JOHN III. 7.

" YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN."

1. If any doctrines within the whole compals of Chriftianity may be properly termed fundamental, they are doubtlefs thefe two, the doctrine of Juftifiaction, and that of the New-Birth: the former relating to that great work which God does for us, in forgiving our fins: the latter, to the great work, which God does in us, in renewing our fallen nature. In order of time, neither of thefe is before the other; in the moment we are juftified by the grace of God, through the redemption that is in Jefus, we are alfo born of the Spirit: but in order of thinking, as it is termed, Juftification precedes the New-Birth. We first conceive his wrath to be turned away, and then his Spirit to work in our hearts.

2. How great importance then muft it be of to every child of man, thoroughly to understand these fundamental doctrines! From a full conviction of this, many excellent men have written very largely concerning Justification, explaining every point relating thereto, and opening the Scriptures, which treat upon it. Many likewise have written on the New-Birth: and fome of them largely enough; but yet not fo clearly as might have been defired; nor to deeply and accurately; having there given a dark, abstrute account of it, or a flight and superficial one. Therefore, a full, and at the fame time, a clear account of the New-Birth, feems to be wanting still; such as may enable us to give a fatisfactory anfwer to thefe three queftions. Firft, Why muft we be born again? What is the foundation of this doctrine of the New-Birth? Secondly, How muft we be born again? What is the nature of the New-Birth? And, Thirdly, Wherefore muft we be born again? To what end is it neceffary? Thefe queftions, by the affiftance of God, I shall briefly and plainly auswer, and then subjoin a few inferences which will naturally follow.

I. I. And, First, Why must we be born again? What is the foundation of this doctrine ? The foundation of it lies nearly as deep as the creation of the world : in the fcriptural account whereof we read,* And GoD, the three-One God, faid, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him: not barely in his natural image, a picture of his immortality, a spiritual being, endued with underftanding, freedom of will, and various affections: nor merely in his political image, the governor of this lower world, having dominion over the fiftes of the fea, and over all the earth ; but chiefly in his moral image, which according to the Apostle, is + righteousnels and true holinefs. In this image of God was man God is love: accordingly man at his creation made. was full of love : which was the fole principle of all his tempers, thoughts, words, and actions. God is full of justice, mercy, and truth: fo was man as he came from the hands of his Creator. God is fpotlefs purity: and fo was man in the beginning, pure from every finful blot. Otherwife God could not have pronounced bim, as well as the other works of his hands, ‡ very good. This he could have been, had he not been pure from fin, and filled with righteousness and true holiness. For there is no medium, if we suppose an intelligent creature, not to love God, not to be righteous and holy, we neceffarily suppose him not to be good at all : much lefs to be very good.

2. But though man was made in the image of God, yet he was not made immutable. This would have been inconfistent with that state of trial, in which God was pleafed to place him. He was therefore created able to fland, yet liable to fall. And this God himfelf apprifed him of, and gave him a folemn warning against it. Neverthelefs man did not abide in bonour : he fell from his high eftate. He ate of the tree whereof the Lord had commanded him, Thou shalt not eat thereof. By this wilful act of difobedience to his Creator, this flat rebellion against his Sovereign, he openly declared, that he would no longer have God to rule over him: that he would be governed by his own will, and not the will of him that created him; and that he would not feek his happinefs in God, but in the world, in the works of his hands. Now God had told him before, In the day that thou-eatest of that fruit, thou falt furely die. And the word of the Lord cannot be broken. Accordingly in that day he did die : he died to God, the most dreadful of all deaths. He lost the life of God: he was feparated from him, in union with whom his fpiritual life confifted. The body dies when it is feparated from the foul : the foul when it is separated from God. But this separation from God Adam sustained in the day, the hour he ate of the forbidden fruit. And of this he gave immediate proof; prefently thewing by his behaviour, that the love of God was extinguished in his foul, which was now alienated from the life of God. Instead of this, he was now under the power of fervile fear, fo that he fled from the prefence of the Lord. Yea, to little did heretain even of the knowledge of him, who filleth heaven and earth, that he endeavoured to ‡ hide himfelf from the Lord God, among the trees of the garden. So had he loft both the knowledge and the love of God, without which the image of God cannot fubfift. Of this therefore he was deprived at the fame time, and became unholy as well as unhappy. In the room of this, he funk into pride and felf-will, the very image of the devil, and into fenfual appetites and defires, the image of the beafts that perifh.

