him as a cast-away, to give him over as utterly desperate ; neither are we to triumph over him, in respect of our own innocence, like the proud Pharisee over the poor Publican, Luke 18. 11. but we are meekly to endeavour his recovery, remembering that our own frailty is such, that we are not secure from the like falls.

7. Fourthly, We are to have a sympathy and fellow-feeling with these brethren, to be nearly toucht with whatsoever befalls them, either as they are consider'd in Society or in single Persons. In Society first, and so they make up a Church ; and that either the universal, which is made up of all Believers throughout the World, or any particular Church, which is made up of all the Believers in that particular Nation ; and whatever happens to either of these, either the Sunday whole Church in general, or any such single XV. part of it, especially that whereof our selves are members, we are to be much affected and moved with it, to rejoyce in all the prosperities, and to moan and bewail all the breaches and desolations thereof, and daily and earnestly to pray with David, Psal. 51. 18. O be favourable and gracious unto Sion, build thou the walls of Jerusalem; and that especially when we see her in distress and persecution.

 Whosoever is not thus touch't with the condition of the Church, is not to be looked on as a living member of it; for as in the natural Body every member is concerned in the prosperity of the whole, so certainly 'tis here: It was the observation of the Psalmist, that God's servants think upon the stones of Sion, and pity to see her in the dust, Psal. 102. 14. and surely all his Servants are still of the same temper, cannot look on the ruins and desolations of the Church, without the greatest sorrow and lamentation. Secondly, We are to have this fellow-feeling with our brethren, consider'd as single Persons; We are to account our selves concerned in every particular Christian, so as to partake with him in all his occasions either of joy or sorrow. Thus the Apostle exhorts, Rom. 12. 14. Rejoyce with them that rejoyce, weep with them that weep: And again, 1 Cor. 12. under the simi-litude of the natural body he urges this duty, Whether one member suffer, all the members suffer

fer with it ; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoyce with it. All these several effects of love, we owe to these spiritual brethren. And this love is that, which Christ hath made the badge of his Disciples, John 13. 35. By this shall all men know that ye are my Disciples, if ye have love one to another ; so that if we mean not to cast off discipleship to Christ, we must not forsake this love of the brethren.

8. The third Relation is that between Husband and Wife ; This is yet much nearer than either of the former, as appears by that Text, Ephes. 5. 31. A man shall leave Father and Mother, and cleave to his Wife, and they two shall be one flesh. Several duties there are owing from one of these persons to the other : and first for the Wife, she owes Obedience : This is commanded by the Apostle, Col. 3. 18. Wives submit your selves to your own Husbands, as it is fit in the Lord. They are to render obedience to their Husbands in the Lord, that is, in all lawful commands ; for otherwise 'tis here, as in the case of all other Superiours, God must be obeyed rather than man, and the Wife must not, upon her Husband's command, do any thing which is forbidden by God. But in all things which do not cross some command of God's, this precept is of force, and will serve to condemn the peevish stubbornness of many Wives, who resist the lawful commands of their Husbands, only because they are impatient of this duty of

Obedience.

Sunday subjection, which God himself requires of XV. them. But it may be here asked, What if the Husband command something, which though it be not unlawful, is yet very inconvenient and imprudent, must the Wife submit to such a command? To this I answer, That it will be no disobedience in her, but duty, calmly and mildly to shew him the inconveniences thereof, and to persuade him to retract that command; but in case she cannot win him to it by fair intreaties, she must neither try sharp language, nor yet finally refuse to obey, nothing but the unlawfulness of the command being sufficient warrant for that.

Fidelity. 9. Secondly, The Wife owes Fidelity to the Husband, and that of two sorts; first, that of the Bed, she must keep her self pure and chaste from all strange embraces, and therefore must not so much as give an ear to any that would allure her, but with the greatest abhorrence reject all motions of that sort, and never give any man that has once made such a motion to her, the least opportunity to make a second. Secondly, She owes him likewise Fidelity in the managing those worldly affairs he commits to her, she must order them so, as may be most to her Husband's advantage; and not by deceiving and cozening of him employ his Goods to such uses as he allows not of.

Love. 10. Thirdly, She owes him Love, and together with that all friendliness and kindness of conversation: she is to endeavour to bring him him as much assistance, and comfort of life, as is possible, that so she may answer that special end of the Woman's Creation, the being a help to her Husband, Gen. 2. 13. and this in all conditions, whether health or sickness, wealth or poverty, whatsoever estate God by his Providence shall cast him into, she must be as much of comfort and support to him as she can. To this all sullenness and harshness, all brawling and unquietness is directly contrary, for that makes the Wife the burden and plague of the Man, instead of a help and comfort: And sure if it be a fault to behave one's self so to any person, as hath already been shewed; how great must it be to do so to him, to whom the greatest kindness and affection is owing?

11. Nor let such Wives think that any faults or provocations of the Husband can justify their frowardness; for they will not, either in respect of Religion or Discretion. Not in Religion, for where God has absolutely commanded a duty to be paid, 'tis not any unworthiness of the person can excuse from it; nor Indiscretion, for the worse a Husband is, the more need there is for the Wife to carry her self with that gentleness and sweetness, that may be most likely to win him. This is the advice St. Peter gave the Wives of his time, 1 Pet. 3. 1. Likewise ye wives be in subjection to your own husbands, that if any obey not the word, they may without the word be won

The faults of the Husband, acquit not from these duties.

Sunday by the conversation of the Wives. It seems, the good behaviour of the Wives was thought a powerful means to win men from Heathenism to Christianity; and sure it might now a-days have some good effects, if Women would have but the patience to try it; At the least, 'twould have this, that it would keep some tolerable quiet in Families; whereas, on the other side, the ill fruits of the Wives unquietness are so notorious, that there are few Neighbourhoods, but can give some instance of it. How many Men are there, that to avoid the noise of a froward Wife, have fallen to company-keeping, and by that to drunkenness, poverty, and a multitude of mischiefs? Let all Wives therefore beware of administering that temptation. But whenever there happens any thing, which, in kindness to her Husband, she is to admonish him of, let it be with that softness and mildness, that it may appear 'tis love, and not anger, that makes her speak.

The Husband owes to the Wife love.

12. There are also on the Husband's part several Duties; there is first, Love, which St. Paul requires to be very tender and compassionate towards the Wife, as appears by the similitudes he useth in that matter, Eph. 5. The one, that of the love a man bears to his natural body; No man, saith he, verse 29. ever hateth his own flesh, but nourisheth it, and cherisheth it. The other love is that Christ bears to his Church; which is far greater, verse

verse 25. both which he sets as patterns of ^{Sunday} this love of Husbands towards their Wives. ^{XV.} This utterly forbids all harshness and roughness to them; men are to use them as parts of themselves, to love them as their own bodies, and therefore to do nothing that may be hurtful and grievous to them, no more than they would cut and gash their own flesh. Let those Husbands that tyrannize over their Wives, that scarce use them like humane Creatures, consider whether that be to love them as their own bodies.

13. A second Duty of the Husband, is ^{Faithful-]} Faithfulness to the Bed. This is by God as ^{ness.} well required of the Husband, as the Wife; and though the world do seem to look on the breach of this duty with less abhorrence in the Husband, yet sure before that just Judge, the offence will appear no less on the Man's side, than the Woman's. This is certain, 'tis in both a breach of the vow made to each other at their Marriage, and so besides the uncleanness, a downright perjury, and those differences in the case, which seem to cast the scale, are rather in respect of civil and worldly consideration, than merely of the sin.

14. A third part of the Husband, is to ^{Mainte-} maintain and provide for the Wife. He is to ^{nance.} let her partake with him in those outward good things wherewith God hath blest him, and neither by niggardliness debar her of what is fit for her, nor yet by unthriftiness

Sunday so waste his goods, that he shall become un-XV. able to support her. This is certainly the duty of the Husband, who being, as hath been said, to account his Wife as a part of his own body, so he must have the same care to sustain her that he hath for himself. Yet this is not so to be understood, as to excuse the Wife from her part of labour and industry, when that is requisite, it being unreasonable the Husband should toil to maintain the Wife in idleness.

Instruction. 15. Fourthly, The Husband is to instruct the Wife, in the things which concern her eternal welfare, if she be ignorant of them. Thus St. Paul bids the Wives learn of their Husbands at home, 1 Cor. 14. 36. which supposes that the Husband is to teach her. Indeed, it belongs to every Master of a Family to endeavour that all under his charge be taught all necessary things of this kind, and then sure more-espècially his Wife, who is so much nearer to him than all the rest. This should make men careful to get knowledge themselves, that so they may be able to perform this duty they owe to others.

Husbands and Wives mutually to pray for and assist each other in all good. 16. Lastly, Husbands and Wives are mutually to pray for each other, to beg all blessings from God, both spiritual and temporal, and to endeavour all they can to do all good to one another, espècially all good to each others Souls, by stirring up to the performance of Duty, and dissuading and drawing back back from all sin, and by being like true yoke-fellows, helpful and assistant to each other in the doing of all sorts of good, both to their own Family, and all others within their reach. This is of all other the truest and most valuable love. Nay, indeed, how can it be said they do love at all, who contentedly let each other run on in a course that will bring them to eternal misery? And if the love of Husbands and Wives were thus grounded in Virtue and Religion, 'twould make their lives a kind of Heaven on Earth; 'twould prevent all those contentions and brawlings so common among them, which are the great plagues of Families, and the lesser Hell in passage to the greater; and truly, where it is not thus founded, there is little comfort to be expected in marriage.

17. It should therefore be the care of every one that means to enter upon that state, to consider advisedly before-hand, and to chuse such a person with whom they may have this spiritual Friendship, that is, such a one as truly fears God. There are many false ends of Marriage lookt upon in the world; some marry for Wealth, others for Beauty, and generally they are only worldly respects that are at all consider'd; but certainly he that would marry as he ought, should contrive to make his Marriage useful to those better ends of serving God, and saving his own Soul; at least, he must be sure it be no hindrance to them,

Unlawful Marriage.

18. But above all things, let all take heed, that they make not such marriages, as may not only be ill in their effects, but are actual sins at the time ; such are the Marriages of those that were formerly promised to some other, in which case, 'tis sure, they rightly belong to those, to whom they past the first promise ; and then for any other to marry them, during the life of that person, is to take the Husband or Wife of that other, which is direct Adultery, as St. Paul tells us, Rom. 7. 3. The like unlawfulness there is also in the Marriage of those, who are within those degrees of Kindred forbidden by God, the particulars whereof are set down in the 18. and 20. of Levit. and whoever marries any that is within any of those degrees of nearness, either to himself, or to his deceased Wife, which is as bad, commits that great sin of Incest, and so long as he continues to live with such his unlawful Wife, remains in that fearful guilt. This wariness in the choice of the Person to be married, would prevent many sad effects, which we daily see follow such rash or unlawful matches. It were well therefore if people would look on Marriage, as our Church

Church advises, as a thing not to be under- Sunday tisfie mens carnal lusts and appetites, but reverently, discreetly, advisedly, soberly, and in the fear of God; and in so doing, no doubt, a Blessing would follow, which otherwise there is little ground to expect. I have now done with this Relation between Husband and Wife.

19. The next is that between Friends; Friendship. and this Relation, if it be rightly founded, is of great nearness and usefulness; but there is none more generally mistaken in the world; men usually call them their Friends, with whom they have an intimacy and frequency of Conversation, though that intimacy be indeed nothing but an agreement and combination in sin. The Drunkard thinks him his Friend that will keep him company; the deceitful Person, him that will aid him in his cheats; the proud man, him that will flatter him: and so generally in all vices, they are look'd on as friends that advance and further us in them. But God knows this is far from friendship; such a friend as this, the Devil himself is in the highest degree, who is never backward in such offices. The true friendship is that of a direct contrary making; 'tis a concurrence and agreement in virtue, not in vice; in short, a true friend loves his friend so, that he is very zealous of his good, and certainly he

Sunday he that is really so, will never be the instrument of bringing him to the greatest evil.

XV.

Its Duties. The general duty of a friend then must be resolved to be the industrious pursuit of his friend's real advantages, in which there are several particulars contained.

Faithfulness. 20. As first, Faithfulness in all trust committed to him by his Friend, whether that of goods or secrets ; he that betrays the trust of a friend in either, is by all men look'd upon with abhorrence, it being one of the highest fallenesses and treacheries, and for such treacherous wounds the Wise Man tells us, Every friend will depart, Eccles. 22. 22.

Assistance. 21. Secondly, 'Tis the duty of a friend to be assisting to his friend in all his outward needs ; to counsel him when he wants advice ; to cheer him when he needs comfort ; to give him when he wants relief ; and to endeavour his rescue out of any trouble or danger. An admirable example we have of this friendship in Jonathay to David, he loved him as his own soul, and we see he not only contrives for his safety when he was in danger, but runs hazards himself to rescue and deliver his friend ; draws his Father's anger upon him, to turn it from David, as you may read at large, 1 Sam. 20.

Admonition. 22. The third and highest duty of a friend, is to be aiding and assisting to the Soul of his friend, to endeavour to advance that in piety and vertue, by all means within his power, by

by exhortations and encouragements to all vertue, by earnest and vehement dissuasions from all sin, and not only thus in general, but by applying to his particular wants, especially by plain and friendly reproofs, where he knows or reasonably believes there is any fault committed. This is of all others the most peculiar duty of a friend, it being indeed that which none else is qualified for. Such an unwillingness there is in most men to hear of their faults, that those that undertake that work, had need have a great prepossession of their hearts, to make them patient of it. Nay, it is so generally acknowledged to be the proper work of a friend, that if he omit it, he betrays the offender into security; his not reproving, will be apt to make the other think he does nothing worthy of reproof, and so he tacitly acts that basest part of a flatterer, soothes and cherishes him in his sin; when yet farther it is considered how great need all men have at some time or other of being admonished, 'twill appear most unfriendly, yea, a cruel thing to omit it. We have that natural partiality to our selves, that we cannot so readily discern our own miscarriages, as we do other mens, and therefore 'tis very necessary they should sometimes be shewed us by those, who see them more clearly; and the doing this at the first, may prevent the multiplying of more: whereas if we be suffered to go unreproved,

Sunday
XV.

Sunday proved, it often comes to such a habit, that
XV. reproofs will do no good. And then how shall that Person be able to answer it either to God or himself, that has by his silence betrayed his friend to this greatest mischief? 'Tis the expression of God himself, speaking of a friend, Thy friend which is as thine own soul, Deut. 13. 6. And sure we should in this respect account our friends as our own Souls, by having the same jealous tenderness and watchfulness over their Souls, which we ought to have of our own. It will therefore be very fit for all that have entered any strict friendship, to make this one special Article in the agreement, that they shall mutually admonish and reprove each other; by which means it will become such an avowed part of their friendship, that it can never be mistaken by the reprov'd party for censoriousness or unkindness.

Prayer. 23. Fourthly, To these several parts of kindness must be added that of Prayer; we must not only assist our friends, our selves, in what we can, but we must call in the Almighty's aid to them, recommending them earnestly to God for all his blessings, both temporal and spiritual.

Constancy. 24. Lastly, We must be constant in our friendships, and not out of a lightness of humour grow weary of a friend, only because we have had him long. This is great injustice to him, who, if he have behaved himself self well, ought the more to be valued, by how much the longer he has continued to do so: And it is great folly in our selves, for it is the casting away the greatest treasure of humane life, for such certainly is a tried friend. The wisest of men gives warning of it, Prov. 27. 16. Thine own friend, and thy father's friend forsake not. Nay, farther, 'tis not every light offence of a friend, that should make thee renounce his friendship, there must be some allowance made to the infirmities of men, and if thou hast occasion to pardon him somewhat to day, perhaps thou mayest give him opportunity to requite thee to morrow; therefore nothing but unfaithfulness, or incorrigible vice should break this band.

Sunday
XV.

25. The last relation is that between Masters and Servants, both which owe duty to each other. That of the Servant is, first, obedience to all lawful commands; this is expressly required by the Apostle, Ephes. 6. 6. Servants obey in all things your Masters, &c. And this obedience must not be a grumbling and unwilling one, but ready and chearful, as he there proceeds to exhort, ver. 7. with good-will doing service; and to help them herein, they are to consider, that it is to the Lord, and not unto men. God has commanded Servants thus to obey their Masters; and therefore the obedience they pay is to God, which may well make them do it chearfully: how

Servants owe to their Masters Obedience.

Sunday how harsh or unworthy soever the Master be,
XV. especially if what the Apostle further urgeth, verse 8. be considered, That there is a reward to be expected from God for it.

Fidelity. 26. The second duty of the Servant, is Faithfulness, and that may be of two sorts ; one as opposed to Eye-service, the other to Purloining or Defrauding. The first part of faithfulness, is the doing of all true service to his Master, not only when his eye is over him, and he expects punishment for the omission, but at all times, even when his Master is not likely to discern his failing ; and that Servant that doth not make conscience of this, is far from being a faithful Servant, this eye-service being by the Apostle set opposite to that singleness of heart which he requires of servants, Eph. 6. 5. The second sort of faithfulness consists in the honest ma-nagery of all things intrusted to him by his Master, the not wasting his goods (as the unjust Steward was accused to have done, Luke 16.) whether by careless embezilling of them, or by converting any of them to his own use, without the allowance of his Master. This latter is that purloining of which the Apostle warns servants, Tit. 2. 10. and is indeed no better than arrant theft ; of this kind are all those ways, that the Servant hath of gaining to himself, by the loss and damage of his Master, as the being bribed to make ill bargains for him, and many the like :

Nay,

Nay, indeed this sort of unfaithfulness is worse than common theft, by how much there is a greater trust reposed; the betraying whereof adds to the crime. As for the other sort of unfaithfulness, that of wasting, though without gain to themselves, it differs not much in effect from this, the master may lose as much by the one as the other, and then what odds is it to him, whether he be robb'd by the covetousness or negligence of his Servant? And it is still the same breach of trust with the former; for every Master is supposed to intrust his affairs as well to the care as the honesty of his Servant: for 'twould be little advantage to the Master to be secured that his Servant would not himself cheat him, whilst in the mean time he would by his carelessness give opportunity to others to do it: therefore he that does not carefully look to his Master's profit, deceives his trust as well as he that unjustly provides for his own.

27. A Third Duty of a Servant is Patience and Meekness under the reproofs of his Master, not answering again, as the Apostle exhorts, Tit. 2. 9. that is, not making such surly and rude replies, as may encrease the Master's displeasure, a thing too frequent among Servants, even in the justest reprehensions; whereas S. Peter directs them patiently to suffer even the most undeserved correction, even when they do well and suffer for it, 1 Pet. 2. 20. But the patient suffering to rebuke.

Sunday of rebuke is not all that is required of Ser-XV. vants in this matter, they must also mend the fault they are rebuked for, and not think they have done enough, when they have (though never so dutifully) given the Master the hearing.

Diligence.

28. A fourth Duty of a Servant is Diligence; he must constantly attend to all those things, which are the duties of his place, and not give himself to idleness and sloth, nor yet to Company-keeping, Gaming, or any other disorderly course which may take him off from his Masters business, All these are necessary duties of a servant, which they are carefully and conscionably to perform, not so much to escape the Master's anger as God's, who will certainly call every one of them to an account, how they have behaved themselves towards their earthly Masters.

Masters owe to their Servants Justice.

29. Now on the other side, there are some things also owing from the Masters to their Servants: As first, the Master is bound to be just to them, in performing those conditions on which they were hired; such are commonly the giving them food and wages, and that Master that with-holds these, is an Oppressor.

Admonition.

30. Secondly, The Master is to admonish and reprove the Servant in case of fault, and that not only in faults against them, wherein few Masters are backward, but also and more especially in faults against God, whereat every every Master ought to be more troubled than at those which tend only to his own loss, or inconvenience; the dishonour of God, and the hazard of the meanest Man's Soul, being infinitely more worthy our disquiet, than any thing of the other kind can be. And therefore when Masters are presently on fire for any little negligence or fault of a Servant towards themselves, and yet can without trouble see them run into the greatest sins against God, 'tis a sign they consider their own concerns too much, and God's glory and their Servants Soul too little. This is too commonly the temper of Masters, they are generally careless how their Servants behave themselves towards God, how disordered and profane their Families are, and therefore never bestow any exhortation, or admonition to persuade them to vertue, or draw them from vice; such Masters forget that they must one day give an account how they have govern'd their Families. It is certainly the duty of every Ruler to endeavour to advance Piety and Godliness among all those that are under his charge, and that as well in this lesser dominion of a Family, as in the greater of a Realm or Nation. Of this David was so careful, that we see he professes, Psal. 101. 7. That no deceitful person should dwell in his house, that he that told lies should not tarry in his sight, so much he thought himself bound to provide, that his Family

might

Sunday
XV.

Sunday might be a kind of Church, an Assembly of
XV. godly upright persons: and if all Masters would endeavour to have theirs so, they would besides the eternal reward of it hereafter find a present benefit by it, their worldly business would thrive much the better; for if their Servants were brought to make conscience of their ways, they would then not dare either to be negligent or false.

31. But as it is the Duty of Masters to admonish and reprove their Servants, so they must also look to do it in a due manner, that is, so as may be most likely to do good, not in passion and rage, which can never work the Servant to any thing but the despising or hating him: but with such sober and grave speeches, as may convince him of his fault, and may also assure him, that it is a kind desire of his amendment (and not a willingness to wreck his own rage) which makes the Master thus to rebuke him.

Good Example.

32. A Third Duty of the Master is to set good example of honesty and godliness to his Servants, without which 'tis not all the exhortations or reproofs he can use will ever do good; or else he pulls down more with his example, than 'tis possible for him to build with the other, and 'tis madness for a drunken or prophane Master to expect a sober and godly Family.

Means of Instruction.

33. Fourthly, The Master is to provide that his Servants may not want means of being being instructed in their duty, as also that ^{Sunday} they may daily have constant times of wor- ^{XV.}shipping God publickly, by having Prayers in the family : but of this I have spöken before under the head of Prayer, and therefore shall here say no more of it.

34. Fifthly, The Master in all affairs of his own, is to give reasonable and moderate ^{Moderation in Command.} Commands, not laying greater burthens on his Servants, than they are able to bear, particularly not requiring so much work that they shall have no time to bestow on their Souls; as on the other side he is not to permit them to live so idly as may make them either useless to him, or may betray themselves to any ill.

35. Sixthly, The Master is to give his Servants encouragement in well doing, by using ^{Encouragement in well-doing.} them with that bounty and kindness which their faithfulness and diligence, and piety deserves; and finally in all his dealing with them, he is to remember that himself hath, as the Apostle saith, Ephes. 6. 9. a Master in Heaven, to whom he must give an account of the usage of his meanest Servant on Earth. Thus have I briefly run through those several relations to which we owe particular Duty, and so have done with that first branch of Duty to our Neighbours, that of Justice.

SUNDAY XVI.

*Other Branches of our Duty to our Neighbour.
Of Charity to Mens Souls, Bodies, Goods and Credit.*

Charity.

Sect. I. THE second Branch of Duty to our Neighbour, is Charity, or Love. This is the great Gospel duty so often enjoyed us by Christ; the New Commandment, as himself calls it, Job. 13. 34. that ye love one another, and this is again repeated twice in one Chapter, Job. 15. 12. 17. and the first Epistle of S. John is almost wholly spent in the perswasion of this one duty; by which we may see it is no matter of indifference, but most strictly required of all that profess Christ. Indeed himself has given it as the badge and livery of his Disciples, Job. 13. 35. By this shall all men know ye are my Disciples, if ye have love one to another.

In the affections.

This Charity may be considered two ways; first, in respect of the Affections, secondly, of the Actions; Charity in the affections is a sincere kindness, which disposes us to wish all good to others, and that in all their capacities, in the same manner that Justice obligeth us to wish no hurt to any Man, in respect either of his Soul, his Body, his Goods, or his Credit; so this first part of Charity

Charity binds us to wish all good to them in all these. Sunday
XVI.

And first for the Soul. If we have any the least spark of Charity, we cannot but wish all good to mens Souls; those precious things which Christ thought worth the ransoming with his own blood, may surely well challenge our kindness, and good wishes; and therefore if we do not thus love one another, we are far from obeying that command of loving as he hath loved: for it was the Souls of Men which he loved so tenderly, and both did and suffered so much for. Of this love of his to Souls there are two great and special effects: the first, the purifying them here by his Grace, the second, the making them everlastingly happy in his Glory; and both these we are so far to copy out in our kindness, as to be earnestly desirous that all Men should arrive to that purity and holiness here, which may make them capable of eternal happiness hereafter. It were to be hoped, that none, that himself carried a Soul about him, could be so cruel to that of another man's, as not sincerely to wish this, did, not experience shew us there are some persons, whose malice is so devilish, as to reach even to the direct contrary; the wishing not only the sin, but the damnation of others. Thus may you have some, who, in any injury or oppression they suffer, make it their only comfort, that their enemies will damn

Sunday
XVI.

themselves by it; when alas? that should to a Christian be much more terrible, than any suffering they could bring upon him. He that is of this temper, is a disciple of Satan, not of Christ, it being directly contrary to the whole scope of that grand Christian precept, of loving our Neighbour as our selves. For it is sure, no Man that believes there is such a thing as damnation, wishes it to himself; be he never so fond of the ways that lead to it, yet he wishes that may not be his journeys end: and therefore by that rule of Charity should as much dread it for his Neighbour,

To their Bodies, Goods and Credit.

Secondly, We are to wish all good to the Bodies of Men, all health and welfare; we are generally tender enough of our own bodies, dread the least pain or ill, that can befall them: Now Charity, by vertue of the forementioned precept, extends this tenderness to all others: and whatever we apprehend as grievous to our selves, we must be unwilling should befall another. The like is to be said of the other two, goods and credit, that as we wish our own thriving and reputation, so we should likewise that of others, or else we can never be said to love our neighbours as our selves.

Effects of this Charity.

This Charity of the Affections, if it be sincere, will certainly have these several effects, which are so inseparable from it, that they are often in Scripture accounted as parts of the the duty, and so most strictly required of us; First, it will keep the mind in a peaceable and meek temper towards others, so far from seeking occasion of contentions, that no provocation shall draw us to it; for where we have kindness we shall be unapt to quarrel, it being one of the special qualities of Charity, that it is not easily provoked, 1 Cor. 13. 5. And therefore whosoever is unpeaceable, shews his heart is destitute of this Charity. Secondly, it will breed compassion towards all the miseries of others; every mishap that befalls where we wish well, is a kind of defeat and disaster to our selves, and therefore if we wish well to all, we shall be thus concerned in the calamities of all, have a real grief and sorrow to see any in misery, and that according to the proportion of the suffering. Thirdly, It will give us joy in the prosperities of others. Solomon observes, Prov. 13. 19. That the desire accomplished is sweet to the soul; and then whoever has this real desire of his neighbours welfare, his desire is accomplished in their prosperity, and therefore he cannot but have contentment and satisfaction in it. Both these are together commanded by S. Paul, Rom. 12. 12. Rejoyce with them that rejoyce, weep with them that weep. Fourthly, it will excite and stir up our Prayers for others; we are of our selves impotent, feeble creatures, unable to bestow blessings, where we most wish them, there, Sunday therefore if we do indeed desire the good of XVI. others we must seek it on their behalf from him, whence every good and perfect gift cometh, Jam. 1. 17. This is so necessary a part of Charity, that without it our kindness is but an insignificant thing, a kind of empty complement. For how can he be believed to wish well in earnest, who will not thus put life and efficacy into his wishes by forming them into Prayers, which will otherwise be vain and fruitless? the Apostle thought not fit to leave men to their bare wishes but exhorts that Supplications, Prayers and giving of thanks be made for all men, 1 Tim. 2. 1. which precept all that have this true charity of the heart, will readily conform to. These severals are so naturally the fruits of this Charity, that it is a deceit for any man to persuade himself he hath it who cannot produce these fruits to evidence it by.

It casts out Envy.

But there is yet a farther excellency of this grace; it guards the mind, and secures it from several great and dangerous vices; as first, from Envy: this is by the Apostle taught us to be the property of Charity, 1 Cor. 13. 4.
Charity envieth not; and indeed common reason may confirm this to us, for envy is a sorrow at the prosperity of another, and therefore must needs be directly contrary to that desire of it, which we shewed before was the effect of love; so that if love bear sway in the heart, 'twill certainly chase out Envy

Envy. How vainly then do these pretend to this vertue, that are still grudging, and repining at every good hap of others. Sunday
XVI.

Secondly, it keeps down Pride and Haughtiness. This is also taught us by the Apostle, in the forementioned place, Charity vaunteth not it self, is not puffed up, and accordingly we find, that where this vertue of love is commanded, their humility is joyned with it. Thus it is, Col. 3. 12. Put on therefore bowels of Mercies, Kindness, Humbleness of mind; and Rom. 12. 10. Be kindly affectioned one towards another with Brotherly love, in honour preferring one another, where you see how close an attendant Humility is of love. Indeed it naturally flows from it, for love always sets a price and value upon the thing beloved, makes us esteem and prize it; thus we too constantly find it in self-love, it makes us think highly of our selves, that we are much more excellent than other men. Now if love thus plac'd on our selves, beget pride, let us but divert the course, and turn this love on our Brethren, and it will as surely beget humility, for then we should see and value those gifts and excellencies of theirs, which now our pride or our hatred make us to overlook and neglect, and not think it reasonable either to despise them or vaunt and magnifie our selves upon such a comparison; we should certainly find cause to put the Apostles Exhortation in practice, Phil. 2. 4.

That

Sunday That we should esteem others better than our XVI. selves. Whoever therefore is of so haughty a temper, as to vilifie and disdain others, may conclude, he hath not this Charity rooted in his heart.

Censorious- Thirdly, It casts out Censoriousness and ness. rash judging; Charity, as the Apostle saith, 1 Cor. 13. 5. thinketh no evil; is not apt to entertain ill conceits of others, but on the contrary, as it follows, Verse 7. believeth all things, hopeth all things; that is, it is forward to believe and hope the best of all Men; and surely our own experience tells us the same, for where we love we are usually unapt to discern faults, be they never so gross (witness the great blindness we generally have towards our own) and therefore shall certainly not be like to create them, where they are not, or to aggravate them beyond their true size and degree, and then to what shall we impute those unmerciful censures and rash judgment of others, so frequent among men, but to the want of his Charity?

Dissem- Fourthly, It casts out Dissembling and bling. feigned kindness; where this true and real love is, that false and counterfeit one flies from before it, and this is the love we are commanded to have, such as is without dissi- mulation, Rom. 12. 9. Indeed where this is rooted in the heart, there can be no possible use of dissimulation, because this is in truth all that the false one would seem to be, and so is is as far beyond it as Nature is beyond Art ; nay indeed as a divine vertue is beyond a foul sin, for such is that hypocritical kindness ; and yet 'tis to be feared, that does too generally usurp the place of this real charity ; the effects of it are too visible among us, there being nothing more common than to see Men make large professions to those whom, as soon as their backs are turned, they either deride or mischief.

Sunday
XVI.

Fifthly, It casts out all mercenariness, and self-seeking: 'tis of so noble and generous a temper, that it despises all projectings for gain or advantage, Love seeketh not her own, 1 Cor. 13. 5. And therefore that huckstering kind of love so much used in the World, which places it self only there, where it may fetch in benefit, is very far from this charity.

Lastly, It turns out of the heart all malice and desire of Revenge, which is so utterly contrary to it, that it is impossible they should both dwell in the same breast ; 'tis the property of love to bear all things, 1 Cor. 13. 7. to endure the greatest injuries, without thought of making any other return to them than prayers and blessings, and therefore the malicious revengeful person is of all others the greatest stranger to this charity.

'Tis true, if this vertue were to be exercised but towards some sort of Persons, it might consist with malice to others, it being possible for a man that bitterly hates one, to love another :

This Charity to be extended even to enemies.

Sunday ther: but we are to take notice that this
XVI. Charity must not be so confined, but must extend and stretch it self to all Men in the World, particularly to Enemies, or else it is not that divine Charity commended to us by Christ. The loving of friends and benefactors is so low a pitch, that the very Publicans and Sinners, the worst of Men were able to attain to it, Matth. 5. 46. And therefore 'tis not counted rewardable in a Disciple of Christ; no, ne expects we should soar higher, and therefore hath set us this more spiritual and excellent precept of loving of enemies, Mat. 4. 44. I say unto you love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you, and who-soever does not thus, will never be owned by him for a Disciple. We are therefore to conclude, that all which has been said concerning this Charity of the Affections, must be understood to belong as well to our spitefullest enemy, as our most obliging friend; but because this is a duty to which the froward nature of Man is apt to object much, 'twill not be amiss to insist a little on some considerations which may enforce it on us.

*Motives
thereunto.
Command of Christ.*

And first, consider what hath been already touch'd on, that it is the command of Christ, both in the Texts above mentioned, and multitudes of others; there being scarce any precept so often repeated in the New Testament, as this of loving and forgiving of our enemies enemies. Thus Ephes. 4. 32. Be ye kind one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another; And again, Col. 3. 13. Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any, even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye. So also 1 Pet. 3. 9. Not rendering evil for evil, nor railing for railing, but contrariwise Blessings. A whole Volume of Texts might be brought to this purpose, but these are certainly enough to convince any Man, that this is strictly required of us by Christ, and indeed I think, there are few that ever heard of the Gospel, but know it is so. The more prodigiously strange is it, that Men that call themselves Christians, should give no degree of obedience to it, nay, not only so, but even publickly avow, and profess the contrary, as we daily see they do, it being ordinary to have Men resolve, and declare that they will not forgive such, or such a Man, and no considerations of Christ's command can at all move them from their purpose. Certainly these Men understand not what is meant by the very word Christian, which signifies a Servant and Disciple of Christ, and this Charity is the very badge of the one, and lesson of the other: and therefore 'tis the greatest absurdity, and contradiction, to profess themselves Christians, and yet at the same time to resist this so express Command of that Christ, whom they own as their Master, If I be a Master, saith God, where

Sunday
XVI.

where is my fear, Mal. 1. 6. Obedience and reverence are so much the duties of Servants, that no man is thought to look on him as a Master, to whom he pays them not, Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things I say? saith Christ, Luke 6. 46. The whole World is divided into two great Families, Christ's and Satan's, and the obedience each man pays, signifies to which of these Masters he belongs; if he obey Christ, to Christ; if Satan, to Satan. Now this Sin of malice and revenge is so much the dictate of that wicked spirit, that there is nothing can be a more direct obeying of him; 'tis the taking his livery on our backs, the proclamation whose Servants we are. What ridiculous impudence is it then, for men that have thus entred themselves of Satan's Family, to pretend to be the Servants of Christ? Let such know assuredly, that they shall not be owned by him; but at the great day of account, be turned over to their proper Master, to receive their wages in fire and brimstone.

Example
of God.

A Second Consideration is the Example of God; this is an Argument Christ himself though fit to use, to impress this duty on us, as you may see, Luke 6. 35, 36. Where after having given the Command of loving Enemies, he encourages to the practice of it, by telling, that it is that which will make us the Children of the highest (that is, 'twill give us a likeness and resemblance to him, as Children dren have to their Parents) for he is kind to the unthankful and the evil: And to the same purpose you may read, Mat. 5. 45. He maketh his Sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the Just and on the unjust; and sure this is a most forcible consideration to exite us to this duty. God, we know, is the fountain of perfection, and the being like to him, is the summ of all we can wish for; and though it was Lucifer's fall, his ambition to be like the most high, yet had the likeness he affected been only that of holiness and goodness, he might still have been an Angel of light; This desire of imitating our Heavenly Father, is the special mark of a child of his. Now this kindness and goodness to enemies is most eminently remarkable in God, and that not only in respect of the temporal mercies, which he indifferently bestows on all, his sun and rain on the unjust, as in the Text forementioned, but chiefly in his spiritual Mercies. We are all by our wicked works, Col. 1. 21. Enemies to him, and the mischief of that enmity would have fallen wholly upon our selves; God had no motive besides that of his pity to us, to wish a reconciliation; yet so far was he from returning our enmity, when he might have revenged himself to our eternal ruine, that he designs and contrives how he may bring us to be at peace with him. This is a huge degree of mercy and kindness, but the means he used

XVI.

A a

for

Sunday
XVI.

for effecting this, is yet far beyond it; He sent his own Son from Heaven to work it, and that not only by persuasions, but sufferings also; so much did he prize us miserable creatures, that he thought us not too dear bought with the blood of his Son. The like example of mercy and patience we have in Christ, both in laying down his life for us Enemies, and also in that meek manner of doing it, which we find excellently set forth by the Apostle, 1 Pet. 2. 22, 23, 24. and commended to our imitation. Now surely when all this is considered, we may well make S. John's inference; Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another, 1 Joh. 4. 11. How shameful a thing it is for us to retain displeasures against our brethren, when God thus lays by his towards us, and that when we have so highly provoked him?

The disproportion between our offences against God, and mens against us.

This directs to a third consideration, the comparing our sins against God, with the offences of our brethren against us, which we no sooner shall come to do, but there will appear a vast difference between them, and that in several respects: For first, there is the Majesty of the person against whom we sin, which exceedingly encreases the guilt; whereas between man and man, there cannot be so great a distance, for though some men are by God advanced to such eminency of dignity as may make an injury offered to them the greater, yet still they are but men.

of the same nature with us, whereas he is God blessed for ever. Secondly, there is his sovereignty and power, which is original in God, for we are his creatures, we have received our whole being from him, and therefore are in the deepest manner bound to perfect obedience: whereas all the sovereignty that one man can possibly have over another, is but imparted to them by God, and for the most part there is none of this neither in the case, quarrels being most usual among equals. Thirdly, There is his infinite bounty and goodness to us: all that ever we enjoy, whether in relation to this life or a better, being wholly his free gift, and so there is the foulest ingratitude added to our other crimes; in which respect also 'tis impossible for one man to offend against another in such a degree, for though one may be (and too many are) guilty of unthankfulness towards men, yet because the greatest benefits that man can bestow, are infinitely short of those which God doth, the ingratitude cannot be near so great as towards God it is. Lastly, there is the greatness and multitude of our sins against God, which do infinitely exceed all that the most injurious man can do against us; for we all sin much oftner and more heinously against him, than any man be he never so malicious, can find opportunities of injuring his brethren. This inequality and disproportion our Saviour intimates in the parable,

Sunday Matth. 18. where our offences against God XVI. are noted by the ten thousand talents, whereas our brethrens against us are described by the hundred pence; a talent hugely outweighs a penny, and ten thousand outnumbers a hundred, yet so and much more does the weight and number of our sins exceed all the offences of others against us. Much more might be said to shew the vast inequality between the faults which God forgives us, and those we can possibly have to forgive our brethren: But this I suppose may suffice to silence all the objections of cruel and revengeful persons, against this Kindness to enemies. They are apt to look upon it as an absurd and unreasonable thing, but since God himself acts it in so much an higher degree, who can without blasphemy say 'tis unreasonable? If this, or any other spiritual duty appear so to us, we may learn the reason from the Apostle, 1 Cor. 2. 14. The carnal man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; 'tis the carnality and fleshliness of our hearts that makes it seem so, and therefore instead of disputing against the duty, let us purge our hearts of that, and then we shall find that true which the spiritual Wisdom affirms of her Doctrines, Prov. 8. 9. They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.

Pleasantness of this duty.

Nay, this loving of enemies is not only a reasonable but a pleasant duty, and that I sup-suppose as a fourth consideration; there is a Sunday XVI.

 great deal of sweetness and delight to be found in it. Of this I confess none can so well judge as those that have practised it, the nature even of earthly pleasures being such, that 'tis the enjoyment only that can make a man truly know them. No man can so describe the taste of any delicious thing to another, as that by it he shall know the relish of it: he must first actually taste of it: and sure 'tis much more so in spiritual pleasures, and therefore he that would fully know the sweetness and pleasantness of this duty, let him set to the practice, and then his own experience will be the best informer. But in the mean time, how very unjust, yea and foolish is it, to pronounce ill of it before trial? For men to say, This is irksome and intolerable, who never so much as once offered to try whether indeed it were so or no? Yet by this very means an ill opinion is brought up of this most delightful duty, and passes currant among men, whereas in all justice the testimony of it should be taken only from those who have tried it, and they would certainly give another account of it.

But though the full knowledge hereof be to be had only by this nearer acquaintance, yet methinks even those who look at it but at a distance may discern somewhat of amiableness in it, if no other way, yet at least by comparing it with the uneasiness of its contrary. Malice and Revenge are the most restless tormenting passions that can possess the mind of a man, they keep men in perpetual study and care how to effect their mischievous purposes, it disturbs their very sleep, as Solomon observes, Prov. 4. 16. They sleep not except they have done mischief, and their sleep is taken away, except they cause some to fall; Yea, it imbitters all the good things they enjoy, so that they have no taste or relish of them. A remarkable example of this we have in Haman, who though he abounded in all the greatness and felicity of the world, yet the malice he had to a poor despicable man, Mordecai, kept him from tasting contentment in all this, as you may see, Esther 5. where after he had related to his friends all his prosperities, ver. 11. he concludes thus, ver. 12. Tet all this availeth me nothing, so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting in the King's gate. On the other side, the peaceable spirit, that can quietly pass by all injuries and affronts, enjoys a continual calm, and is above the malice of his enemies; for let them do what they can, they cannot rob him of his quiet, he is firm as a Rock, which no storms or winds can move; when the furious and revengeful man is like a wave, which the least blast tosses and tumbles from its place. But besides this inward disquiet of revengeful men, they often bring many outward calamities upon themselves, they exasperate their enemies, and provoke them to do them greater mischiefs, nay, oftentimes times they willingly run themselves upon the greatest miseries in pursuit of their revenge, to which 'tis ordinary to see men sacrifice Goods, Ease, Credit, Life, nay, Soul it self, not caring what they suffer themselves, so they may spite their Enemy; so strangely does this wretched humour besot and blind them. On the contrary, the meek person he often melts his adversary, pacifies his anger; a soft answer turneth away wrath, saith Solomon, Prov. 15. 1. And sure there is nothing can tend more to that end; but if it do happen that his enemy be so inhumane, that he miss of doing that, yet he is still a gainer by all he can suffer. For first, he gains an opportunity of exercising that most christian grace of charity and forgiveness; and so at once of obeying the command, and imitating the example of his Saviour, which is to a true Christian spirit a most valuable advantage; and then secondly, he gains an accession and increase to his reward hereafter. And if it be objected, that that is not to be reckoned in to the present pleasure of the duty; I answer, that the expectation and belief of it is, and that alone is a delight infinitely more ravishing than the present enjoyment of all sensual pleasure can be.

The fourth consideration is, the dangers of not performing this Duty; of which I might reckon up divers, but I shall insist only on that great one, which contains in it all the rest, and that is the forfeiting of our own pardons from God, the having our sins against him kept still on his score and not forgiven. This is a consideration, that methinks should affright us into good nature; if it do not, our malice is greater to our selves than to our enemies. For alas! what hurt is it possible for thee to do to another, which can bear any comparison with that thou dost thy self in losing the pardon of thy sins? which is so unspeakable a mischief that the Devil himself with all his malice cannot wish a greater. 'Tis all he aims at, first that we may sin, and then that those sins may never be pardoned, for then he knows he has us sure enough; Hell, and damnation being certainly the portion of every unpardoned sinner, besides all other effects of God's wrath in this life. Consider this, and then tell me what thou hast got by the highest revenge thou ever actedst upon another. 'Tis a Devilish Phrase in the mouth of men, That revenge is sweet: but is it possible there can be (even to the most distempered palate) any such sweetness in it, as may recompence that everlasting bitterness that attends it? 'Tis certain no man in his wits can upon sober judging, imagine there is. But alas! we give not our selves time to weigh things, but suffer our selves to be hurried away with the heat of an angry humour, never considering how dear we must pay for it: like the silly Bee, that in anger leaves at once her sting and her her life behind her ; the sting may perhaps give some short pain to the flesh it sticks in, but yet there is none but discerns the Bee has the worst of it, that pays her life for so poor a revenge: So it is in the greatest act of our malice, we may perhaps leave our stings in others, put them to some present trouble, but that compared with the hurt redounds to our selves by it, is no more than that inconsiderable pain is to death ; Nay not so much, because the mischiefs that we bring upon our selves are eternal, to which no finite thing can bear any proportion. Remember then, whensoever thou art contriving and plotting a revenge, that thou quite mistakest the mark ; thou thinkest to hit the enemy, and alas, thou woundest thy self to death. And let no man speak peace to himself, or think that these are vain terrors, and that he may obtain pardon from God, though he give none to his brethren. For he that is truth it self has assured us the contrary, Matth. 6. 15. If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your father forgive your trespasses. And lest we should forget the necessity of this duty, he hath inserted it in our daily prayers, where we make it the condition, on which we beg pardon from God ; Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us. What a heavy curse then does every revengeful person lay upon himself, when he says this Prayer ? He does in effect beg God not to forgive him ;

Sunday
XVI.

~~Sunday~~ him; and 'tis too sure that part of his Prayer XVI. will be heard, he shall be forgiven just as he forgives, that is, not at all. This is yet farther set out to us in the Parable of the Lord and the Servant, Matth. 18. The servant had obtained of his Lord the forgiveness of a vast debt, ten thousand talents, yet was so cruel to his fellow-servant, as to exact a poor trifling sum of an hundred pence, upon which his Lord recalls his former forgiveness, and charges him again with the whole debt; and this Christ applies to our present purpose, ver. 35. So likewise shall my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every man his brother their trespasses. One such act of uncharitableness is able to forfeit us the pardon God hath granted us, and then all our sins return again upon us, and sink us to utter ruin. I suppose it needless to heap up more testimonies of Scripture for the truth of this; these are so clear, as may surely serve to persuade any man, that acknowledges Scripture, of the great and fearful danger of this sin of uncharitableness. The Lord possess all our hearts with such a just sense of it as may make us avoid it.

Gratitude
to God.

The last consideration I shall mention, is that of Gratitude. God has shewed wonderful mercies to us, Christ has suffered heavy things to bring us into a Capacity of that mercy and pardon from God: And shall we not then think our selves obliged to some returns of thankfulness? If we will take the Apostles judgment, he tells us, 2 Cor. 5. 15. That since Christ died for us all, 'tis but reasonable that we should not henceforth live unto our selves, but unto him that died for us. Indeed were every moment of our life consecrated to his immediate Service, 'twere no more than common gratitude requires, and far less than such inestimable benefits deserve; what a shameful unthankfulness is it then to deny him so poor a satisfaction as this, the forgiving our brethren? Suppose a man that were ransomed either from death or slavery, by the bounty and sufferings of another, should upon his release be charged by him that so freed him, in return of that kindness of his, to forgive some slight debt, which was owing him by some third person, would you not think him the unthankfullest wretch in the world, that should refuse this so great a benefactor? yet such a wretch and much worse is every revengeful person: Christ hath bought us out of eternal slavery, and that not with corruptible things as silver and gold, 1 Pet. 1. 10. but with his own most precious blood, and hath earnestly recommended to us the love of our brethren, and that with the most moving arguments, drawn from the greatness of his love to us; and if we shall obstinately refuse him in so just, so moderate a demand, how unspeakable a vile-ness is it? And yet this we do downright, if we keep any malice or grudge to any person what-whatsoever. Nay farther, this is not barely an unthankfulness, but there is also joynd with it a horrible contempt and despising of him. This peace and unity of brethren was a thing so much prized and valued by him, that when he was to leave the world, he thought it the most precious thing he could bequeath, and therefore left it by way of legacy to his Disciples, John 14. 27. Peace I leave with you. We use to set a great value on the slightest bequests of our dead friends, to be exceeding careful not to lose them; and therefore if we wilfully bangle away this so precious a Legacy of Christ, 'tis a plain sign we want that love and esteem of him, which we have of our earthly friends, and that we despise him as well as his Legacy. The great prevailing of this sin of uncharitableness has made me stand thus long on these considerations, for the subduing it. God grant they may make such impression on the Reader, as may be available to that purpose.

I shall add only this one advice, that these, or whatsoever other remedies against this sin must be used timely: 'Tis oft-times the frustrating of bodily medicines, the applying them too late; and 'tis much oftner so in spiritual; therefore if it be possible, let these and the like considerations be so constantly and habitually fixt in thy heart, that they may frame it to such meekness, as may prevent all risings of rancour or revenge in thee, for it is much much better they should serve as armour to prevent, than as balsam to cure the wound. But if this passion be not yet so subdued in thee, but that there will be some stirrings of it, yet then be sure to take it at the very first rise, and let not thy fancy chew, as it were upon the injury, by often rolling it in thy mind, but remember betimes the foregoing considerations, and withal, that this is a time and season of trial to thee, wherein thou mayest shew thou hast profited in Christ's School, there now being an opportunity offered thee either of obeying and pleasing God, by passing by this offence of thy brother, or else of obeying and pleasing Satan that lover of discord, by nourishing hatred against him. Remember this, I say, betimes, before thou be inflamed, for if this fire be thoroughly kindled, it will cast such a smoak, as will blind thy reason, and make thee unfit to judge even in this so very plain a case, whether it be better by obeying God, to purchase to thy self eternal bliss; or by obeying Satan eternal torments. Whereas, if thou put the question to thy self before this commotion and disturbance of mind, 'tis impossible but thy understanding must pronounce for God; And then unless thou wilt be so perverse that thou wilt deliberately chuse death, thou wilt surely practise according to that sentence of thy understanding. I shall add no more on this first part of Charity, that of the Affections.

Sunday

I

Sunday I proceed now to that of the Actions. And XVI. this indeed it is, whereby the former must be Charity in approved, we may pretend great charity the actions. within, but if none break forth in the Actions, we may say of that Love, as S. James doth of the Faith he speaks of, that it is dead, Jam. 2. 20.
 It is the Loving indeed, that must approve our hearts before God, 1 John 3. 18. Now this love in the Actions may likewise fitly be distributed, as the former was, in relation to the four distinct capacities of our brethren, their Souls, their Bodies, their Goods and Credit.

Towards the mind
of our Neighbour.

The Soul I formerly told you, may be considered either in a Natural or Spiritual sense, and in both of them Charity binds us to do all the good we can. As the Soul signifies the Mind of a Man, so we are to endeavour the comfort and refreshment of our brethren, desire to give them all true cause of joy and chearfulness; especially when we see any under any sadness or heaviness, then to bring out all the cordials we can procure, that is, to labour by all Christian and fit means to cheer the troubled Spirits of our brethren, to com- fort them that are in any heaviness, as the A-postle speaks, 2 Cor. 1. 4.

His Soul.

But the Soul in the Spiritual sense is yet of greater concernment, and the securing of that is a matter of much greater moment, than the refreshing of the mind only, in as much as the eternal sorrows and sadnesses of Hell exceed the deepest sorrows of this life; and there-

therefore though we must not omit the former, yet on this we are to employ our most zealous charities; wherein we are not to content our selves with a bare wishing well to the Souls of our brethren, this alone is a sluggish sort of kindness, unworthy of those who are to imitate the great redeemer of Souls who did and suffered so much in that purchase; no, we must add also our endeavour to make them that we wish them; to this purpose it were very reasonable to propound to our selves in all our conversings with others, that one great design of doing some good to their Souls. If this purpose were fixt in our minds, we should then discern perhaps many opportunities, which now we overlook, of doing something towards it. The brutish ignorance of one would call upon thee to endeavour his instruction; the open sin of another to reprehend and admonish him: the faint and weak vertue of another, to confirm and encourage him. Every spiritual want of thy brother may give thee some occasion of exercising some part of this Charity, or if thy circumstances be such, that upon sober judging thou think it vain to attempt any thing thy self, as if either thy meanness, or thy unacquaintedness, or any the like impediment be like to render thy exhortations fruitless, yet if thou art industrious in thy Charity, thou mayest probably find out some other instrument, by whom to do it more successfully. There can nor not be a nobler study than how to benefit mens Souls, and therefore where the direct means are improper, 'tis fit we should whet our wits for attaining of others. Indeed 'tis a shame, we should not as industriously contrive for this great spiritual concernment of others, as we do for every worldly trifling interest of our own; yet in them we are unwearied, and try one means after another, till we compass our end. But if after all our serious endeavours, the obstinacy of men do not suffer us, or themselves rather to reap any fruit from them, if all our wooings and intreatings of men to have mercy on their own Souls will not work on them, yet be sure to continue still to exhort by thy example. Let thy great care and tenderness of thy own Soul preach to them the value of theirs, and give not over thy compassions to them, but with the Prophet, Jer. 13. 17. Let thy Soul weep in secret for them; and with the Psalmist, Let rivers of waters run down thy eyes, because they keep not God's Laws, Psal. 119. 136. Yea with Christ himself weep over them, who will not know the things that belong to their peace, Luke 19. 42. And when no importunities with them will work, yet even then cease not to importune God for them, that he will draw them to himself. Thus we see Samuel, when he could not dissuade the people from that sinful purpose they were upon, yet he professes notwithstanding, that he will not cease pray-praying for them ; nay, he look'd on it as so much a duty, that it would be sin for him to omit it ; God forbid, says he, that I should sin against the Lord, in ceasing to pray for you, 1 Sam. 12. 23. Nor shall we need to fear that our Prayers will be quite lost ; for if they prevail not for those for whom we pour them out, yet however they will return into our own bosoms, Psal. 35. 13. we shall be sure not to miss of the reward of that Charity.

Sunday
XVI.

In the second place, we are to exercise this Active Charity towards the Bodies of our Neighbours ; we are not only to compassionate their pains and miseries, but also to do what we can for their ease and relief. The good Samaritan, Luk. 10. had never been proposed as our pattern, had he not as well helped as pitied the wounded man. 'Tis not good wishes, no, nor good words neither that avail in such cases, as S. James tells us, If a brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled ; notwithstanding ye give him not those things that are needful for the body, what doth it profit ? Ja. 2. 15, 16. No sure, it profits them nothing in respect of their bodies, and 'twill profit thee as little in respect of thy soul, it will never be reckoned to thee as a Charity. This relieving of the bodily wants of our brethren, is a thing so strictly required of us, that we find it set down, Mat. 25. as the especial thing we shall be tried by at the

respect of the Body.

Sunday Last day, on the omission whereof is ground-XVI. ed that dreadful sentence, ver. 41. Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels. And if it shall now be asked, what are the particular acts of this kind which we are to perform? I think we cannot better inform our selves for the frequent and ordinary ones, than from this Chapter, where are set down these severals, the giving meat to the hungry, and drink to the thirsty, harbouring the stranger, cloathing the naked, and visiting the sick and imprisoned; by which visiting is meant not a bare coming to see them, but so coming as to comfort and relieve them; for otherwise it will be but like the Levite in the Gospel, Luke 10. who came and looked on the wounded man, but did no more, which will never be accepted by God. These are common and ordinary exercises of this charity, for which we cannot want frequent opportunities. But besides these, there may sometimes, by God's especial Providence, fall into our hands occasions of doing other good offices to the bodies of our Neighbours; we may sometimes find a wounded man, with the Samaritan, and then 'tis our duty to do as he did; we may sometimes find an innocent person condemned to death, as Susanna was, and then are with Daniel to use all possible endeavour for their deliverance. This case Solomon seems to refer to, Prov 24. 11. If thou forbear to deliver him that is drawn unto death, and them that are ready ready to be slain ; if thou sayest, Behold, we know it not ; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider ; and he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it ? shall not he render to every man according to his deeds ? We are not lightly to put off the matter with vain excuses, but to remember, that God, who knows our most secret thoughts, will severely examine, whether we have willingly omitted the performance of such a charity. Sometimes again (nay, God knows often now a-days) we may see a Man that by a course of intemperance is in danger to destroy his health, to shorten his days, and then it is a due charity not only to the soul, but to the body also, to endeavour to draw him from it. It's impossible to set down all the possible acts of this corporal charity, because there may sometimes happen such opportunities as none can foresee ; we are therefore always to carry about us a serious resolution of doing whatever good of this kind we shall at any time discern occasion for, and then whenever that occasion is offered, we are to look on it as a call, as it were, from Heaven, to put that resolution in practice. This part of Charity seems to be so much implanted in our Natures as we are Men, that we generally account them not only unchristian, but inhumane, that are void of it ; and therefore I hope there will not need much persuasion to it, since our very Nature inclines us ; but certainly that very consideration will serve hugely to encrease the guilt of

Sunday those that are wanting in it: For since this XVII. Command is so agreeable even to flesh and blood, our disobedience to it can proceed from nothing but a stubbornness and resistance against God who gives it.

SUNDAY XVII.

Of Charity; Alms-giving, &c. Of Charity in respect of our Neighbours Credit, &c. Of Peace-making: Of going to Law: Of Charity to our Enemies, &c.

*Charity in respect of
 the Goods.*

SECT. I. THE third way of expressing this Charity, is towards the Goods or Estate of our Neighbour; we are to endeavour his thriving and prosperity in these outward good things; and to that end, be willing to assist and further him in all honest ways of improving or preserving them, by any neighbourly and friendly office; Opportunities of this do many times fall out. A man may sometimes, by his power or persuasion, deliver his Neighbours goods out of the hands of a thief or oppressor; sometimes, again, by his advice and counsel, he may set him in a way of thriving, or turn him from some ruinous course; and many other occasions there may be of doing good turns to another, without any loss or damage to our selves; and then we are to do them, even to our rich Neighbours, those that are

are as wealthy (perhaps much more so) as our selves ; for tho' Charity do not bind us to give to those that want less than our selves, yet whenever we can further their profit without lessening our own store, it requires it of us : Nay, if the damage be but light to us in comparison of the advantage to him, it will become us rather to hazard that light damage, than lose him that greater advantage.

2. But towards our poor brother, Charity Toward the Poor. ties us to much more ; we are there only to consider the supplying of his wants, and not to stick at parting with what is our own, to relieve him, but as far as we are able, give freely what is necessary to him. This duty of Alms-giving is perfectly necessary for the approving our love not only to men, but even to God himself, as S. John tells us, 1 Joh. 3. 17. Whoso hath this worlds goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him ? 'Tis vain for him to pretend to love either God or man, who loves his money so much better, that he will see his poor brother (who is a man, and bears the image of God) suffer all extremities, rather than part with any thing to relieve him. On the other side, the performance of this duty is highly acceptable with God, as well as with men.

3. 'Tis call'd, Heb. 13. 16. A sacrifice wherewith God is well pleased ; and again, Phil. 4. 18. S. Paul calls their Alms to him, A sacrifice ac-

B b 3 ceptable,

Sunday ceptable, well-pleasing to God, and the Church XVII. hath always look'd on it as such, and therefore joined it with the solemnest part of worship, the holy Sacrament. But because even Sacrifices themselves under the Law, were often made unacceptable by being maimed and blemished, it will here be necessary to enquire what are the due qualifications of this sacrifice.

*Motives
of Almsgiving.*

4. Of these there are some that respect the motive, some the manner of our giving. The motive may be three-fold, respecting God, our Neighbour, and our selves. That which respects God is obedience and thankfulness to him; he has commanded we should give alms, and therefore one special end of our doing so, must be the obeying that precept of his. And it is from his bounty alone that we receive all our plenty, and this is the properest way of expressing our thankfulness for it; for, as the Psalmist saith, Our goodness extendeth not unto God, Pf. 16. 2. That tribute which we desire to pay out of our Estates, we cannot pay to his Person: 'Tis the Poor, that are, as it were, his Proxy and Receivers, and therefore whatever we should by way of thankfulness give back again unto God, our alms is the way of doing it. 2ly, In respect of our Neighbour, the motive must be a true love and compassion to him, a tender fellow-feeling of his wants, and desire of his comfort and relief. 3ly, In respect of our selves, the motive is to be the hope of that eternal reward promised to this performance.

This Christ points out to us, when he bids us, Lay up our treasure in heaven, Mat. 6. 20. And to make us friends of the Mammon of unrighteousness, that they may receive us into everlasting habitations, Luke 16. 9. that is, by a charitable dispensing of our temporal goods to the Poor, to lay up a stock in Heaven, to gain a title to those endless felicities, which God hath promised to the charitable. That is the harvest we must expect of what we sow in these works of mercy, which will be so rich as would abundantly recompense us, tho' we should, as the Apostle speaks, 1 Cor. 13. 3. Bestow all our goods to feed the poor. But then we must be sure we make this our sole aim, and not instead of this, propose to our selves the praise of men, as the motive of our charity, that will rob us of the other; this is expressly told us by Christ, Mat. 6. They that set their hearts on the credit they shall gain with men, must take that as their portion, ver. 3. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward; they chuse, it seems, rather to have Men their pay-masters, than God, and to them they are turned off; that little airy praise they get from them, is all the reward they must expect: Ye have no reward of my Father which is in Heaven, ver. 1. We have therefore need to watch our hearts narrowly, that this desire of vain-glory steal not in, and befool us into that miserable exchange of a vain blast of mens breath, for those substantial and eternal joys of Heaven.

- Sunday XVII. 5. In the second place, we must take care of our Alms-giving, in respect of the manner : and in that, first, we must give chearfully ; men usually value a small thing that is given chearfully and with a good heart, more than a much greater, that is wrung from a man with grudging and unwillingness ; and God is of the same mind, he loves a chearful giver, Chearfully. 2 Cor. 9. 7. which the Apostle makes the reason of the foregoing exhortation, of not giving grudgingly, or as of necessity, ver. 6. And sure 'tis no unreasonable thing, that is herein required of us, there being no duty that has to humane Nature more of pleasure and delight, unless it be where covetousness or cruelty have quite worked out the man, and put a ravenous beast in his stead. Is it not a most ravishing pleasure to him that hath any bowels, to see the joy that a seasonable alms brings to a poor wretch ? how it revives and puts new spirits in him, that was even sinking ? Certainly, the most sensual creature alive knows not how to bestow his Money on any thing, that shall bring him in so great a delight, and therefore methinks it should be no hard matter to give not only without grudging, but even with a great deal of alacrity and chearfulness, it being the fetching in of pleasure to our selves.
- The fear of impoverishing our selves by it, vain and impious.* 6. There is but one objection can be made against this, and that is, that the danger of impoverishing one's self by what one gives, may take off that pleasure, and make men either either not give at all, or not so chearfully. To ^{Sunday} this answer : that first, were this hazard ne- ^{XVII.} ver so apparent, yet it being the command of God that we shall thus give, we are yet to obey chearfully, and be as well content to part with our goods in pursuance of this duty, as we are many times called to do upon some other. In which case Christ tells us, He that forsakes not all that he hath, cannot be his disciple.

7. But secondly, This is sure a vain supposition, God having particularly promised the contrary to the charitable, that it shall bring blessings on them, even in these outward things : The liberal soul shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall be watered also himself, Prov. 11. 25. He that giveth to the poor shall not lack, Prov. 28. 27. And many the like Texts there are, so that one may truly say, this objection is grounded in direct unbelief. The short of it is, we dare not trust God for this. Giving to the Poor, is directly the putting our wealth into his hands ; He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord, Prov. 19. 17. and that too on solemn promise of repayment, as it follows in that verse, That which he hath given will he pay him again. It is amongst men thought a great disparagement, when we refuse to trust them ; it shews we either think them not sufficient, or not honest. How vile an affront is it then to God, thus to distrust him ? Nay, indeed, how horrid blasphemy, to doubt the security of that, for which he hath thus expressly past his word,

Sunday word, who is Lord of all, and therefore cannot XVII. be insufficient, and who is the God of Truth, and therefore will not fail to make good his promise? Let not then that infidel fear of future want, contract and shut up thy bowels from thy poor brother; for though he be never likely to pay thee, yet God becomes his Surety, and enters bond with him, and will most assuredly pay thee with encrease. Therefore it is so far from being damage to thee, thus to give, that it is thy great advantage.
 Any man would rather chuse to put his Money in some sure hand, where he may both improve, and be certain of it at his need, than to let it lie unprofitable by him, especially if he be in danger of thieves, or other accidents, by which he may probably lose it. Now alas! all that we possess is in minutely danger of losing; innumerable accidents there are, which may in an instant bring a rich man to beggary; he that doubts this, let him but read the story of Job, and he will there find an example of it: And therefore what so prudent course can we take for our Wealth, as to put it out of the reach of those accidents, by thus lending it to God, where we may be sure to find it ready at our greatest need, and that too with improvement and encrease? In which respect it is that the Apostle compares Alms to Seed, 2 Cor. 9. 10. We know it is the nature of seed that is sown, to multiply and encrease, and so do all our acts of mercy, they return not single single and naked to us, but bring in their Sunday sheaves with them, a most plenteous and XVII. bountiful harvest. God deals not with our Alms as we too often do with his Graces, wrap them up in a napkin, so that they shall never bring in any advantage to us, but makes us most rich returns; and therefore we have all reason most chearfully, yea, joyfully to set to this duty, which we have such invitations to, as well in respect of our own interests, as our Neighbours needs.

8. Secondly, We must give seasonably: it is Give seasonably. true indeed, there are some so poor, that an Alms can never come unseasonably, because they always want, yet even to them there may be some special seasons of doing it to their greater advantage; for sometimes an Alms may not only deliver a poor Man from some present extremity, but by the right timing of it, may set him in some way of a more comfortable subsistence afterward. And for the most, I presume it is a good rule, to dispense what we intend to any, as soon as may be, for delays are hurtful oftentimes both to them and our selves; first, as to them, it is sure, the longer we delay, the longer they groan under the present want, and after we have designed them a relief, it is in some degree a cruelty to defer bestowing of it, for so long we prolong their sufferings. You will think him a hard-hearted Physician, that having a certain cure for a Man in pain, should, when he might presently

Sunday sently apply it, make unnecessary delays, and XVII. so keep the poor man still in torture: and the same it is here; we want of the due compassion, if we can be content our poor brother should have one hour of unnecessary suffering, when we have present opportunity of relieving him: or if he be not in such an extremity of want, yet whatever we intend him for his greater comfort, he loses so much of it, as the time of the delay amounts to. Secondly, in respect of our selves, 'tis ill to defer; for thereby we give advantage to the temptations either of Satan or our own covetous humour to dissuade us from it. Thus it fares too often with many Christian duties; for want of a speedy execution, our purposes cool, and never come to act; so many resolve they will repent, but because they set not immediately upon it, one delay succeeds another, and keep them from ever doing it at all; and so 'tis very apt to fall out in this case, especially with men who are of a covetous temper, and therefore they of all others should not trust themselves thus to delay.

Prudently. 9. Thirdly, We should take care to give prudently, that is, to give most, where it is most needed, and in such a manner, as may do the receiver most good. Charities do often miscarry for want of this care; for if we give at all adventures to all that seem to want, we may sometimes give more to those, whose sloth and lewdness is the cause of their want, than to those who best deserve it, and so both encourage courage the one in their idleness, and disable ^{Sunday} our selves from giving to the other. Yet I ^{XVII.} doubt not, such may be the present wants even of the most unworthy, that we are to relieve them ; but where no such pressing need is, we shall do best to chuse out the fitter objects of charity, such as are those who either are not able to labour, or else have a greater charge than their labour can maintain, and to those our alms should be given also in such a manner as may be most likely to do them good ; the manner of which may differ according to the circumstances of their condition ; it may to some be best, perhaps, to give them by little and little, to others the giving it all at once may tend more to their benefit ; and sometimes a seasonable loan may do as well as a gift, and that may be in the power sometimes of those who are able to give but little : But when we thus lend on charity, we must lend freely without use, and also with a purpose, that if he should prove unable to pay, we will forgive so much of the Principal as his needs require, and our abilities will permit. They want much of this charity, who clap up poor debtors in prison when they know they have nothing to answer the debt, which is a great cruelty, to make another miserable, when nothing is gained to our selves by it.

10. Fourthly, We should give liberally ; we must not be streight-handed in our alms, and give by such pitiful scantlings, as will bring almost

Sunday almost no relief to the receiver, for that is a XVII. kind of mockery ; 'tis as if one should pretend to feed one that is almost famish'd, by giving him a crumb of bread ; such Doles as that would be most ridiculous, yet I fear 'tis too near the proportion of some mens alms ; such Men are below those Disciples we read of, who knew only the Baptism of John, for 'tis to be observed, that John Baptist, who was but the forerunner of Christ, makes it a special part of his doctrine, that he that hath two coats should impart to him that hath none, Luke 3. 11. He says not, He that hath some great Wardrobe, but even he that hath but two coats must part with one of them ; from whence we may gather, that whatsoever is above (not our vanity but) our need, should thus be disposed of, when our brethrens necessity requires it. But if we look into the first time of the Gospel, we shall find Christianity far exceeded this proportion of John's, the converts assigned not a part only, but frankly gave all to the use of the Brethren, Act. 4. And though that being upon an extraordinary occasion, will be no measure of our constant practice, yet it may shew us how prime and fundamental a part of Christianity this of Charity is, that at the very first founding of the Church, such vast degrees of it were practis'd ; and if we farther consider what precepts of love are given us in the Gospel, even to the laying down our lives for the brethren, 1 Joh. 3. 16. we cannot imagine gine our goods are in Gods account so much more precious than our lives, that he would command us to be prodigal of the one, and yet allow us to be sparing of the other. Sunday XVII.

II. A multitude of Arguments might be brought to recommend this bounty to all that profess Christ ; I shall mention only two, which I find used by S. Paul to the Corinthians on this occasion. The first is the example of Christ, 2 Cor. 8. 9. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, who though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. Christ emptied himself of all that glory and greatness he enjoyed in Heaven with his Father, and submitted himself to a life of much meanness and poverty, only to enrich us. And therefore for shame, let us not grudge to empty our Coffers, to lessen somewhat of our heaps to relieve his poor members. The second is the expectation of reward, which will be more or less according to the degrees of our Alms, 2 Cor. 9. 6. He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly, and he that soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully. We think him a very improvident Husband-man, that to save a little seed at present, sows so thin, as to spoil his crop ; and the same folly 'twill be in us, if by the sparingness of our alms, we make our selves a lank harvest hereafter, lose either all, or a great part of those rewards which God hath provided for the liberal Alms-giver. What is the proportion which may

Sunday may be called a liberal giving, I shall not undertake to set down, there being degrees even XVII. in liberality; one may give liberally, and yet another give more liberally than he; besides, liberality is to be measured, not so much by what is given, as by the ability of the giver. A man of a mean estate may give less than one of a great, and yet be a more liberal person, because that little may be more out of his, than the greater is out of the other's. Thus we see, Christ pronounces the poor Widow to have given much more to the Treasury, than all the rich men, Luk. 21. 3. not that her two mites were more than their rich gifts, but that it was more for her, she having left nothing behind, whereas they gave out of their abundance what they might easily spare. Every man must herein judge for himself; we see the Apostle, though he earnestly presses the Corinthians to bounty, yet prescribes not to them how much they shall give, but leaves that to their own breasts, 2 Cor. 9. 7. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. But let us still remember, that the more we give (provided we do not thereby fail in the support of those, that most immediately depend on us) the more acceptable it will be to God, and the more rewardable by him. And to secure the performance of the duty of almsgiving (whatever the proportion be) we may do very well to follow the advice S. Paul gives the Corinthians, in this matter, 1 Cor. 16. 2. Upon the

the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him. If Sunday XVII.
 Men would do thus, lay by somewhat weekly in store for this work of Charity, it were the surest way not to be unprovided of somewhat to give, when an occasion offer'd it self, and by giving so by little and little, the expence would become less sensible, and so be a means to prevent those grudgings and repinings, which are apt to attend men in greater disbursements; and sure this were in other respects also a very proper course, for when a Tradesman casts up his weekly account, and sees what his gains have been, 'tis of all others, the most seasonable time to offer this tribute to God out of what he hath by his blessing gained. If any will say they cannot so well weekly reckon their gains, as by longer spaces of time, I shall not contend with them for that precise time, let it be done monthly or quarterly, so it be done. But that somewhat should still be laid by in bank for these uses, rather than left loose to our sudden Charities, is sure very expedient; and I doubt not, whoever will make trial of it, will upon experience acknowledge it to be so.

12. The fourth exercise of our Charity is Charity in towards the credit of our neighbour: and of respect of this we may have many occasions, sometimes the credit. towards the innocent, and sometimes also towards the guilty. If one whom we know to be an innocent person, be slandered, and tra-duced, Charity binds us to do what we may for the declaring his innocency, and delivering him from that false imputation, and that not only by witnessing when we are called to it, but by a voluntary offering our testimony on his behalf, or if the accusation be not before a Court of Justice, and so there be no place for that our most solemn testimony, but that it be only a slander tost from one to another, yet even there we are to do what we can to clear him, by taking all occasions publickly to declare what we know of his innocency. But even to the guilty there is some Charity of this kind to be performed, sometimes by concealing the fault, if it be such that no other part of Charity to others make it necessary to discover it, or it be not so notorious, as that it will be sure to betray it self. The wounds of Reputation are of all others the most incurable, and therefore it may well become Christian Charity to prevent them, even where they have been deserved, and perhaps such a tenderness in hiding the fault may sooner bring the offender to Repentance, if it be seconded (as it ought to be) with all earnestness of private admonition: But if the fault be such, that it be not to be concealed, yet still there may be place for this Charity, in extenuating and lessening it as far as the circumstances will bear: As if it were done suddenly and passim, Charity will allow some abatement of the Censure, which would belong to a designed signed and deliberate act; and so proportionably in other circumstances. But the most frequent exercises of this Charity happen toward those, of whose either innocency or guilt we have no knowledge, but are by some doubtful action brought under suspicion: And here we must remember, that it is the property of love, not to think evil, to judge the best; and therefore we are both to abstain from uncharitable conclusions of them our selves, and as much as lies in us, to keep others from them also, and so endeavour to preserve the credit of our neighbour; which is oftentimes as much shaken by unjust suspicions, as it would be by the truest accusation. To these cases, I suppose, belongs that precept of Christ Matt. 7. 1. Judge not; and when we consider how that is backt in the following words, That ye be not judged, we shall have cause to believe it no such light matter as the world seems to account it; our unmerciful judging of others will be paid home to us, in the strict and severe Judgment of God.

13. I have now gone through this Active Charity, as it relates to the four several capacities of our brethren, many of the particulars whereof were before briefly mentioned, when we spake of Justice. If any think it improper, that the same acts should be made part of Justice and Charity too, I shall desire them to consider that Charity being by Christ's command become a debt to our brethren, all

*The Acts of Charity in

spect's acts of Justice
also.*

Sunday the parts of it may in that respect be ranked XVII. under the head of Justice, since 'tis sure, paying of debts is a part of that: yet because in our common use we do distinguish between the offices of Justice and Charity, I have chose to enlarge on them in particular reference to Charity. But I desire it may still be remembered, that whatsoever is under precept, is so much a due from us, that we sin not only against Charity but Justice too, if we neglect it; which deserves to be considered, the more to stir up our care to the performance, and the rather, because there seems to be a common error in this point. Men look upon their Acts of mercy, as things purely voluntary, that they have no obligation to; and the effect of it is this, that they are apt to think very highly of themselves, when they have performed any, tho' never so mean, but never blame themselves, though they omit all; which is a very dangerous, but withal a very natural fruit of the former persuasion. If there be any Charities, wherein Justice is not concerned, they are those which for the height and degrees of them are not made matter of strict duty, that is, are not in those degrees commanded by God; and even after these, 'twill be very reasonable for us to labour: but that cannot be done without taking the lower and necessary degrees in our way; and therefore let our first care be for them.

14. To help us wherein there will be no better means, than to keep before our eyes that grand rule of Loving our Neighbours as our selves : This the Apostle makes the sum of our whole duty to our Neighbours, Rom. 13. 9. Let this therefore be the standard, whereby to measure all thy actions which relate to others ; whenever any necessity of thy Neighbours presents it self to thee, ask thy self, whether, if thou wert in the like case, thy love to thy self would not make thee industrious for relief, and then resolve thy love to thy Neighbour must have the same effect with him. This is that Royal Law, as S. James calls it, James 2. 8. which all that profess themselves subjects to Christ, must be ruled by ; and whosoever is so, will not fail of performing all charities to others, because 'tis sure he would upon the like occasions have all such performed to himself. There is none but wishes to have his good name defended, his poverty relieved, his bodily suffering succoured, only it may be said, that in the spiritual wants there are some so careless of themselves, that they wish no supply, they desire no reproofs, no instructions, nay, are angry when they are given them ; it may therefore seem that such Men are not by vertue of this rule tied to those sorts of Charities. To this I answer. That the love of our selves, which is here set as the measure of that to our Neighbour, is to be understood to be that reasonable love, which

XVII.
The great rule of Charity.

Sunday
XVII. Men ought to have, and therefore, though a man fail of that due love he owes himself, yet his Neighbour hath not thereby forfeited his right, he has still a claim to such a degree of our love, as is answerable to that, which in right we should bear to our selves; and such I am sure is this care of our spiritual estate, and therefore 'tis not our despising our own Souls that will absolve us from Charity to other mens: yet I shall not much press this duty in such Men, it being neither likely that they will be persuaded to it, or do any good by it, their ill example will overwhelm all their good exhortations, and make them unfruitful.

Peace-making.

15. There is yet one act of Charity behind, which does not properly fall under any one of the former heads, and yet may relate to them all, and that is, the making peace and amity among others, by doing whereof we may much benefit both the Souls, Bodies, Goods, and Credit of our Brethren, for all these are in danger by strife and contention. The reconciling of enemies is a most blessed work, and brings a blessing on the Actors: We have Christ's word for it, Blessed are the Peace-makers, Mat. 5. 9. and therefore we may be encouraged diligently to lay hold on all opportunities of doing this office of Charity, to use all our Art and Endeavour to take up all grudges and quarrels we discern among others, neither must we only labour to restore peace where it is lost, but to preserve it where it is: First, ~~Sundays~~ XVII: generally, by striving to beget in the hearts of all we converse with, a true value of that most precious Jewel, Peace; Secondly, particularly, by a timely prevention of those jars and unkindnesses, we see likely to fall out. It may many times be in the power of a discreet friend or neighbour, to cure those mistakes and misapprehensions, which are the first beginnings of quarrels and contentions; and it will be both more easie and more profitable, thus to prevent, than pacifie strifes. 'Tis sure 'tis more easie, for when a quarrel is once broken out, 'tis like a violent flame, which cannot so soon be quencht, as it might have been whilst it was but a smothering fire. And then 'tis also more profitable, for it prevents many sins, which in the progress of an open contention, are almost sure to be committed: Solomon says, In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin, Pro. 10. 19. which cannot more truly be said of any sorts of words, than those that pass in anger, and then, tho' the quarrel be afterwards compos'd, yet those sins will still remain on their account; and therefore it is a great Charity to prevent them.

16. But to fit a Man for this so excellent an office of Peace-making, 'tis necessary that he be first remarkably peaceable himself; for with what face canst thou persuade others to that which thou wilt not perform thy self? or how canst thou expect thy persuasions should

He that undertakes it must be peaceable himself.

Law.

work? 'Twill be a ready reply in every Man's mouth, Thou hypocrite cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, Mat. 7. 5. and therefore be sure thou qualifie thy self for the work. There is one point of Peaceableness which seems to be little regarded among men, and that is in the case of legal trespasses; men think it nothing to go to Law about every petty trifle, and as long as they have but Law on their side, never think they are to blame: but sure had we that true peaceableness of spirit which we ought, we should be unwilling for such slight matters to trouble and disquiet our Neighbours. Not that all going to Law is utterly unchristian, but such kind of suits especially, as are upon contentiousness, and stoutness of humour, to defend such an inconsiderable right, as the parting with will do us little or no harm, or which is yet worse, to avenge such a trespass. And even in great matters he that shall part with somewhat of his right for love of peace, does surely the most Christianly, and most agreeably to the advice of the Apostle, 1 Cor. 6. 7. Rather to take wrong and suffer our selves to be defrauded. But if the damage be so insupportable, that it is necessary for us to go to Law, yet even then we must take care of preserving peace; first by carrying still a friendly and Christian temper towards the party, not suffering our hearts to be at all estranged from him; secondly, by being willing to yield to any reasonable terms of agree-

agreement whenever they shall be offered; and truly if we carry not this temper of mind in our suits, I see not how they can be reconcilable with that peaceableness so strictly required of all Christians. Let those consider this, who make it their pleasure themselves to disquiet their Neighbour, or their trade, to stir up others to do it. This tender regard of Peace both in our selves and others, is absolutely necessary to be entertained of all those, who own themselves to be the servants of him, whose title it is to be the Prince of Peace, Isa. 9. 6.

17. All that remains to be toucht on concerning this Charity of the Actions, is the extent of it, which must be as large as the former of the affections, even to the taking in, not only strangers and those of no relation to us, but even of our bitterest enemies. I have already spoken so much of the obligation we are under to forgive 'em, that I shall not here say any thing of that, but that being supposed a duty, 'twill sure then appear no unreasonable thing to proceed one step further, by doing them good turns; for when we have once forgiven them, we can then no longer account them enemies, and so 'twill be no hard matter even to flesh and blood to do all kind things to them. And indeed this is the way, by which we must try the sincerity of our forgiveness. 'Tis easie to say, I forgive such a Man, but if when an opportunity of doing him good is offered, thou declinest it, 'tis apparent

Sunday

This Charity of the actions must reach to Enemies.

Sunday
XVII. parent there yet lurks the old malice in thy heart : where there is a through forgiveness, there will be as great a readiness to benefit an enemy as a friend, nay perhaps in some respects a greater ; a true charitable person looking upon it as an especial prize, when he has an opportunity of evidencing the truth of his reconciliation, and obeying the precept of his Saviour, by doing good to them that hate him. Mat. 5. 44. Let us therefore resolve that all actions of kindness are to be performed to our enemies, for which we have not only the command, but also the example of Christ, who had not only some inward relentings towards us his obstinate and most provoking enemies, but shewed it in acts, and those no cheap, or easie ones, but such as cost him his dearest blood. And surely we can never pretend to be either obeyers of his Command, or followers of his Example, if we grudge to testify our loves to our enemies, by those so much cheaper ways of feeding them in hunger, and the like ; recommended to us by the Apostle, Rom. 12. 20. But if we could perform these acts of kindness to enemies in such manner as might draw them from their enmity, and win them to Peace, the Charity would be doubled ; and this we should aim at, for that we see the Apostle sets as the end of the fore-mentioned acts of feeding, &c. that we may heap coals of fire on their heads, not coals to burn, but to melt them into all love and tenderness derness towards us; and this were indeed the most compleat way of imitating Christ's example, who in all he did and suffered for us, designed the reconciling of us to himself.

18. I have now shewed you the several parts of our duty to our Neighbour, towards the performance whereof I know nothing more necessary, than the turning out of our hearts that self-love which so often possesses them, and that so wholly, that it leaves no room for Charity, nay, nor Justice neither to our Neighbour. By this self love I mean not that true love of our selves, which is the love and care of our Souls (for that would certainly help, not hinder us in this duty) but I mean that immoderate love of our own worldly interests and advantages, which is apparently the root of all both injustice and uncharitableness towards others. We find this sin of self-love set by the Apostle in the head of a whole troop of sins, 2 Tim. 3. 2. as if it were some principal Officer in Satan's camp; and certainly not without reason, for it never goes without an accursed train of many other sins, which like the Dragons tail, Rev. 12. 4. sweeps away all care of duty to others. We are by it made so vehement and intent upon the pleasing our selves, that we have no regard to any body else, contrary to the direction of S. Paul, Rom. 15. 2. which is not to please our selves, But every man to please his Neighbour for his good to edification, which he backs with the example an hindrance to this Charity.

Sunday XVII. ple of Christ, V. 3. For even Christ pleased not himself: If therefore we have any sincere desire to have this vertue of Charity rooted in our hearts, we must be careful to weed out this sin of self-love, for 'tis impossible they can prosper together.

Prayer, a means to procure it.

19. But when we have removed this hindrance, we must remember that this, as all other graces, proceeds not from our selves, it is the gift of God, and therefore we must earnestly pray to him to work it in us, to send his holy Spirit, which once appeared in the form of a Dove, a meek and gall-less creature, to frame our hearts to the same temper, and enable us rightly to perform this duty.

Christian duties both possible and pleasant.

20. I Have now past through those several Branches I at first propos'd, and shew'd you what is our duty to God, our Selves, and our Neighbour; of which I may say as it is, Luke 10. 28. This do and thou shalt live. And surely 'tis no impossible task to perform this in such a measure, as God will graciously accept, that is, in Sincerity tho' not in Perfection, for God is not that austere Master, Luke 19. 20. That reaps where he has not sown; he requires nothing of us, which he is not ready by his Grace to enable us to perform, if we be not wanting to our selves, either in asking it by Prayer, or in using it by diligence. And as 'tis not impossible, so neither is it such a sad melancholy task, as men are apt

apt to think it. 'Tis a special policy of Satan's Sunday XVII. to do as the Spies did, Numb. 23. 28. Bring up an ill report upon this good Land, this state of Christian Life, thereby to discourage us from entering into it, to fright us with I know not what Giants we shall meet with; but let us not thus be cheated, let us but take the courage to try, and we shall indeed find it a Canaan, a land flowing with milk and honey: God is not in this respect to his people, a wilderness, a land of darkness, Jer. 2. 31. His service does not bereave men of any true joy, but helps them to a great deal: Christ's yoke is an easie, nay, a pleasant yoke, his burden a light, yea, a gracious burden. There is in the practice of Christian duties a great deal of present pleasure, and if we feel it not, it is because of the resistance our vicious and sinful customs make, which by the contention raises an uneasiness. But then first, that is to be charged only on our selves, for having got those ill customs, and thereby made that hard to us, which in it self is most pleasant, the Duties are not to be accused for it. And then secondly, even there the pleasure of subduing those ill habits, overcoming those corrupt customs is such, as hugely outweigheth all the trouble of the combat.

21. But it will perhaps be said, that some parts of piety are of such a nature, as will be very apt to expose us to persecutions and sufferings in the world, and that those are not joyous but grievous. Even when they expose us to outward sufferings.

Sunday
XVII.

I answer, that even in those there is matter of joy. We see the Apostles thought it so, They rejoiced that they were counted worthy no suffer for Christ's name, Act. 4. 41. and S. Peter tells us, That if any suffer as a Christian, he is to glorifie God for it, 1 Pet. 4. 16. There is such a force and vertue in the testimony of a good Conscience, as is able to change the greatest suffering into the greatest triumph, and that testimony we can never have more clear and lively, than when we suffer for righteousness sake; so that you see Christianity is very amiable even in its saddest dress, the inward comforts of it do far surpass all the outward tribulations that attend it, and that even in the instant while we are in the state of warfare upon earth. But then if we look forward to the crown of our victories, those eternal rewards in Heaven; we can never think those Tasks sad, though we had nothing at present to sweeten them, that have such recompences await them at the end; were our labours never so heavy; we could have no cause to faint under them. Let us therefore whenever we meet with any discouragements in our course, fix our eye on this rich prize, and then run with patience the race which is set before us, Heb. 12. 2. follow the Captain of our Salvation through the greatest sufferings; yea, even through the same red Sea of blood, which he hath waded, whenever our obedience to him shall require it; for tho' our fidelity to him, should should bring us to death it self we are sure to be no losers by it, for to such he hath promised a crown of life, the very expectation whereof is able to keep a Christian more chearful in his fetters and dungeon, than a worldling can be in the midst of his greatest prosperities.

22. All that remains for me farther to add, is earnestly to intreat and beseech the Reader, that without delay he put himself into this so pleasant and gainful a course, by setting sincerely to the practice of all those things, which either by this Book, or by any other means he discerns to be his Duty: and the further he hath formerly gone out of his way, the more hast it concerns him to make to get into it, and to use the more diligence in walking in it. He that hath a long journey to go, and finds he has lost a great part of his day in a wrong way, will not need much intreaty, either to turn into the right, or to quicken his pace in it. And this is the case of all those that have lived in any course of sin, they are in a wrong road, which will never bring 'em to the place they aim at: nay, which will certainly bring 'em to the place they most fear and abhor; much of their day is spent, how much will be left to finish their Journey in none knows, perhaps the next hour, the next minute, the night of death may overtake them; what a madness is it then for 'em to defer one moment to turn out of that Path which leads to certain destruction, and to put them-

Christian Reader,

I Have, for the help of thy Devotions, set down some FORMS of PRIVATE PRAYER, upon several occasions: If it be thought an omission that there are none for Families, I must answer for my self, that it was not from any opinion, that God is not as well to be worshipped in the Family as the Closet: but because the Providence of God and the Church hath already furnished thee for that purpose, infinitely beyond what my utmost care could do: I mean the PUBLICK LITURGY or COMMON PRAYER, which for all publick addresses to God (and such are Family Prayers) are so excellent and useful, that we may say of it as David did of Goliath's Sword, 1 Sam. 21. 9. There is none like it.

DIRECTIONS for the MORNING.

As soon as ever thou awakest in the morning, lift up thy heart to God in this or the like short Prayer.

LORD, as thou hast awaked my Body from sleep, so by thy Grace awaken my Soul from sin; and make me so to walk before thee this day, and all the rest of my life, that when the last Trumpet shall awake me out of my grave, I may rise to the life immortal, through Jesus Christ.

WHen thou hast thus begun, suffer not (without some urgent necessity) any worldly thoughts to fill thy mind, till thou hast also paid thy more solemn Devotions to Almighty God, and therefore during the time thou art dressing thy self, (which should be no longer than common decency requires) exercise thy mind in some spiritual thoughts: As for example, consider to what Temptations thy business or Company that day are most like to lay thee open, and arm thy self with Resolutions against them; or again, consider what occasions of doing service to God, or good to thy Neighbour are that day most likely to present themselves, and resolve to embrace them; and also contrive how thou mayst improve them to the uttermost. But especially it will be fit for thee to examine whether there have any sin escaped thee since thy last nights examination. If after these considerations any further leisure remain, thou mayest profitably employ it in meditating on the general Resurrection (whereof our rising from our Beds is a representation) and of that dreadful Judgment which shall follow it, and then think with thy self in what preparation thou art for it, and resolve to husband carefully every minute of thy time towards the fitting thee for that great account. As soon as thou art ready, retire to some private place, and there offer up to God thy Morning Sacrifice of Practise and Prayer.

Pray-

Prayers for the Morning.At thy first kneeling down, say,

O Holy, Blessed and Glorious Trinity, three Persons and one God, have Mercy upon me a miserable sinner.

LORD, I know not what to pray for as I ought, O let thy Spirit help my infirmities, and enable me to offer up a spiritual Sacrifice acceptable to thee by Jesus Christ,

A Thanksgiving.

O Gracious Lord, whose Mercies endure for ever, I thy unworthy servant who have so deeply tasted of them, desire to render thee the tribute of my humblest praises for them. In thee, O Lord, I live and move, and have my being: thou first madest me to be, and then that I might not be miserable but happy, thou sentest thy Son out of thy bosom to Redeem me from the power of my sins by his Grace, and from the punishment of them by his Blood, and by both to bring me to his Glory. Thou hast by thy mercy caused me to be born within thy peculiar Fold, the Christian Church, where I was early consecrated to thee in Baptism, and have been partaker of all those spiritual helps which might aid me to perform that Vow I there made to thee; and when by my own wilfulness or negligence, I have failed to do it, yet thou in thy manifold mercies hast not forsaken me, but hast graciously invited me to repentance, afforded me all means both outward and inward for it, and with much patience hast attended and not cut me off in the acts of those many damning sins I have committed, as I have most justly deserved. It is, O Lord, thy restraining grace alone by which I have been kept back from any the greatest sins, and it is thy inciting and assisting Grace alone, by which I have been enabled to do any the least good; therefore not unto me, not unto me, but unto thy name be the praises. For these and all other thy Spiritual Blessings, my Soul doth magnifie the Lord, and all that is within me praise his holy Name. I likewise praise thee for those many outward Blessings I enjoy, as health, friends, food and raiment, the comforts as well as the necessaries of this life, for those continual protections of thy hand, by which I and mine are kept from dangers, and those gracious deliverances thou hast often afforded out of such as have befallen me, and for that mercy of thine whereby thou hast sweetned and allayed those troubles thou hast not seen fit wholly to remove: for thy particular preservation of me this night, and all other thy goodness towards me. Lord, grant that I may render thee not only the fruit of my my lips, but the obedience of my life; that so these blessings here may be an earnest of those richer blessings thou hast prepared for those that love thee, and that for his sake, whom thou hast made the Author of Eternal Salvation to all that obey him, even Jesus Christ.

A Confession.

O Righteous Lord, who hatest iniquity, I thy sinful creature cast my self at thy feet, acknowledging that I most justly deserve to be utterly abhorred and forsaken by thee; for I have drunk iniquity like water, gone on in a continued course of sin and rebellion against thee, daily committing those things thou forbiddest, and leaving undone those things thou commandest; mine heart, which should be an habitation for thy spirit, is become a Cage of unclean Birds, of foul and disordered affections; and out of this abundance of the heart my mouth speaketh, my hands act, so that in thought, word, and deed, I continually transgress against thee. [Here mention the greatest of thy sins.] Nay, O Lord, I have despised that goodness of thine which should lead me to Repentance, hardning my heart against all those means thou hast used for my amendment. And now, Lord, what can I expect from thee but judgment and fiery indignation, that is indeed the due reward of my sins? But, O Lord, there is mercy with thee that thou mayest be feared. O fit me for that mercy by giving me a deep and hearty Repentance, and then according to thy Goodness let thine Anger and thy Wrath be turned away from me; look upon me in thy Son, my blessed Saviour, and for the merit of his sufferings pardon all my sins: And Lord, I beseech thee by the power of thy grace so to renew and purifie my heart, that I may become a new creature, utterly forsaking every evil way, and living in constant, sincere, universal obedience to thee all the rest of my days, that behaving my self as a good and faithful servant, I may by thy mercy at the last be received into the joy of my Lord. Grant this for Jesus Christ his sake.

A Prayer for Grace.

O Most gracious God, from whom every good and perfect gift cometh, I wretched creature, that am not able of my self so much as to think a good thought, beseech thee to work in me both to Will and Do according to thy good pleasure. Enlighten my mind that I may know thee, and let me not be barren or unfruitful in that knowledge; Lord, work in my heart a true Faith and purifying Hope, and an unfeigned Love towards thee; give me a full trust on thee, Zeal for thee, Reverence of all things that relate to thee; thee; make me fearful to offend thee, Thankful for thy Mercies, Humble under thy corrections, Devout in thy Service, Sorrowful for my sins; and grant that in all things I may behave my self so, as befits a creature to his Creator, a servant to his Lord; enable me likewise to perform that Duty I owe to my self; give me that Meekness, Humility, and Contentedness whereby I may always possess my Soul in Patience and Thankfulness; make me diligent in all my Duties, watchful against all Temptations, perfectly Pure and Temperate, and so moderate in my most Lawful Enjoyments, that they may never become a snare to me; make me also, O Lord, to be so affected towards my Neighbour, that I never transgress that Royal Law of thine of Loving him as my self; grant me exactly to perform all parts of Justice, yielding to all whatsoever by any kind of Right becomes their due, and give me such bowels of mercy and compassion, that I may never fail to do all acts of Charity to all Men, whether Friends or Enemies, according to thy command and example. Finally, I beseech thee, O Lord, to sanctifie me throughout, that my whole Spirit, and Soul, and Body may be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; to whom with thee and the Holy Ghost be all Honour and Glory for ever.

Amen.

Inter-

Intercession.

O Blessed Lord, whose mercy is over all thy works, I beseech thee to have mercy upon all men, and grant that the precious ransom which was paid by thy Son for all, may be effectual to the saving of all. Give thy enlightning Grace to those that are in darkness, and thy converting Grace, to those that are in sin : look with thy tenderest compassions upon the Universal Church. O be favourable and gracious unto Sion, build thou the Walls of Jerusalem : unite all those that profess thy name to thee, by purity, and holiness ; and to each other by brotherly love. Have mercy on this desolate Church, and sinful Nation ; thou hast moved the Land and divided it, heal the sores thereof, for it shaketh , make us so truly to repent of those sins which have provoked thy Judgments, that thou also mayest turn, and repent, and leave a blessing behind thee. Bless those whom thou hast appointed our Governors, whether in Church or State : so rule their hearts, and strengthen their hands, that they may neither want will nor power to punish wickedness and vice, and to maintain God's true Religion and Vertue. Have pity, O Lord, on all that are in affliction ; be a Father to the Fatherless, and plead the cause of the Widow, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, heal the sick, relieve the needy, defend the oppressed, and administer administer to every one according to their several necessities; let thy blessings rest upon all that are near and dear to me, and grant them whatsoever thou see'st necessary either to their Bodies or their Souls. [Hear name thy nearest Relations.] Reward all those that have done me good, and pardon all those that have done or wisht me evil, and work in them and me all that good which may make us acceptable in thy sight, through Jesus Christ.

For Preservation.

O Merciful God, by whose bounty alone it is, that I have this day added to my life, I beseech thee so to guide me in it by thy Grace, that I may do nothing which may dishonour thee, or wound my own Soul, but that I may diligently apply my self to do all such good works, as thou hast prepared for me to walk in; and, Lord, I beseech thee, give thy Angels charge over me, to keep me in all my ways, that no evil happen unto me, nor any plague come nigh my dwelling, but that I and mine may be safe under thy gracious protection, through Jesus Christ.

O Lord, pardon the wandrings and coldness of these Petitions, and deal with me, not according either to my Prayers or deserts, but according to my needs and thine own rich mercies in Jesus Christ, in whose blessed bleſſed name and words I conclude theſe my imperfect Prayers; ſaying, Our Father, &c.

Directions for Night.

AT NIGHT, when it draws towards the time of reſt, beſthink thy ſelf how thou haſt paſſed the day, examine thine own heart, what ſin, either of thought, word, or deed thou haſt committed, what opportunity of doing good thou haſt omitted, and whatſoever thou findeſt to accuſe thy ſelf of, confeſs humbly and penitently to God, renew thy purpoſes and reſolutions of amendment, and beg his pardon in Chriſt, and this not ſlightly, and only as of courſe, but with all devout earneſtneſs, and heartineſs, as thou wouldeſt do, if thou wert ſure thy death were as near approaching as thy ſleep, which for ought thou knoweſt may be ſo indeed, and therefore thou ſhouldeſt no more venture to ſleep unreconciled to God, than thou wouldeſt dare to die ſo. In the next place conſider what ſpecial and extraordinary mercies thou haſt that day received, as if thou haſt had any great deliverance, either in thy inward man, from ſome dangerous temptations, or in thy outward, from any great and apparent danger, and offer to God thy hearty and devout praiſe for the ſame; or if nothing extraordinary have ſo hapned, and thou haſt been kept even from the approach of danger, thou haſt not the leſs, but the greater cauſe to magniſie God, who hath by his protection ſo guarded thee, that not ſo

so much as the fear of evil hath assaulted thee. And therefore omit not to pay him the tribute of humble thankfulness as well for his usual and daily preservations, as his more extraordinary deliverances. And above all, endeavour still by the consideration of his mercies to have thy heart the more closely knit to him, remembering that every favour received from him is a new engagement upon thee to love and obey him.

Prayers for Night.

O Holy, Blessed and Glorious Trinity, three Persons and one God, have mercy upon me a miserable sinner.

Lord, I know not what to pray for as I ought, O let thy Spirit help my infirmities, and enable me to offer up a Spiritual Sacrifice, acceptable unto thee by Jesus Christ.

A Confession.

O MOST Holy Lord God, who art of purer eyes, than to behold iniquity, how shall I, abominable wretch, dare to appear before thee, who am nothing but pollution? I am defiled in my very nature, having a backwardness to all good, and a readiness to all evil; but I have defiled my self yet much worse by my own actual sins and wicked customs: I have transgress'd my duty to thee, my Neighbour, and my Self, and that both in thought, word, and in deed, by doing those things which thou hast expressly forbidden, and by neglecting to do those things thou hast commanded me. And this not only through ignorance and frailty, but knowingly and wilfully, against the motions of thy Spirit, and the checks of my own conscience to the contrary. And to make all these out of measure sinful, I have gone on in a daily course of repeating these provocations against thee, notwithstanding all thy calls to, and my own purposes and vows of amendment; yea, this very day I have not ceased to add new sins to all my former guilts. [Here name the particulars.] And now, O Lord, what shall I say, or how shall I open my mouth, seeing I have done these things? I know that the wages of these sins is death; but O thou who willest not the death of a sinner, have mercy upon me; work in me, I beseech thee, a sincere contrition, and a perfect hatred of my sins; and let me not daily confess, and yet as daily renew them: but grant, O Lord, that from this instant I may give a Bill of Divorce to all my most beloved lusts, and then be thou pleased to marry me to thy self in Truth, in Righteousness and Holiness. And for all my past sins, O Lord, receive a reconciliation; accept of that ransom thy blessed Son has paid for me, and for his sake whom thou hast set forth as a propitiation, pardon all my offences, and receive me to thy favour. And when

• in

when thou hast thus spoken peace to my soul, Lord keep me that I turn not any more to folly, but so establish me with thy Grace, that no temptation of the World, the Devil, or my own flesh may ever draw me to offend thee; that being made free from sin, and becoming a servant unto God, I may have my fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting Life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

A Thanksgiving.

O Thou Father of Mercies, who art kind even to the unthankful, I acknowledge my self to have abundantly experimented that gracious property of thine; for notwithstanding my daily provocations against thee, thou still heapest mercy and loving kindness upon me. All my contempts and despisings of thy spiritual favours have not yet made thee withdraw them, but in the riches of thy goodness and long-suffering thou still continuest to me the offers of Grace and Life in thy Son. And all my abuses of thy temporal blessings thou hast not punished with an utter deprivation of them, but art still pleased to afford me a liberal portion of them. The sins of this day thou hast not repayed, as justly thou might'st, by sweeping me away with a swift destruction, but hast spared and preserved me according to the greatness of thy mercy. [Here mention the particular mercies of that day.] What shall I render unto the Lord,

Lord, for all these benefits he hath done unto me? Lord, let this goodness of thine lead me to repentance, and grant that I may not only offer thee thanks and praise, but may also order my conversation aright, that so I may at the last see the Salvation of God, through Jesus Christ.

Here use the Prayer for Grace, and that of Intercession appointed for the Morning.

For Preservation.

○ Blessed Lord, the Keeper of Israel, that neither slumberest nor sleepest, be pleased in thy mercy to watch over me this night; keep me by thy grace from all works of darkness, and defend me by thy power from all dangers, grant me moderate and refreshing sleep, such as may fit me for the duties of the day following. And, Lord, make me ever mindful of that time when I shall lie down in the dust, and because I know neither the day nor the hour of my Master's coming, grant me grace that I may be always ready, that I may never live in such a state as I shall fear to die in; but that whether I live, I may live unto the Lord, or whether I die, I may die unto the Lord, so that living and dying, I may be thine, thro Jesus Christ.

Use the same concluding Prayer as in the Morning.

A S

AS thou art putting off thy cloaths, think with thy self that the time approaches that thou must put off thy body also, and then thy Soul must appear naked before God's Judgment-Seat ; and therefore thou hadst need be careful to make it so clean and pure by repentance and holiness, that he who will not look on iniquity may graciously behold and accept it.

Let thy bed put thee in mind of thy grave, and when thou liest down, say, OBlessed Saviour, who by thy precious death and burial didst take away the sting of death, and the power of the grave, grant me the joyful fruits of that thy victory, and be thou to me in life and death advantage.

I will lay me down in peace, and take my rest ; for it is thou, Lord, only that makest me dwell in safety.

Into thy hands I commend my spirit ; for thou hast redeemed it, O Lord, thou God of truth.

IN the ANCIENT CHURCH there were, besides Morning and Night, four other times every Day, which were called HOURS OF PRAYER, and the zeal of those first Christians was such as made them constantly observed.

served. It would be thought too great a strictness now in this lukewarm age to enjoin the like frequency: yet I cannot but mention the example, and say, that for those who are not by very necessary business prevented, it will be but reasonable to imitate it, and make up in publick and private those FOUR TIMES of PRAYER, besides the OFFICES already set down for MORNING and NIGHT; and that none may be to seek how to exercise their Devotions at these times, I have added divers COLLECTS for several Graces, whereof every man may use at each such time of Prayer so many as his zeal and leisure shall point out to him, adding, if he please, one of the Confessions appointed for Morning and Night, and never omitting the LORD'S PRAYER.

But if any man's state of life be really so busie, as will not allow him time for so long and solemn Devotions; yet certainly there is no man so overlaid with business, but that he may find leisure oftentimes in a day to say the LORD'S PRAYER alone: and therefore let him use that, if he cannot more. But because it is the Character of a Christian, Phil. 3. 20. That he hath his conversation in Heaven, it is very fit that besides these set times of Prayer, he should divers times in a day by short and sudden EJACULATIONS dart up his soul thither. And for this sort of Devotion no man can want leisure, for it may be performed in the midst of business; the Artificer at his work, the Husbandman bandman at his Plough may practise it. Now as he cannot want time, so, that he may not want matter for it, I have thought it not unuseful, out of that rich store-house, the BOOK OF PSALMS, to furnish him with some Texts, which may very fitly be used for this purpose; which being learned by heart, will always be ready at hand to employ his devotion; and the matter of them being various, some for pardon of sin, some for grace, some for the light of God's countenance, some for the Church, some for Thanksgiving, &c. every man may fit himself according to the present need and temper of his Soul. I have given these not as a full collection, but only as a taste, by which the Reader's appetite may be rais'd to search after more in that Book, and other parts of Holy Scripture.

COLLECTS for several GRACES.

For Faith.

O Blessed Lord, whom without Faith it is impossible to please, let thy Spirit, I beseech thee, work in me such a Faith, as may be acceptable in thy sight, even such as worketh by love: O let me not rest in a dead ineffectual Faith, but grant that it may be such as may shew it self by my works, that it may be that victorious Faith which may enable me to overcome the world, and conform me to the Image of that Christ, on

whom

whom I believe ; that so at the last I may receive the end of my Faith, even the salvation of my Soul, by the same Jesus Christ.

For Hope.

O Lord, who art the hope of all the ends of the Earth, let me never be destitute of a well grounded hope, nor yet possess with a vain presumption ; suffer me not to think thou wilt either be reconciled to my sins, or reject my repentance : but give me, I beseech thee, such a hope as may be answerable to the only ground of hope, thy promises, and such as may both encourage and enable me to purify my self from all filthiness both of flesh and spirit, that so it may indeed become to me an anchor of the Soul both sure and steadfast, entering even within the veil ; whither the forerunner is for me entered, even Jesus Christ my High Priest and blessed Redeemer.

For the Love of God.

O Holy and gracious Lord, who art infinitely excellent in thy self, and infinitely bountiful and compassionate towards me, I beseech thee suffer not my heart to be so hardened through the deceitfulness of sin, as to resist such charms of love, but let them make deep and lasting impressions on my soul. Lord, thou art pleased to require my heart, and thou only hast right to it. O let me not be so sacrilegiously unjust as to alienate any part part of it, but enable me to render it up whole and entire to thee. But, O my God, thou seest it is already usurped, the World with its vanities hath seized it, and like a strong Man armed keeps possession. O thou who art stronger, come upon him, and take this unworthy heart of mine as thine own spoil, refine it with that purifying fire of thy love, that it may be a fit habitation for thy Spirit. Lord, if thou see fit, be pleased to let me taste of those joys, those ravishments of thy love wherewith thy Saints have been so transported. But if in this I know not what I ask, if I may not chuse my place in thy Kingdom, yet, O Lord, deny me not to drink of thy Cup, let me have such a sincerity and degree of love, as may make me endure any thing for thy sake, such a perfect love as may cast out all fear and sloth too, that nothing may seem to me too grievous to suffer, or too difficult to do in obedience to thee; that so expressing my love by keeping thy Commandments, I may by thy mercy at last obtain that Crown of Life, which thou hast promised to those that love thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

For Sincerity.

○ Holy Lord, who requirest truth in the inward parts, I humbly beseech thee to purge me from all hypocrisie and unsincerity. The heart, O Lord, is deceitful above all things, things, and my heart is deceitful above all hearts: O thou who searchest the heart and reins, try me and seek the ground of my heart, and suffer not any accursed thing to lurk within me, but purifie me even with fire, so thou consume my dross. O Lord, I cannot deceive thee, but I may most easily deceive my self. I beseech thee, let me not rest in any such deceit, but bring me to a sight and hatred of my most hidden corruptions, that I may not cherish any darling lust, but make an utter destruction of every Amalekite. O suffer me not to speak peace to my self, when there is no peace, but grant I may judge of my self as thou judgest of me, that I may never be at peace with my self, till I am at perfect peace with thee, and by purity of heart be qualified to see thee in thy Kingdom, through Jesus Christ.

For Devotion in Prayer.

O Gracious Lord God, who not only permittest, but inviteest us miserable and needy creatures to present our petitions to thee; Grant, I beseech thee, that the frequency of my prayer may be somewhat proportionable to those continual needs I have of thy mercy. Lord, I confess it is the greatest honour and greatest advantage, thus to be allowed access to thee; yet so sottish and stupid is my prophane heart, that it shuns or frustrates the opportunities of it. My Soul, O Lord, Lord is possess'd with a spirit of infirmity, it is bowed together, and can in no wise lift up it self to thee. O be thou pleas'd to cure this sad, this miserable Disease, to inspirit and enliven this earthly drossy heart, that it may freely mount towards thee ; that I may set a true value on this most valuable privilege, and take delight in approaching thee ; and that my approaches may be with a reverence some way answerable to that awful Majesty I come before ; with an importunity and earnestness answerable to those pressing wants I have to be supplied ; and with such a fixedness and attention of mind, as no wandring thoughts may interrupt : that I may no more incur the guilt of drawing near to thee with my lips, when my heart is far from thee, or have my prayers turned to sin, and may so ask that I may receive, seek that I may find, knock that it may be opened unto me ; that from praying to thee here, I may be translated to the praising thee eternally in thy glory, through the Merits and Intercession of Jesus Christ.

For Humility.

O Thou High and Lofty one, that inhabitest Eternity, yet art pleas'd to dwell with the humble spirit, pour into my heart, I beseech thee, that excellent grace of Humility, which may utterly work out all those vain conceits I have of my self ; Lord, convince me powerfully of my own wretchedness, make me to see that I am miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked, and not only dust, but sin ; that so in all thy dispensations towards me, I may lay my hand upon my mouth, and heartily acknowledge that I am less than the least of thy Mercies, and greater than the greatest of thy Judgments. And, O Lord, grant me not only to walk humbly with my God, but even with Men also, that I may not only submit my self to thy rebukes, but even to those of my fellow-Christians, and with meekness receive and obey their admonitions. And make me so to behave my self towards all, that I never do any thing through strife and vain-glory ; and to that end grant, that in lowliness of mind I may esteem every other man better than my self, and be willing that others should esteem them so also : that I neither nourish any high opinion of my self, nor covet one among others ; but that despising the vain praise of Men, I may seek that praise which cometh from thee only : that so instead of those mean servile Arts I have used to recommend me to the esteem of Men, I may now employ all my industry and care to approve my self to thee, who resistest the proud, and givest grace to the humble : Grant this, O Lord, for his sake, who humbled himself unto the death of the Cross, Jesus Christ.

For

For the fear of God.

O Glorious Majesty, who only art high and to be feared, possess my Soul with a holy awe and reverence of thee, that I may give thee the honour due unto thy Name, and may bear such a respect to all things which relate to thee, that I may never profane any holy thing, or sacrilegiously invade what thou hast set apart to thy self. And, O Lord, since thou art a God that wilt not clear the guilty, let the dread of thy Justice make me tremble to provoke thee in any thing. O let me not so misplace my fear, as to be afraid of a Man that shall die, and of the son of Man who shall be made as grass, and forget the Lord my Maker ; but replenish my soul with that fear of the Lord, which is the beginning of wisdom, which may be as a bridle to all my brutish appetites, and keep me in a constant conformity to thy holy Will. Hear me, O Lord, I beseech thee, and put this fear in my heart, that I may not depart from thee, but may with fear and trembling work out my own salvation, through Jesus Christ.

For trust on God.

O Almighty Lord, who never failest them that trust on thee, give me grace, I beseech thee, in all my difficulties and distresses, to have recourse to thee, to rest and depend on thee ; thou shalt keep him, O Lord, in perfect fect peace, whose mind is staid on thee. O let me always rest on this firm Pillar, and never exchange it for the broken reeds of worldly succours; suffer not my heart to be overcharged with the cares of this life; taking thought what I shall eat or drink, or wherewithal I shall be cloathed, but grant that having by honest labour and industry done my part, I may chearfully commit my self to thy providence, casting all my care upon thee; and being careful for nothing, but to be of the number of those whom thou ownest and carest for, even such as keep thy Testimonies, and think upon thy Commandments to do them. That seeking first thy Kingdom and the righteousness thereof, all these outward things may be added unto me in such a measure as thy wisdom knows best for me: Grant this, O Lord, for Jesus Christ his sake.

For Thankfulness.

O Most gracious and bountiful Lord, who fillest all things living with good, and expectest no other return, but praise and thanksgiving; let me, O Lord, never defraud thee of that so easie tribute, but let my heart be ever filled with the sense, and my mouth with the acknowledgment of thy mercies. It is a joyful and pleasant thing to be thankful; O suffer me not, I beseech thee, to lose my part in that divine pleasure; but grant, that as I daily receive blessings from thee, thee, so I may daily from an affectionate and devout heart offer up thanks to thee ; and grant that not only my lips, but my life may shew forth thy praise, by consecrating my self to thy service, and walking in holiness and righteousness before thee all the days of my life, through Jesus Christ my Lord and blessed Saviour.

For Contrition.

O Holy Lord, who art a merciful embracer of true penitents, but yet a consuming fire towards obstinate sinners ; how shall I approach thee, who have so many provoking sins to inflame thy wrath, and so little sincere repentance to encline thy mercy ! O be thou pleased to soften and melt this hard obdurate heart of mine, that I may heartily bewail the iniquities of my life ; strike this rock, O Lord, that the waters may flow out, even floods of tears to wash my polluted conscience. My drowsie Soul hath too long slept securely in sin ; Lord, awake it though it be with thunder, and let me rather feel thy terrors, than not feel my sin. Thou sentest thy blessed Son to heal the broken-hearted ; but, Lord, what will that avail me, if my heart be whole ? O break it, that it may be capable of this healing vertue ; and grant, I beseech thee, that having once tasted the bitterness of sin, I may flie from it as from the face of a Serpent, and bring forth fruits of repentance in amendment ment of life, to the praise and glory of thy grace in Jesus Christ our blessed Redeemer.

For Meekness.

O Blessed Jesu, who wast led as a sheep to the slaughter, let, I beseech thee, that admirable example of Meekness quench in me all sparks of anger and revenge, and work in me such a gentleness and calmness of spirit, as no provocations may ever be able to disturb. Lord, grant I may be so far from offering the least injury, that I may never return the greatest, any otherwise than with prayers and kindness; that I who have so many talents to be forgiven by thee, may never exact pence of my brethren; but that putting on bowels of mercy, meekness, long-suffering, thy peace may rule in my heart, and make it an acceptable habitation to thee, who art the Prince of Peace, to whom with the Father and holy Spirit be all honour and glory for ever.

For Chastity.

O Holy and Immaculate Jesus, whose first descent was into the Virgin's womb, and who dost still love to inhabit only in pure and Virgin hearts, I beseech thee send thy Spirit of purity to cleanse me from all filthiness both of flesh and spirit; my body, O Lord, is the Temple of the Holy Ghost; O let me never pollute that Temple with any uncleanness. And because out of the heart proceed the things things that defile the Man ; Lord, grant me to keep my heart with all diligence, that no impure or foul thoughts be harboured there : but enable me, I beseech thee, to keep both body and soul pure and undefiled, that so I may glorifie thee here both in body and spirit, and be glorified in both with thee hereafter.

For Temperance.

O Gracious Lord, who hast in thy bounty to Mankind offered to us the use of thy good creatures for our corporal refreshment : grant that I may always use this liberty with thankfulness and moderation. O let me never be so enslaved to that brutish pleasure of taste, that my Table become a snare to me ; but give me, I beseech thee, a perfect abhorrence of all degrees of excess, and let me eat and drink only for those ends, and according to those measures which thou hast assigned me, for health, and not for luxury. And Lord, grant that my pursuits may be not after the meat that perisheth, but after that which endureth to everlasting life ; that hungering and thirsting after righteousness I may be filled with thy Grace here, and thy glory hereafter, through Jesus Christ.

For Contentedness.

O Merciful God, thy wisdom is infinite to chuse, and thy love forward to dispense good things to us ; O let me always fully and entirely entirely resign my self to thy disposals, have no desires of my own, but a perfect satisfaction in thy choices for me ; that so in whatsoever state I am, I may be therein content. Lord, grant I may never look with murmuring on my own condition, nor with envy on other mens. And to that end, I beseech thee, purge my heart of all covetous affections. O let me never yield up any corner of my soul to Mammon, but give me such a contempt of these fading riches, that whether they encrease or decrease, I may never set my heart upon them, but that all my care may be to be rich towards God, to lay up my treasure in Heaven ; that I may so set my affections on things above, that when Christ who is my life shall appear, I may also appear with him in glory. Grant this, O Lord, for the merits of the same Jesus Christ.

For Diligence.

O Lord, who hast in thy wisdom ordained that Man should be born to labour, suffer me not to resist that design of thine, by giving my self to sloth and idleness ; but grant I may so employ my time, and all other talents thou hast entrusted me with, that I may not fall under the sentence of the slothful and wicked servant. Lord, if it be thy will, make me some way useful to others, that I may not live an unprofitable part of mankind ; but however, O Lord, let me not be useless to my self, self, but grant I may give all diligence to make my calling and election sure. My soul is beset with many and vigilant adversaries; O let me not fold my hands to sleep in the midst of so great dangers, but watch and pray, that I enter not into temptation; enduring hardness as a good Soldier of Jesus Christ, till at the last from this state of warfare, thou translate me to the state of triumph and bliss in thy Kingdom, through Jesus Christ.

For Justice.

O Thou King of Righteousness, who hast commanded us to keep judgment and do justice, be pleased by thy Grace to cleanse my heart and hands from all fraud and injustice, and give me a perfect integrity and uprightness in all my dealings. O make me ever abhor to use my power to oppress, or my skill to deceive my brother; and grant I may most strictly observe that sacred rule, of doing as I would be done to; that I may not dishonour my Christian profession by an unjust and fraudulent life, but in simplicity and godly sincerity have my conversation in the world; never seeking to heap up treasures in this life, but preferring a little with righteousness before great revenues without right. Lord, make me exactly careful to render to every Man what by any sort of obligation becomes his due, that I may never break the bond of any of those relations that thou hast placed me in, but may

may so behave my self towards all, that none may have any evil thing to say of me ; that so, if it be possible, I may have peace with all men, or however, I may, by keeping innocency, and taking heed to the thing that is right, have peace at the last, even peace with thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

For Charity.

O Merciful Lord, who hast made of one blood, and redeemed by one ransom all Nations of Men, let me never harden my bowels against any that partake of the same nature and redemption with me, but grant me an universal charity towards all Men. Give me, O thou Father of Compassions, such a tenderness and meltingness of heart, that I may be deeply affected with all the miseries and calamities outward or inward of my brethren, and diligently employ all my abilities for their succour and relief. O let not an unchristian self-love possess my heart, but drive out that accursed spirit, and let thy spirit of love enter and dwell there, and make me seek not to please my self, but my Neighbour for his good to edification, even as Christ pleased not himself. Lord, make me a faithful steward of all those talents thou hast committed to me for the benefit of others, that so when thou shalt call me to give an account of my stewardship, I may do it with joy, and
not not with grief. Grant this merciful Lord I beseech thee, for Jesus Christ his sake.

For Perseverance.

O Eternal and unchangeable Lord God, who art the same yesterday and to day, and for ever; be thou pleased to communicate some small ray of that excellence, some degree of that stability to me thy wretched creature, who am light and unconstant, turned about with every blast; my understanding, is very deceivable, O establish it in thy truth keep it from the snares of seducing Spirits, that I may not be led away with the error of the wicked, and fall from my own stedfastness: my Will also, O Lord, is irresolute and wavering, and doth not cleave stedfastly unto God; my Goodness is but as the morning cloud, and as the early dew it passeth away. O strengthen and confirm me, and whatever good work thou hast wrought in me, be pleased to accomplish and perform it till the day of Christ. Lord thou seest my weakness, and thou knowest the number and strength of those temptations I have to struggle with. O leave me not to my self, but cover thou my head in the day of battel, and in all spiritual combates makes me more than Conquerour through him that loved me. O let no terrors or flatteries either of the world or my own flesh ever draw me from my obedience to thee; but grant that I may continue stedfast

A Brief Paraphrase of the LORD'S PRAYER,

To be used as a Prayer.

[Our Father which art in Heaven.]

O LORD, who dwellest in the highest Heavens, thou art the Author of our beings, thou hast also begotten us again unto a lively hope, and carriest towards us the tenderness and bowels of a compassionate Father. O make us to render to thee the love and obedience of Children; and that we may resemble thee our Father in Heaven (that place of true delight and purity) give us a holy disdain of all the deceitful pleasures and foul pollutions of this world, and so raise up our minds that we may always have our conversation in Heaven, from whence we look for our Saviour the Lord Jesus Christ.

[1. Hallowed be thy Name.]

STrike such an awe in our hearts, that we may humbly reverence thee in Thy Name, which is great, wonderful and holy; and carry carry such a sacred respect to all things that relate to thee and thy worship, as may express our reverence to thy great Majesty. Let all the people praise thee, O God, let all the people praise thee.

[2. Thy Kingdom come.]

EStablish thy Throne and rule for ever in our Souls, and by the power of thy grace subdue all those rebellious corruptions that exalt themselves against thee: they are those enemies of thine which would not thou shouldest reign over them. O let them be brought forth and slain before thee; and make us such faithful Subjects of this thy Kingdom of Grace, that we may be capable of the Kingdom of Glory, and then Lord Jesus come quickly.

[3. Thy will be done on Earth, &c.]

ENable us by thy grace chearfully to suffer thy Will in all our afflictions, and readily perform it in all thy commands: give us of that heavenly zeal to thy service, wherewith the blessed Angels of thy presence are inspired, that we may obey thee with the like fervour and alacrity, and that following them in their obedience, we may be joynd with them to sing eternal praises in thy Kingdom to God, and to the Lamb for ever.

[4. Give us this day, &c.]

Give us that continual supply of thy Grace, which may sustain and nourish our souls unto eternal life. And be thou pleased also to provide for our bodies all those things which thou see'st fit for their support, through this our earthly Pilgrimage; and make us cheerfully to rest on thee for them, first seeking thy Kingdom and the righteousness thereof, and then not doubting but all these things shall be added unto us.

[5. Forgive us our trespasses, &c.]

HEal our Souls, O Lord, for we have sinned against thee, let thy tender mercies abound towards us, in the forgiveness of all our offences; and grant, O Lord, that we may never forfeit this pardon of thine, by denying ours to our Brethren, but give us those bowels of compassion to others, which we stand in so much greater need of from thee, that we may forgive as fully and finally upon Christ's command as we desire to be forgiven, for his merits and intercession.

[6. Lead us not into Temptation, &c.]

OLORD, we have no strength against those multitudes of Temptations that daily assault us, only our eyes are upon thee; O be thou pleased either to restrain them, or assist us, and in thy faithfulness suffer us not to be

be tempted above that we are able, but in all our temptations make us a way to escape, that we be not overcome by them, but may when thou shalt call us to it, resist even unto blood, striving against sin, that being faithful unto death, thou mayest give us the crown of life.

[For thine is the Kingdom, &c.]

Hear us, and graciously answer our Petitions, for thou art the great King over all the Earth, whose Power is infinite, and art able to do for us above all that we can ask or think, and to whom belongeth the Glory of all that good thou workest in us or for us. Therefore blessing, honour, glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the Throne, to our God for ever and ever. Amen.

Pious EJACULATIONS taken out of the Book of PSALMS.

For Pardon of Sin.

Have mercy on me, O God, after thy great goodness, according to the multitude of thy mercies do away mine offences.

Wash me thoroughly from my wickedness, and cleanse me from my sin.

Turn thy face from my sins, and put out all my misdeeds.

My misdeeds prevail against me; O be thou merciful unto my sins.

F f 3

Enter

Eater not into Judgment with thy servant, for in thy sight shall no man living be justified.

For thy Names sake, O Lord, be merciful unto my sin, for it is great.

Turn thee, O Lord, and deliver my soul, O save me for thy mercies sake.

For Grace.

Teach me to do the thing that pleaseth thee, for thou art my God.

Teach me thy way, O Lord, and I will walk in thy truth; O knit my heart to thee, that I may fear thy Name.

Make me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right Spirit within me.

O let my heart be found in thy Statutes, that I be not ashamed.

Incline my heart unto thy Testimonies, and not to covetousness.

Turn away mine eyes lest they behold vanity, and quicken thou me in thy way.

I am a stranger upon earth, O hide not thy Commandments from me.

Lord, teach me to number my days, that I may apply my heart unto wisdom.

For the light of God's Countenance.

LORD, why abhorrest thou my Soul, and hidest thy face from me? O hide not thou thy face from me, nor cast thy Servant away in displeasure.

Thy loving kindness is better than life it self. Lord

Lord lift thou up the light of thy Countenance upon me.

Comfort the Soul of thy servant, for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

Thanksgiving.

I Will always give thanks unto the Lord, his praise shall ever be in my mouth.

Thou art my God, and I will thank thee; thou art my God, and I will praise thee.

I will sing unto the Lord, as long as I live, I will praise my God, whilst I have my being.

Praised be God, which hath not cast out my Prayer, nor turned his mercy from me.

Blessed be the Lord God, even the God of Israel, which only doth wondrous things:

And blessed be the name of his Majesty for ever, and all the Earth shall be filled with his Majesty. Amen, Amen.

For Deliverance from Trouble.

BE merciful unto me, O Lord, be merciful unto me, for my soul trusteth in thee. and under the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge until these calamities be over-past.

Deliver me, O Lord, from mine enemies, for I flee unto thee to hide me.

O keep my soul, and deliver me: let me not be confounded, for I have put my trust in thee.

Mine eyes are ever looking unto the Lord, for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.

Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me; for I am desolate and in misery.

The sorrows of my heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my troubles.

For the Church.

O Be favourable and gracious unto Sion, build thou the Walls of Jerusalem.

O God, wherefore art thou absent from us so long? Why is thy wrath so hot against the sheep of thy pasture?

O think upon thy Congregation, whom thou hast purchased and redeemed of old.

Look upon the Tribe of thine inheritance, and Mount Sion where thou hast dwelt.

It is time for thee Lord to lay to thy hand, for they have destroyed thy Law.

Arise, O God, and maintain thine own cause: deliver Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

THE use of this Catalogue of Sins is this, Upon days of Humiliation, especially before the Sacrament, read them consideringly over, and at every particular ask thine own heart, Am I guilty of this? And whatsoever by such Examination thou findest thy self faulty in, Confess particularly and humbly to God, with all the heightning circumstances, which may any way increase their guilt, and make serious resolutions against every such Sin for the future, after which thou mayest use this form following.

O LORD, I am ashamed, and blush to lift up my face to thee, for my iniquities are increased over my head, and my trespass is grown up even unto Heaven, I have wrought all these great provocations, and that in the most provoking manner ; they have not been only single, but repeated acts of sin : for, O Lord, of all this black Catalogue which I have now brought forth before thee, how few are there which I have not often committed ? Nay, which are not become even habitual and customary to me : And to this frequency, I have added both greediness, and obstinacy in sinning. turning into my course as the Horse rusheth into the Battel, doing evil with both hands, earnestly, yea, hating to be reformed, and casting thy words behind me, quenching thy spirit within me, which testified against me, to turn me from my evil ways ; and frustrating all those outward means, whether of judgment or mercy, which thou hast used to draw me to thy self, Nay, O Lord, even my repentances may be numbred amongst my greatest sins : they have sometimes been feigned and hypocritical, always so slight and ineffectual, that they have brought forth no fruit in amendment of life ; but I have still returned with the Dog to the vomit, and the Sow to the mire again, and have added the breach of resolutions and vows to all my former guilts. Thus, O Lord, I am become out of measure sinful, and since I have thus chosen death, I am most most worthy to take part in it, even in the second death, the lake of fire and brimstone. This, this, O Lord, is in justice to be the portion of my cup; to me belongs nothing but shame and confusion of face eternally; but to thee, O Lord God, belongeth mercy and forgiveness, though I have rebelled against thee. O remember not my sins and offences, but according to thy mercy think thou upon me, O Lord, for thy goodness. Thou sentest thy Son to seek and to save that which was lost? behold, O Lord, I have gone astray like a sheep that is lost: O seek thy servant, and bring me back to the Shepherd and Bishop of my soul. Let thy spirit work in me a hearty sense and detestation of all my abominations, that true contrition of heart, which thou hast promised not to despise. And then be thou pleased to look on me, to take away all iniquity, and receive me graciously; and for his sake who hath done nothing amiss, be reconciled to me who have done nothing well; wash away the guilt of my sins in his blood, and subdue the power of them by his grace: and grant, O Lord, that I may from this hour bid a final adieu to all ungodliness and worldly lust, that I may never once more cast a look toward Sodom, or long after the flesh-pots of Ægypt; but consecrate my self entirely to thee, to serve thee in Righteousness and true Holiness, reckoning my self to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord and blessed Saviour.

This penitential PSALM may also fitly be used.
PSALM 51.

HAVE mercy upon me, O God, after thy great goodness, according to the multitude of thy mercies do away mine offences.

Wash me thoroughly from my wickedness, and cleanse me from my sin.

For I acknowledge my faults, and my sin is ever before me.

Against thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight that thou mightest be justified in thy saying, and clear when thou art judged.

Behold I was shapen in wickedness, and in sin hath my mother conceived me.

But lo, thou requirest truth in the inward parts, and shall make me to understand wisdom secretly.

Thou shalt purge me with Hyssop, and I shall be clean, thou shalt wash me, and I shall be whiter than Snow.

Thou shalt make me hear of joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoyce.

Turn thy face from my sins, and put out all my misdeeds.

Make me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me.

Cast me not away from thy presence, and take not thy holy Spirit from me.

O give me the comfort of thy help again, and establish me with thy free spirit,

Then shall I teach thy ways unto the wicked, and sinners shall be converted unto thee.

Delit-

Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, thou that art the God of my health, and my tongue shall sing of thy Righteousness.

Thou shalt open my lips, O Lord, and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise.

For thou desirest no sacrifice, else would I give it thee: but thou delightest not in burnt-offering.

The sacrifice of God is a troubled spirit, a broken and contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise.

O be favourable and gracious unto Sion, build thou the walls of Jerusalem.

Then shalt thou be pleased with the sacrifice of righteousness, with the burnt offerings and oblations; then they shall offer young bullocks upon thine Altar.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be, world without end, Amen.

PRAYERS BEFORE

The Receiving of the Blessed SACRAMENT.

O Most merciful God, who hast in thy great goodness prepared this spiritual feast for sick and famished souls, make my desires and gasping after it, answerable to my needs of it, I have, with the prodigal, wasted that portion of grace thou bestowest upon me ; and therefore do infinitely want a supply out of this treasury : But, O Lord, how shall such a wretch as I dare to approach this holy Table ? I am a dog, how shall I presume to take the childrens bread ? Or how shall this spiritual Manna, this food of Angels be given to one who hath chosen to feed on husks with Swine ? Nay, to one who hath already so often trampled these precious things under foot, either carelessly neglecting, or unworthily receiving these holy mysteries ? O Lord, my horrible guiltiness makes me tremble to come, and yet makes me not dare to keep away, for where, O Lord, shall my polluted soul be washed if not in this fountain which thou hast opened for sin and for uncleanness ? Hither therefore I come, and thou hast promised, that him that cometh to thee, thou wilt in no wise cast out : This is, O Lord, the blood of the New Testament ; grant me so to receive it, that it may be to me for remission of sins, and tho' I have so often and so wretchedly broken my part of that Covenant, whereof this Sacrament is a seal, yet be thou graciously pleased to make good thine ; to be merciful to my unrighteousness, and to remember my sins and my iniquities no more : and not only so, but to put thy laws into my heart, and to write them in my mind, and by the power of thy grace dispose my soul to such a sincere and constant obedience, that I may never again provoke
of

provoke thee. Lord grant that in these holy mysteries I may not only commemorate, but effectually receive my blessed Saviour, and all the benefits of his passion; and to that end give me such a preparation of soul as may qualify me for it; give me a deep sense of my sins and unworthiness, that being weary and heavy laden, I may be capable of his refreshings, and by being suppled in my own tears, I may be the fitter to be washed in his blood; raise up my dull and earthly mind from groveling here below, and inspire it with a holy zeal, that I may with spiritual affection approach this spiritual feast; and let, O Lord, that infinite love of Christ in dying for so wretched a sinner, inflame my frozen benumbed soul, and kindle in me that sacred fire of love to him, and that so vehement, that no waters may quench, no floods drown it, such as may burn up all my dross; not leave one unmortified lust in my soul; and such as may also extend it self to all whom thou hast given me command and example to love, even enemies as well as friends. Finally, O Lord, I beseech thee to cloath me in the Wedding-Garment, and make me, tho' of my self the most unworthy, yet by thy mercy an acceptable guest at this holy Table: that I may not eat nor drink my own condemnation, but may have my pardon sealed my weakness repaired, my corruptions subdued, and my soul so inseparably united to thee, that no temptations may ever be able to dissolve the union, but that being begun here in grace it may be consummated in Glory. Grant this, O Lord, for thy dear Son's sake, Jesus Christ.
ever

Another.

O Blessed Jesus, who once offeredst up thy self for me upon the Cross, and now offerest thy self to me in the Sacrament, let not, I beseech thee, my impenitence and unworthiness frustrate these so inestimable mercies to me, but qualify me by thy grace to receive the full benefit of them. O Lord, I have abundant need of thee, but am so clogg'd with guilt, so holden with the cords of my sins, that I am not able to move towards thee, O loose me from this band, wherewith Satan and my own lusts have bound me, and draw me that I may run after thee. O Lord, thou seest daily how eagerly I pursue the paths that lead to death, but when thou invitest me to life and glory, I turn my back and forsake my own mercy. How often has this feast been prepared, and I have with frivolous excuses absented my self! or if I have come, it hath been rather to despise than adore thee; I have brought such Troops of thy professed enemies, unrepented sins, along with me, as if I came not to commemorate, but renew thy passion, crucifying thee afresh, and putting thee to open shame. And now of what punishment nishment shall I be thought worthy, who have thus trampled under foot the Son of God, and counted the blood of the Covenant an unholy thing? Yet, O merciful Jesu, this blood is my only refuge: O let this make my atonement, or I perish eternally. Wherefore didst thou shed it, but to save sinners? Neither can the merit of it be overwhelm'd either by the greatness or number of sins. I am a sinner, a great one, O let me find its saving efficacy. Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful to me, for my soul trusteth in thee, and in the clefts of thy wounds shall be my refuge, until the Father's indignation be overpast. O thou who hast as my High-Priest sacrificed for me, interceed for me also, and plead thy meritorious sufferings on my behalf, and suffer not, O my Redeemer, the price of thy blood to be utterly lost: and grant, O Lord, that as the sins I have to be forgiven are many, so I may love much. Lord, thou seest what faint, what cold affections I have towards thee; O warm and enliven them: and as in this Sacrament that transcendant love of thine in dying for me is shed forth, so I beseech thee let it convey such grace into me as may enable me to make some returns of love: O let this divine fire descend from Heaven into my soul, and let my sins be the burnt-offering for it to consume, that there may not any corrupt affection, any cursed thing be sheltred in my heart; that I may never again defile that place which thou hast

hast chosen for thy Temple. Thou diedst, O dear Jesu, to redeem me from all iniquity, O let me not again sell my self to work wickedness. But grant that I may approach thee at this time with most sincere and fixed resolutions of an entire reformation, and let me receive such grace and strength from thee, as may enable me faithfully to perform them. Lord, there are many old habituated diseases, my soul groans under. [Here mention thy most prevailing corruptions.] And tho' I lie never so long at the Pool of Bethesda, come never so often to thy Table, yet unless thou be pleased to put forth thy healing vertue, they will still remain uncured. O thou blessed Physician of souls, heal me, and grant that I may now so touch thee, that every one of these loathsome issues may immediately stanch, that these sicknesses may not be unto death, but unto the glory of thy mercy in pardoning, to the glory of thy grace in purifying so polluted a wretch. O Christ hear me, and grant I may now approach thee with such humility and contrition, love and devotion, that thou mayest vouchsafe to come unto me, and abide with me, communicating to me thy self, and all the merits of thy Passion. And then, O Lord, let no accusations of Satan, or my own conscience amaze or distract me, but having peace with thee, let me also have peace in my self, that this Wine may make glad, this Bread of Life may strengthen my heart, and enable me chear-

cheerfully to run the way of thy Commandments. Grant this, merciful Saviour, for thine own bowels and compassions sake.

EJACULATIONS to be used at the LORD'S SUPPER.

LORD, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof.

I have sinned: What shall I do unto thee, O thou preserver of Men.

[Here recollect some of thy greatest sins.]

If thou, Lord, shouldst be extreme to mark what is done amiss, O Lord, who may abide it?

But with the Lord there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption.

Behold, O Lord, thy beloved Son in whom thou art well pleased.

Hearken to the cry of his blood, which speaketh better things than that of Abel.

By his Agony and bloody Sweat, by his Cross and passion, good Lord deliver me.

O Lamb of God, which takest away the sins of the World, grant me thy Peace.

O Lamb of God, which takest away the sins of the World, have mercy upon me.

Immediately before Receiving.

THOU hast said that he that eateth thy flesh and drinketh thy blood, hath eternal life.

Behold

Behold the Servant of the Lord, be it unto me according to thy word.

At the receiving of the Bread.

BY thy Crucified Body deliver me from this body of death.

At the receiving of the Cup.

O Let this blood of thine purge my conscience from dead works to serve the living God.

Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me clean.

O touch me and say, I will, be thou clean.

After Receiving.

WHat shall I render unto the Lord for all the benefits he hath done unto me?

I will take the Cup of Salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord.

Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

Therefore blessing, honour, glory and power, be to him that sitteth upon the throne, and the Lamb for ever and ever, Amen.

I have sworn and am stedfastly purposed to keep thy righteous judgments.

O hold thou up my goings in thy paths, that my foot-steps slip not.

A Thanksgiving after the Receiving of the Sacrament.

O Thou Fountain of all Goodness, from whom every good and perfect gift cometh; and to whom all honour and glory should be returned, I desire with all the most fervent and inflamed affections of a grateful heart, to bless and praise thee for those inestimable mercies thou hast vouchsafed me. Lord, what is man that thou shouldst so regard him as to send thy beloved Son to suffer such bitter things for him? But, Lord, what am I, the worst of men, that I should have any part in this atonement, who have so often despised him and his sufferings? O the height and depth of this mercy of thine, that art pleased to admit me to the renewing of that Covenant with thee, which I have so often and so perversly broken! That I, who am not worthy of that daily bread which sustains the body, should be made partaker of this bread of life which nourisheth the Soul, and that the God of all purity should vouchsafe to unite himself to so polluted a wretch; O my God, suffer me no more, I beseech thee, to turn thy grace into wantonness, to make thy mercy an occasion of security, but let this unspeakable love of thine constrain me to obedience; that since my blessed Lord hath died for me, I may no longer live unto my self, but to him. O H h
Lord,

Lord, I know there is no concord between Christ and Belial, therefore since he hath now been pleased to enter my heart, O let me never permit any lust to chase him thence, but let him that hath so dearly bought me, still keep possession of me, and let nothing ever take me out of his hand. To this end be thou graciously pleased to watch over me, and defend me from all assaults of my spiritual enemies; but especially deliver me from my self, from the treachery of my own heart, which is too willing to yield it self a prey. And where thou seest I am either by nature or custom most weak, there do thou, I beseech thee, magnifie thy power in my preservation. [Here mention thy most dangerous temptations.] And, Lord, let my Saviour's sufferings for my sins, and the vows I have now made against them, never depart from my mind; but let the remembrance of the one enable me to perform the other, that I may never make a truce with those lusts which nailed his hands, pierced his side, and made his Soul heavy to the death: But that having now anew lifted my self under his banner, I may fight manfully, and follow the Captain of my salvation, even through a sea of Blood. Lord, lift up my hands that hang down, and my feeble knees, that I faint not in this warfare: O be thou my strength, who am not able of my self to struggle with the slightest temptations. How often have I turned my back in the day of battel? How many of these

Sacra-

Sacramental Vows have I violated? And, Lord, I have still the same unconstant deceitful heart to betray me to the breach of this. O thou who art Yea, and Amen, in whom there is no shadow of change, communicate to me, I beseech thee, such a stability of mind, that I may no more thus start aside like a broken bow; but that having my heart whole with thee, I may continued fast in thy Covenant, that not one good purpose which thy Spirit hath raised in me this day may vanish, as so many have formerly done, but that they may bring forth fruit unto life eternal. Grant this, O merciful Father, through the merits and mediation of my crucified Saviour.

A Prayer of Intercession, to be used either Before or After the Receiving of the Sacrament.

O Most gracious Lord, who so tenderly lovedst Mankind, as to give thy dear Son out of thy bosom to be a propitiation for the sins of the whole world, grant that the effect of this redemption may be as universal as the design of it, that it may be to the Salvation of All. O let no person by impenitence and wilful sin forfeit his part in it, but by the power of thy grace bring all, even the most obstinate sinners to repentance. Enlighten all that sit in darkness, all Jews, Turks, Infidels, and Hereticks; take from them all blindness, hardness of heart, and contempt of thy Word, and so

fetch them home, blessed Lord, unto thy fold, that they may be saved among the number of the true Israelites. And for all those, upon whom the name of thy Son is called, grant, O Lord, that their conversations may be such as becometh the Gospel of Christ; that his Name be no longer blasphemed among the Heathens through us. O blessed Lord, how long shall Christendom continue the vilest part of the world, a sink of all those abominable pollutions, which even Barbarians detest? O let not our profession and our practice be always at so wide a distance. Let not the Disciples of the holy and immaculate Jesus be of all others the most profane and impure. Let not the subjects of the Prince of Peace be of all others the most contentious and bloody; but make us Christians indeed, as well as in name, that we may walk worthy of that holy Vocation wherewith we are called, and may all with one mind and one mouth glorifie thee the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Have mercy on this languishing Church, look down from Heaven, the habitation of thy holiness, and of thy glory. Where is thy zeal and thy strength, the founding of thy bowels and of thy mercies towards us? Are they restrained? Be not wroth very sore, O Lord, neither remember iniquity for ever; but though our backslidings are many, and we have grievously rebelled, yet according to all thy goodness, let thy anger and thy fury be turned away.

away, and cause thy face to shine upon thy Sanctuary which is desolate, for the Lord's sake; and so separate between us and our sins, that they may no longer separate between us and our God. Save and defend all Christian Kings, Princes and Governours, especially those to whom we owe subjection; plead thou their cause, O Lord, against those that strive with them, and fight thou against those that fight against them: and so guide and assist them in the discharge of that Office whereunto thou hast appointed them, that under them we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. Bless them that wait at thine Altar, open thou their lips that their mouth may shew forth thy praise. O let not the lights of the world be put under bushels, but place them in their Candlesticks, that they may give light to all that are in the house. Let not Jeroboam's Priests prophane thy service, but let the Seed of Aaron still minister before thee. And O thou Father of mercies, and God of all comfort, succour and relieve all that are in affliction; deliver thy outcast and poor, help them to right that suffer wrong, let the sorrowful sighing of the Prisoners come before thee, and according to the greatness of thy power, preserve thou those that are appointed to die: grant ease to those that are in pain, supplies to those that suffer want, give to all presumptuous sinners a sense of their sins, and to all despairing, a sight of thy mercies;

cies;

cies, and do thou, O Lord, for every one abundantly above what they can ask or think. Forgive my Enemies, Persecutors, and Slanderers, and turn their hearts. Pour down thy blessings on all my Friends and Benefactors, all who have commended themselves to my Prayers. [Here thou mayest name particular Persons.] And grant, O merciful Father, that through this blood of the Cross, we may all be presented pure, and unblameable, and unproveable in thy sight; that so we may be admitted into that place of purity, where no unclean thing can enter, there to sing eternal praises to Father, Son and Holy Ghost for ever.

A Prayer in times of common Persecution.

O Blessed Saviour, who hast made the Cross the badge of thy Disciples, enable me, I beseech thee, willingly and cheerfully to embrace it: thou seest, O Lord, I am fallen into days, wherein he that departeth from evil maketh himself a Prey; O make me so readily to expose all my outward concerns, when my obedience to thee requireth it, that what falls as a Prey to men, may by thee be accepted as a Sacrifice to God. Lord, preserve me so by thy grace, that I never suffer as an evil-doer; and then, O Lord, if it be my lot to suffer as a Christian, let me not be ashamed, but rejoyce that I am counted worthy to suffer for thy Name. O thou who
for

for my sake enduredst the Cross and despisedst the shame, let the example of that love and patience prevail against all the tremblings of my corrupt heart, that no terrours may ever be able to shake my constancy, but that how long soever thou shalt permit the rod of the wicked to lie on my back, I may never put my hand unto wickedness. Lord, thou knowest whereof I am made, thou remembrest that I am but flesh; and flesh, O Lord, shrinks at the approach of any thing grievous. It is thy Spirit, thy Spirit alone, that can uphold me: O establish me with thy free Spirit, that I be not weary and faint in my mind. And by how much the greater thou discernest my weakness, so much the more do thou shew forth thy power in me, and make me, O Lord, in all temptations stedfastly to look to thee, the author and finisher of my faith, that so I may run the race which is set before me, and resist even unto blood, striving against sin. O dear Jesus, hear me; and tho' Satan desire to have me, that he may winnow me as Wheat, yet do thou, O blessed Mediator, pray for me that my Faith fail not, but that tho' it be tried with fire, it may be found unto praise, and glory, and honour at thy appearing. And, O Lord, I beseech thee, grant that I may preserve not only constancy towards God, but charity also towards men, even those whom thou shalt permit to be the instruments of my sufferings: Lord, let me not fail to imitate that admirable meekness of thine, in loving and praying for my greatest persecutors; and do thou, O Lord, overcome all their evil with thy infinite goodness, turn their hearts, and draw them powerfully to thy self, and at last receive both me and mine enemies into those mansions of peace and rest where thou reignest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one God for ever.

A Prayer in time of affliction.

O Just and Holy Lord, who with rebukes doth chasten man for sin, I desire unfeignedly to humble my self under thy mighty hand, which now lies heavy upon me: I heartily acknowledge, O Lord, that all I do, all I can suffer, is but the due reward of my deeds, and therefore in thy severest afflictions I must still say, Righteous art thou, O Lord, and upright are thy Judgments. But, O Lord, I beseech thee in judgment remember mercy, and though my sins have enforced thee to strike, yet consider my weakness, and let not thy stripes be more heavy or more lasting than thou findest profitable for my soul; correct me, but with the chastisement of a father, not with the wounds of an enemy; and though thou take not off thy rod, yet take away thine anger. Lord, do not abhor my soul, nor cast thy servant away in displeasure, but pardon my sins, I beseech thee; and if yet in thy fatherly wisdom thou see fit to prolong thy thy corrections, thy blessed will be done. I cast my self, O Lord, at thy feet, do with me what thou pleasest. Try me as silver is tried, so thou bring me out purified. And, Lord, make even my flesh also to subscribe to this resignation, that there may be nothing in me that may rebel against thy hand ; but that having perfectly suppressed all repining thoughts, I may chearfully drink of this cup. And how bitter soever thou shalt please to make it, Lord, let it prove medicinal, and cure all the diseases of my Soul, that it may bring forth in me the peaceable fruit of Righteousness. That so these light afflictions which are but for a moment, may work for me a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, thro' Jesus Christ.

A Thanksgiving for Deliverance.

○ Blessed Lord, who art gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil ; I thankfully acknowledge before thee, that thou hast not dealt with me after my sins, nor rewarded me according to my iniquities. My rebellions, O Lord, deserve to be scourged with Scorpions, and thou hast corrected them only with a gentle and fatherly rod ; neither hast thou suffered me to lie long under that, but hast given me a timely and a gracious issue out of my late distresses. O Lord, I will be glad and rejoice in thy mercy, for thou hast con-

considered my trouble, and hast known my soul in adversity. Thou hast smitten, and thou hast healed me. O let these various methods of thine have their proper effects upon my soul, that I who have felt the smart of thy chastisement, may stand in awe and not sin : and that I who have likewise felt the sweet refreshings of thy mercy, may have my heart ravished with it, and knit to thee in the firmest bands of love ; and that by both I may be preserved in a constant, entire obedience to thee all my days, through Jesus Christ.

Directions for the time of Sicknes.

WHen thou findest thy self visited with sickness, thou art immediately to remember that it is God, which with rebukes doth chasten man for sin. And therefore let thy first care be, to find out what it is that provokes him to smite thee ; and to that purpose examine thine own heart, search diligently what guilt's lie there, confess them humbly and penitently to God, and for the greater security renew thy repentance for all the old sins of thy former life, beg most earnestly and importunately his mercy and pardon in Christ Jesus, and put on sincere and zealous resolutions of forsaking every evil way, for the rest of that time which God shall spare thee. And that thy own heart deceive thee not in this so weighty a business, it will be wisdom to send for some godly Divinie,

not only to assist thee with his Prayers, but with his counsel also. And to that purpose open thy heart so freely to him, that he may be able to judge whether thy repentance be such, as may give thee confidence to appear before God's dreadful Tribunal; and that if it be not, he may help thee what he can towards the making it so. And when thou hast thus provided for thy better part, thy Soul, then consider thy Body also, and as the wise man saith, Eccles. 38. 12. Give place to the Physician, for the Lord hath created him. Use such means as may be most likely to recover thy health, but always remember that the success of them must come from God; and beware of Aſa's sin, who sought to the Physicians, and not to the Lord, 2 Chron. 6. 12. Dispose also betimes of thy temporal affairs, by making thy Will, and setting all things in such order as thou meanest finally to leave them in, and defer it not till thy sickness grow more violent; for then perhaps thou shalt not have such use of thy reason as may fit thee for it; or if thou have, it will be then much more seasonable to employ thy thoughts on higher things, on the World thou art going to, rather than that thou art about to leave; we cannot carry the things of this world with us when we go hence, and it is not fit we should carry the thoughts of them. Therefore let those be early dispatched, that they may not disturb thee at last.

A Prayer

A Prayer for a sick Person.

O Merciful and Righteous Lord, the God of health and of sickness, of life and of death, I most unfeignedly acknowledge that my great abuse of those many days of strength and welfare, which thou hast afforded me, hath most justly deserved thy present Visitation. I desire, O Lord, humbly to accept of this punishment of mine iniquity, and to bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him. And, O Thou merciful Father, who designest not the ruine but the amendment of those whom thou scourgest, I beseech thee by thy grace so to sanctifie this correction of thine to me, that this sickness of my Body may be a means of health to my Soul ; make me diligent to search my heart, and do thou, O Lord, enable me to discover every accursed thing, how closely soever concealed there, that by the removal thereof, I may make way for the removal of this punishment. Heal my soul, O Lord, which hath sinned against thee ; and then, if it be thy blessed will, heal my body also : restore the voice of joy and health unto my dwelling, that I may live to praise thee, and to bring forth fruits of repentance. But if in thy wisdom thou hast otherwise disposed, if thou hast determined that this sickness shall be unto death, I beseech thee to fit and prepare pare me for it : give me that sincere and earnest repentance to which thou hast promised mercy and pardon ; wean my heart from the world, and all its fading vanities, and make me to gasp and pant after those more excellent and durable joys which are at thy right hand for ever. Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon me, and in all the pains of my body, in all the agonies of my spirit, let thy comforts refresh my soul, and enable me patiently to wait till my change come. And grant, O Lord, that when my earthly house of this Tabernacle is dissolved, I may have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens ; and that for his sake, who by his precious blood hath purchased it for me, even Jesus Christ.

A Thanksgiving for Recovery.

O Gracious Lord, the God of the spirits of -all flesh, in whose hand my time is, I praise and magnifie thee, that thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption, and restored me to health again ; it is thou alone, O Lord, that hast preserved my life from destruction ; thou hast chastened and corrected me, but thou hast not given me over unto death. O let this life, which thou hast thus graciously spared, be wholly consecrated to thee. Behold, O Lord, I am by thy mercy

mercy made whole, O make me strictly careful to sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto me. Lord, let not this reprieve thou hast now given me, make me secure, as thinking that my Lord delayeth his coming, but grant me, I beseech thee, to make a right use of this long-suffering of thine, and so to employ every minute of that time thou shalt allow me, that when thou shalt appear, I may have confidence, and not be ashamed before thee at thy coming. Lord, I have found by this approach towards death, how dreadful a thing it is to be taken unprepared; O let it be a perpetual admonition to me to watch for my Master's coming. And when the pleasures of sin shall present themselves to entice me, O make me to remember how bitter they will be at the last. O Lord, hear me; and as thou hast in much mercy afforded me time, so grant me also grace to work out my own salvation, to provide Oil in my Lamp, that when the Bridegroom cometh, I may go in with him to the Marriage. Grant this, I beseech thee, for thy dear Son's sake.

A Prayer at the approach of Death.

O Eternal and Ever-living God, who first breathedst into man the breath of life, and when thou takest away that breath, he dies and is turned again to his dust, look with compassion on me thy poor Creature who am now

now drawing near the Gates of Death, and, which is infinitely more terrible, the Barr of Judgment. Lord, my own heart condemns me, and thou art infinitely greater than my heart, and knowest all things. The sins I know and remember, fill me with horreur; but there are also multitudes of others, which I either observed not at that time, or have since carelessly forgot, which are all present to thee. Thou settest my misdeeds before thee, and my secret sins in the light of thy countenance; and to what a mountainous heap must the minutely provocations of so many years arise? How long shall one so ungodly stand in thy judgment, or such a sinner in the Congregation of the Righteous? And to add yet more to my terrour, my very repentance, I fear, will not abide the Tryal; my frequent relapses heretofore have sufficiently witnessed the unsincerity of my past resolutions. And then, O Lord, what can secure me, that my present dislike of my sins are not rather the effects of my amazing danger, than of any real change? And, O Lord, I know thou art not mocked, nor wilt accept of any thing that is not perfectly sincere. O Lord, when I consider this, fearfulness and trembling comes upon me, and an horrible dread overwhelmeth me; my flesh trembleth for fear of thee, and my heart is wounded within me. But, O Lord, one deep calleth upon another, the depth of my misery upon the depth of thy mercy ; Lord, save now, or I perish eternally. O thou who willest not that any should perish, but that all would come to repentance, bring me, I beseech thee, though thus late, to a sincere repentance, such as thou wilt accept, who triest the heart. Create in me, O God, a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within me. Lord, one day is with thee as a thousand years. O let thy mighty Spirit work in me now in this my last day, whatsoever thou seeest wanting to fit me for thy mercy and acceptation. Give me a perfect and entire hatred of my sins, and enable me to present thee with that sacrifice of a broken and contrite heart, which thou hast promised not to despise ; that by this I may be made capable of that atonement, which thy dear Son hath by the more excellent oblation of himself made for all repenting sinners. He is the propitiation for our sin, he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was on him ; O heal me by his stripes, and let the cry of his blood drown the clamour of my sins. I am indeed a child of wrath, he is the Son of thy love ; for his sake spare me, O Lord, spare thy creature, whom he hath redeemed with his most precious blood, and be not angry with me for ever. In his wounds, O Lord, I take sanctuary, O let not thy vengeance pursue me to this City of refuge : my Soul hangeth upon him, O let me not perish with a Jesus,

a Jesus, with a Saviour in my arms. But by his Agony and bloody Sweat; by his Cross and Passion, by all that he did and suffered for sinners, good Lord deliver me; deliver me, I beseech thee, from the wages of my sins, thy wrath and everlasting damnation in this time of my tribulation, in the hour of death, and in the day of Judgment. Hear me, O Lord, hear me, and do not now repay my former neglects of thy calls, by refusing to answer me in this time of my greatest need. Lord, there is but a step between me and death; O let not my Sun go down upon thy wrath, but seal my pardon, before I go hence and be no more seen. Thy loving-kindness is better than the life it self. O let me have that in exchange, and I shall most gladly lay down this mortal life. Lord, thou knowest all my desire, and my groaning is not hid from thee; deal thou with me, O Lord, according to thy name, for sweet is thy mercy: take away the sting of death, the guilt of my sins, and then though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; I will lay me down in peace, and, Lord, when I awake up, let me be satisfied with thy presence in thy glory. Grant this, merciful God, for his sake, who is both the Redeemer and Mediatour of sinners, even Jesus Christ.

P S A L M S.

PUT me not to rebuke, O Lord, in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy heavy displeasure.

There is no health in my flesh, because of thy displeasure : neither is there any rest in my bones, by reason of my sins.

For my wickednesses are gone over my head, and are a sore burthen too heavy for me to bear.

My wounds stink and are corrupt through my foolishness.

Therefore is my spirit vexed within me, and my heart within me is desolate.

My sins have taken such hold upon me, that I am not able to look up : yea, they are more in number than the hairs of my head, and my heart hath failed me.

But thou, O Lord God, art full of compassion and mercy, long suffering, plenteous in goodness and truth.

Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me, for I am desolate and in misery.

If thou, Lord, shouldst be extreme to mark what is done amiss, O Lord, who may abide it ?

O remember not the sins and offences of my youth : but according to thy mercy think thou upon me, for thy goodness.

Look upon my adversity and misery, and forgive me all my sin.

Hide not thy face from thy servant, for I am in trouble : O haste thee and hear me.

Out

Out of the deep do I call unto thee, Lord, hear my voice.

Turn thee, O Lord, and deliver my soul : O save me for thy mercies sake.

O go not from me, for trouble is hard at hand, and there is none to help.

I stretch forth my hands unto thee : my soul gaspeth unto thee, as a thirsty land.

Draw nigh unto my soul and save it : O deliver me, because of my enemies.

For my soul is full of trouble, and my life draweth nigh unto hell.

Save me from the Lions mouth : hear me from among the horns of the Unicorns.

O set me up upon the rock that is higher than I : for thou art my hope, and a strong tower for me against the enemy.

Why art thou so heavy, O my soul : and why art thou so disquiet within me ?

Put thy trust in God, for I will yet give him thanks for the light of his countenance.

The Lord shall make good his loving-kindness towards me, yea, thy mercy, O Lord endureth for ever, despise not thou the work of thine own hands.

O GOD, thou art my God, early will I seek thee.

My soul thirsteth for thee : my flesh also longeth after thee in a barren and dry land where no water is.

Like as the Hart desireth the water-brook, so longeth my soul after thee, O God.

My soul is a-thirst for God, even for the living God: when shall I come to appear before the presence of God?

How amiable are thy dwellings, O Lord of Hosts!

My soul hath a desire and longing to enter into the Courts of the Lord: my flesh and my heart rejoiceth in the living God.

O that I had wings like a Dove! for then would I flie away and be at rest:

O send out thy light and thy truth, that they may tend me, and bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy dwelling.

For one day in thy Courts is better than a thousand.

I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

I should utterly have fainted, but that I believed verily to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living.

Thou art my Helper and my Redeemer: O Lord, make no long tarrying.

E J A C U L A T I O N S.

O Lord, of whom may I seek for succour but of thee, who for my sins art justly displeas'd? Yet, O Lord God most Holy, O Lord most mighty, O Holy and most Merciful Saviour, deliver me not into the bitter pains of eternal death.

Thou

Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of my heart ; shut not up thy merciful eyes to my prayer, but hear me, O Lord most Holy, O God most Mighty, O Holy and Merciful Saviour, thou most worthy Judge Eternal, suffer me not at my last hour for any pains of death to fall from thee.

Father, I have sinned against Heaven and before thee, and am not worthy to be called thy child ; yet, O Lord, do not thou cast off the bowels and compassions of a Father : but even as a Father pitieth his own children, so be thou merciful unto me.

Lord, the Prince of this world cometh ; O let him have nothing in me, but as he accuseth, do thou absolve ; he lays many and grievous things to my charge, which he can too well prove ; I have nothing to say for my self, do thou answer for me, O Lord my God.

O Lord, I am cloathed with filthy garments, and Satan stands at my right hand to resist me ; O be thou pleased to rebuke him, and pluck me as a brand out of the fire ; cause mine iniquities to pass from me, and cloath me with the righteousness of thy Son.

Behold, O God, the Devil is coming towards me, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. O save and deliver me, lest he devour my soul like a Lion, and tear it in pieces while there is none to help.

I i 3

O my

O my God, I know that no unclean thing can enter into thy Kingdom, and I am nothing but pollution, my very righteousnesses are as filthy rags. O wash me, and make me white in the blood of the Lamb, that so I may be fit to stand before thy Throne.

Lord, The snares of death compass me round about ; O let not the pains of Hell also take hold upon me : but though I find trouble and heaviness, yet, O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

O dear Jesus, who hast bought me with the precious price of thine own blood, challenge now thy purchase, and let not the malice of Hell pluck me out of thy hand.

O blessed High-Priest, who art able to save them to the utmost who come unto God by thee ; save me, I beseech thee, who have no hope but on thy mercies and intercession.

O God, I confess I have defaced that image of thine thou didst imprint upon my soul ; Yet, O thou faithful Creator, have pity on thy creature.

O Jesu, I have by my many grievous sins crucified thee afresh, yet thou who prayedst for thy persecutors, intercede for me also, and suffer not, O my Redeemer, my soul (the price of thy blood) to perish.

O spirit of grace, I have by my horrid impieties done despite to thee ; yet, O blessed Comforter, though I have often grieved thee, be thou pleased to succour and relieve lieve me, and say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

Mine eyes look unto thee, O Lord ; in thee is my trust : O cast not out my soul.

O Lord, in thee have I trusted ; let me never be confounded.

O Blessed Lord, who scourgest every son whom thou receivest, let me not be weary of thy correction, but give me such a perfect subjection to thee the Father of Spirits, that this chastisement may be for my profit, that I may thereby be partaker of thy holiness.

O thou Captain of my Salvation, who wer't made perfect by sufferings, sanctifie to me all the pains of body, all the terrours of mind which thou shalt permit to fall upon me.

Lord, my sins have deserved eternal torments ; make me chearfully and thankfully to bear my present pains ; chasten me as thou pleasest here, that I may not be condemned with the world.

Lord, the waters are come in even unto my soul. O let thy spirit move upon these waters, and make them like the pool of Bethesda, that they may cure whatsoever spiritual disease thou discernest in me.

O Christ, who first suffered'st many and grievous things, and then entred'st into thy glory ; make me so to suffer with thee, that I may also be glorified with thee.

O dear Jesus, who humbledst thy self to the death of the Cross for me, let that death of thine sweeten the bitterness of mine.

When thou hadst overcome the sharpness of death, thou didst open the Kingdom of Heaven to all Believers.

I believe that thou shalt come to be my Judge.

I pray thee therefore help thy servant, whom thou hast redeemed with thy most precious blood.

Make me to be numbred with thy Saints in glory everlasting.

Thou art the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in thee, though he were dead, yet shall he live; Lord, I believe; help thou my unbelief.

My flesh and my heart faileth, but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

I desire to be dissolved, and to be with Christ, which is far better: Lord, I groan earnestly, desiring to be cloathed upon with that House from Heaven.

I desire to put off this my tabernacle. O be pleased to receive me into everlasting habitations.

Bring my soul out of prison, that I may give thanks unto thy Name.

Lord, I am here to wrestle not only with flesh and blood, but with principalities and powers, and spiritual wickedness. O take me me from these tents of Kedar, into the heavenly Jerusalem, where Satan shall be utterly trodden under my feet.

I cannot here attend one minute to thy service without distraction ; O take me up to stand before thy Throne, where I shall serve thee day and night.

I am here in heaviness through many tribulations ; O receive me into that place of rest, where all tears shall be wiped from my eyes, where there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain.

I am here in the state of banishment and absence from the Lord ; O take me where I shall for ever behold thy face, and follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth.

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith ; henceforth there is laid up for me a Crown of righteousness.

O Blessed Jesu, who hast loved me, and washed me from my sins in thine own blood, receive my soul.

Into thy hands I commend my spirit, for thou hast redeemed me, O Lord, thou God of Truth. Come, Lord Jesu, come quickly.

who mourn in secret for the Publick Calamities, &c.

PSALM 74.

O God, wherefore art thou absent from us so long : why is thy wrath so hot against the sheep of thy pasture ?

Pfal. 79. O God, the Heathen are come into thine inheritance : thy holy temple have they defiled, and made Jerusalem an heap of stones, &c.

Pfal. 80. Hear, O thou shepherd of Israel : thou that leadeſt Joseph like a sheep : shew thy self also, thou that sittest upon the Cherubim, &c.

A Prayer to be used in these times of Calamity.

O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth, I desire humbly to confess before thee, both on my own behalf, and that of this Nation, that these many years of calamity we have groaned under, are but the just (yea, mild) returns of those those many more years of our provocations against thee, and that thy present wrath is but the due punishment of thy abused mercy. O Lord, thou hast formerly abounded to us in blessings above all the people of the earth. Thy Candle shined upon our heads, and we delighted our selves in thy great goodness; Peace was within our walls, and Plenteousness within our Palaces; there was no decay, no leading into Captivity, and no complaining in our streets: but we turned this Grace into Wantonness, we abused our Peace to Security, our Plenty to Riot and Luxury, and made those good things which should have endeared our hearts to thee, the occasion of estranging them from thee. Nay, O Lord, thou gavest us yet more precious mercies, thou wer't pleased thy self to pitch thy Tabernacle with us, to establish a pure and glorious Church among us, and give us thy word to be a lamp unto our feet, and a light unto our paths. But, O Lord, we have made no other use of that light, than to conduct us to the Chambers of death; we have dealt proudly, and not hearkened to thy Commandments, and by rebelling against the light, have purchased to our selves so much the heavier portion in the outer darkness. And now, O Lord, had the overflowings of thy vengeance been answerable to that of our sin, we had long since been swept away with a swift destruction; and there had been none of us

us alive at this day, to implore thy mercy. But thou art a gracious God, slow to anger, and hast proceeded with us with much patience and long-suffering, thou hast sent thy Judgments to awaken us to repentance, and hast also allowed us space for it : But alas ! we have perverted this mercy of thine beyond all the former ; we return not to him that smiteth us, neither do we seek the Lord ; we are slidden back by a perpetual back-sliding ; no man repenteth him of his wickedness, or faith, What have I done ? 'Tis true, indeed, we fear the rod, (we dread every suffering, so that we are ready to buy it off with the foulest sin) but we fear not him that hath appointed it, but by a wretched obstinacy harden our necks against thee, and refuse to return. And now, O GOD, what balm is there in Gilead that can cure us, who when thou would'st heal us, will not be healed ? We know thou hast pronounced, that there is no peace to the wicked ; and how shall we then pray for peace, that still retain our wickedness ? This, this, O Lord, is our forest disease ; O give us Medicines to heal this sickness : heal our Souls, and then we know thou canst soon heal our Land. Lord, thou hast long spoken by thy Word to our ears, by thy Judgments even to all our senses ; but unless thou speak by thy Spirit to our hearts, all other calls will still be ineffectual. O send out this voice, and that a mighty voice, such as may awake us out of this Lethargy : Thou that didst call

LAZARUS

Lazarus out of the grave, O be pleased to call us who are dead, yea, putrified in trespasses and sins, and make us to awake to righteousness. And though, O Lord, our frequent resistances, even of those inward calls, have justly provoked thee to give us up to the lust of our own heart; yet, O thou boundless Ocean of mercy, who art good not only beyond what we can deserve, but what we can wish, do not withdraw the influence of thy grace, and take not thy holy spirit from us. Thou wer't found of those that sought thee not: O let that act of mercy be repeated to us who are so desperately, yet so insensibly sick, that we cannot so much as look after the Physician; and by how much our case is the more dangerous, so much the more sovereign Remedies do thou apply. Lord, help us, and consider not so much our unworthiness of thy aid, as our irremediable ruine if we want it: save, Lord, or we perish eternally. To this end dispense to us in our temporal interest what thou see'st may best secure our spiritual; if a greater degree of outward misery will tend to the curing our inward, Lord, spare not thy Rod, but strike yet more sharply. Cast out this Devil, though with never-so-much foaming and tearing. But if thou see'st that some return of mercy may be most likely to melt us, O be pleased so far to condescend to our wretchedness, as to afford us that; and, whether by thy sharper or thy gentler gentler methods, bring us home to thy self. And then, O Lord, we know thy hand is not shortned, that it cannot save : when thou hast delivered us from our sins, thou canst and wilt deliver us from our troubles. O shew us thy mercy, and grant us thy salvation, that being redeemed both in our bodies and spirits, we may glorifie thee in both, in a chearful obedience, and praise the Name of our God, that hath dealt wonderfully with us, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

A Prayer for this Church.

O Thou great God of Recompences, who turnest a fruitful Land into barrenness, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein ; thou hast most justly executed that fatal Sentence on this Church, which having once been the perfection of Beauty, the joy of the whole Earth, is now become a scorn and derision to all that are round about her. O Lord, what could have been done to thy Vineyard that thou hast not done in it ? And since it hath brought forth nothing but wild grapes, it is perfectly just with thee to take away the hedge thereof, and let it be eaten up. But, O Lord, though our iniquities testify against us, yet do thou it for thy Name's sake ; for our backslidings are many, we have sinned against thee. O the hope of Israel, the Saviour thereof in time of trouble, why shouldst thou thou be as a stranger in the Land, as a way-faring Man that turneth aside to tarry for a night? Why shouldst thou be as a man astonied? as a mighty man that cannot save? Yet thou, O Lord, art in the midst of us, and we are called by thy name, leave us not; deprive us of what outward enjoyment thou pleasest, take from us the opportunities of our luxury, and it may be a mercy; but O take not from us the means of our Reformation, for that is the most direful expression of thy wrath. And though we have hated the light, because our deeds were evil; yet, O Lord, do not, by withdrawing it, condemn us to walk on still in darkness; but let it continue to shine till it hath guided our feet into the way of peace. O Lord, arise, stir up thy strength, and come and help, and deliver not the Soul of thy Turtle Dove [This Disconsolate Church] unto the multitude of the Enemy, but help her, O God, and that right early. But if, O Lord, our Rebellions have so provoked thee, that the Ark must wander in the Wilderness till all this murmuring Generation be consumed, yet let that not perish with us, but bring it at last into a Canaan, and let our more innocent Posterity see that which in thy judgment thou deniest to us. In the mean time let us not cease to bewail that desolation our sins have brought, to think upon the stones of Sion, and pity to see her in the dust, nor ever be ashamed or afraid to own her in her lowest and most persecuted

Condition, but esteem the reproach of Christ greater riches than the Treasures of Egypt; and so approve our Constancy to this our afflicted Mother, that her blessed Lord and Head may own us with mercy, when he shall come in the glory of thee his Father with the holy Angels. Grant this, merciful Lord, for the same Jesus Christ his sake.

A Prayer for the Peace of the Church.

Lord Jesus Christ, which of thine Almighty mightiness madest all creatures both visible and invisible, which of thy Godly wisdom governest and settest all things in most godly order, which of thine unspeakable goodness keepest, defendest and furtherest all things, which of thy deep mercy restorest the decayed; renewest the fallen, raisest the dead; vouchsafe, we pray thee, at last to cast down thy countenance upon thy well-beloved Spouse the Church, but let it be that amiable and merciful countenance wherewith thou pacifiest all things in Heaven, in Earth, and whatsoever is above Heaven and under the Earth: vouchsafe to cast upon us those tender and pitiful eyes with which thou didst once behold Peter that great Shepherd of thy Church, and forthwith he remembered himself and repented, with which eyes thou once didst view the scattered Multitude, and wer't moved with compassion that for lack of

of a good Shepherd they wandred as sheep disperfed and strayed afunder. Thou feest (O good Shepherd) what fundry fort of Wolves have broken into thy sheep coats ; fo that if it were poffible the very perfect perfons fhould be brought into error : Thou feest with what Winds, with what Waves, with what Storms thy filly Ship is tofs'd, the Ship wherein thy little Flock is in peril to be drowned. And what is now left, but that it utterly fink and we all perifh? for this tempeft and ftorm we may thank our own wickednefs and finful living, we difcern it well and confefs it ; we difcern thy Righteoufnefs, and we bewail our Unrighteoufnefs, but we appeal to thy mercy which furmounteth all thy works ; we have now fuffered much punifhment, being fcourged with fo many Wars, confumed with fuch loffes of Goods, fhaken with fo many Floods, and yet appears there no where any Haven or Port unto us : being thus tired and forlorn among fo ftrange evils, but ftill every day more grievous punifhments and more feem to hang over our heads ; we complain not of thy fharpnefs, moft tender Saviour, but we difcern here alfo thy mercy, forasmuch as much grievoufer plagues we have deferved. But O moft merciful Jesus, we befeech thee that thou wilt not confider nor weigh what is due for our defervings ; but rather what becometh thy mercy, without which neither the Angels in Heaven can stand sure before thee, much less we silly vessels of clay. Have mercy on us, O Redeemer, which art easie to be intreated, not that we be worthy of thy mercy, but give thou this glory unto thine own Name. Suffer not those which either have not known thee, or do envy thy glory, continually to triumph over us, and say, where is their God? where is their Redeemer? where is their Saviour? where is their Bridegroom that they thus boast on? These opprobrious words redound unto thee, O Lord, while by our evils men weigh and esteem thy goodness: they think we be forsaken, whom they see not amended. Once when thou slept'st in the Ship, and a Tempest suddenly arising, threatned death to all in the Ship, thou awokest at the out-cry of a few Disciples, and straitway at thine almighty word the Waters couched, the Winds fell, the Storm was suddenly turned into a great Calm; the dumb waters knew their Maker's voice. Now in this far greater Tempest, wherein not a few mens bodies be in danger, but innumerable Souls, we beseech thee at the cry of thy holy Church which is in danger of drowning, that thou wilt awake. So many thousands of men do cry Lord save us, we perish, the Tempest is past man's power; it is thy word that must do the deed; Lord Jesu, only say thou with a word of thy mouth, Cease, O Tempest, and forthwith shall the desired Calm appear appear. Thou wouldest have spared so many thousands of most wicked men, if in the City of Sodom had been found but ten good Men. Now here be so many thousands of Men which love the glory of thy Name, which sigh for the beauty of thy house, and wilt thou not at these Mens prayers let go thine Anger, and remember thine accustomed and old mercies? Shalt thou not with thy heavenly policy turn our folly into thy glory? Shalt thou not turn the wicked mens evils into thy Church's good? For thy mercy is wont then most of all to succour, when the thing is with us past Remedy, and neither the might nor wisdom of men can help it. Thou alone bringest things that be never so out of order into order again, which art the only author and maintainer of Peace. Thou framedst that old Confusion, wherein without order, without fashion, confusedly lay the discordant seeds of things, and with a wonderful order the things of that nature fought together, thou didst allay and knit in a perpetual band. But how much greater Confusion is this, where is no Charity, no Fidelity, no bonds of Love, no Reverence neither of Laws, nor yet of Rulers, no agreement of Opinions, but as it were in a misordered Quire, every man singeth a contrary note! Among the heavenly Planets is no diffesion, the Elements keep their place, every one do the office whereunto they be appointed: And wilt thou suffer thy Spouse, for whose sake all things were made, thus by continual discords to perish? Shalt thou suffer the wicked Spirits which be authors and workers of discord to bear such a swing in thy Kingdom unchecked? Shalt thou suffer the strong Captain of mischief, whom thou once overthrewest, again to invade the Tents, and to spoil thy Soldiers? When thou wert here a man conversant among men, at thy voice fled the Devils. Send forth, we beseech thee, O Lord, thy Spirit, which may drive away out of the breasts of all them that profess thy Name, the wicked Spirits, masters of riot, of covetousness, of vain-glory, of carnal lust, of mischief and discord. Create in us, O our God and King, a clean heart, and renew thy holy Spirit in our breasts, pluck not from us thy Holy Ghost. Render unto us the joy of thy saving health, and with thy principal Spirit, strengthen thy Spouse and the Herd-men thereof. By this Spirit thou reconciledst the earthly to the heavenly: By this thou didest frame and reduce so many Tongues, so many Nations, so many fundry sorts of Men into one body of a Church, which body by the same spirit is knit to thee their Head. This spirit if thou wilt vouchsafe to renew in all mens hearts, then shall all the foreign miseries cease, or if they cease not, they shall turn to the profit and avail of them which love thee. Stay this confusion, set in order this horrible Chaos,

gels

(O

(O Lord Jesus) let thy spirit stretch out itself upon these waters of evil wandring Opinions. And because thy Spirit, which according to thy Prophets saying, contriveth all things, hath also the Science of speaking; make, that like as unto all them which be of thy House is one Light, one Baptism, one God, one Hope, one Spirit, so they may also have one Voice, one Note, one Song, professing one Catholick truth. When thou didst mount up to Heaven triumphantly, thou threwest out from above thy precious things, thou gavest gifts among men, thou dealtest fundry rewards of thy Spirit. Renew again from above thy old bountifulness, give that thing to thy Church, now fainting and growing downward, that thou gavest unto her shooting up, at her first beginning. Give unto Princes and Rulers the grace so to stand in awe of thee, that they may so guide the Common-weal, as they should shortly render account unto thee, that art the King of Kings. Give wisdom to be always assistant unto them, that whatsoever is best to be done, they may espie it in their minds, and pursue the same in their doings. Give to the Bishops the gift of Prophecy, that they may declare and intrpret holy Scripture, not of their own brain, but of thine inspiring. Give them the threefold Charity which thou once demandedst of Peter, what time thou didst betake unto him the charge of thy Sheep. Give to the Priests the love of Soberness and of Chastity. Give to thy People a good will to follow thy Commandments, and a readiness to obey such persons as thou hast appointed over them. So shall it come to pass, if through thy gift thy Princes shall command that thou requirest, if thy Pastors and Herdmen shall teach the same, and thy People obey them both, that the old dignity and tranquility of the Church shall return again with a goodly order unto the glory of thy Name. Thou sparedst the Ninevites appointed to be destroyed, as soon as they converted to Repentance, and wilt thou despise thy House falling down at thy feet, which instead of sackcloth hath sighs, and instead of ashes tears? Thou promisedst forgiveness to such as turn unto thee, but this self thing is thy Gift, a man to turn with his whole heart unto thee, to the intent all our goodness should redound unto thy glory. Thou art the Maker, repair the work that thou hast fashioned. Thou art the Redeemer, save that thou hast bought. Thou art the Saviour, suffer not them to perish which do hang on thee. Thou art the Lord and owner, challenge thy possession. Thou art the Head, help thy members. Thou art the King, give us a reverence of thy Laws. Thou art the Prince of Peace, breath upon us brotherly love. Thou art the God, have pity on thy humble beseechers, be thou according to Paul's saying, all things in all men, to the intent intent the whole Quire of thy Church with agreeing minds and consonant voices for mercy obtained at thy hands, may give thanks to the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; which after the most perfect example of concord be distinguished in property of Persons, and one in nature: to whom be praise and glory eternally. Amen.

*A Prayer for the Queen's Majesty, out of the

GOD the unspeakable Authoz of the world, Creatoz of men, Governoz of Empires, and establisher of all Kingdoms, who out of the loins of our Father Abraham didst chuse a King that became the Saviour of all Kings and Nations of the earth, Bless, we beseech thee, thy faithful Servant, and our dread Soberaign Lady, Queen Anne, with the richest blessings of thy Grace. Establish her in the Throne of her Kingdom by thy mighty aid and protection; Visit her as thou didst Moses in the Bush, Joshua in the Battle, Gideon in the field, and Samuel in the Temple. Let the Dew of thine abundant mercies fall upon her head, and give her the blessing of David and Solomon. Be unto her an Helmet of Salvation against the face of her enemies, and a strong Tower of defence in the time of adversity. Let her Reign be prosperous, and her days many. Let peace, and love, and holiness; let justice, and truth, and all Christian vertues flourish in her time. Let her people serve her with honour and obedience: and let her so duly serve thee here on earth, that she may hereafter everlastingly reign with thee in Heaven, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