3. If it be faid, "Nay, but that threatning, In the day that thou cateft thereof thou fhalt furely die, refers to temporal death and that alone, to the death of the body only; the answer is plain; to affirm this, is flatly and palpably to make God a liar: to aver that the God of truth positively affirmed a thing contrary to truth. For it is evident, Adam did not die in this fense, in the day that he ate thereof. He lived in the fense opposite to his death, above nine hundred years after. So that this cannot possibly be understood of the death of the body, without impeaching the veracity of God. It must therefore be understood of fpiritual death, the loss of the life and image of God.

4. And in Adam all died, all human kind, all the children of men who were then in Adam's loins. The natural confequence of this is, that every one defcended from him, comes into the world fpiritually dead, dead to God, wholly deal in fin : entirely void of the life of God, void of the image of God, of all that righteoufnefs and holinefs, wherein Adam was created. Inftead of this, every man born into the world, now bears the image of the devil, in pride and felfwill; the image of the beaft, in fenfual appetites and This then is the foundation of the Newdefires. Birth, the entire corruption of our nature. Hence every one that is born of a woman, must be born of the Spirit of God. + 1

II. 1. But how must a man be born again? What is the nature of the New Birth? This is the fecond question. And a question it is, of the highest moment that can be conceived. We ought not therefore in fo weighty a concern, to be content with a slight enquiry; but to examine it with all possible care, and to ponder it in our hearts, till we fully understand this important point, and clearly fee, how we are to be born again.

2. Not that we are to expect any minute, philosophical account of the manner how this is done. Our Lord fufficiently guards us against any fuch expectation, by the words immediately following the text; wherein he reminds Nicodemus of as an indifputable a fact, as any in the whole compais of nature : which notwithstanding, the wifest man under the fun is not able fully to explain. The wind bloweth where it listeth, not by any power or wifdom, and thou hearest the found thereof : thou art absolutely affured, beyond all doubt, that it doth blow. But they canft not tell whence it cometh, neither whither it goeth. The precise manner how it begins and ends, rifes and falls, no man can So is every one that is born of the Spirit. Thou tell. mayeft be as abfolutely affured of the fact, as of the blowing of the wind : but the precife manner how it is done, how the Holy Spirit works this in the foul, neither thou nor the wifeft of the children of men is able to explain.

3. However, it fuffices for every rational and chriftian purpofe, that without defcending into curious, critical enquiries, we can give a plain, fcriptural account of the nature of the New-Birth. This will fatisfy every reafonable man who defires only the fakvation of his foul. The expression, being born again, was not first used by our Lord in the conversation with Nicodemus. It was well known before that time, and was in common use among the Jews, when our Saviour appeared among them. When an adult heathen was convinced, that the Jewish religion was of God, and defired to join therein, it was the cuftom to baptize him first, before he was admitted to And when he was baptized, he was circumcinon. faid to be born again : by which they meant, that he who was before a child of the devil, was now adopted into the family of God, and accounted one of his children. This expression, therefore, which Nicodemus, being a teacher in lfrael, ought to have understood well, our Lord uses in conversing with him : only in a stronger sense than he was accustomed to. And this might be the reason of his asking, How can these things bee They cannot be literally. A man cannot enter a fecond time into his mother's womb and be born. But they may spiritually. A man may be born from above, born of God, born of the Spirit: in a manner which bears a very near analogy to the natural birth.

4. Before a child is born into the world, he has eyes, but fees not: he has ears, but does not hear. He has a very imperfect use of any other sense. He has no knowledge of any of the things of the world, or any natural understanding. To that manner of existence which he then has, we do not even give the name of life. It is then only when a man is born, that we fay he begins to live. For as foon as he is born, he begins to fee the light, and the various objects with which he is encompassed. His ears are then opened, and he hears the founds which fucceffively firike upon them. At the fame time, all the other organs of fenfe begin to be exercifed upon their proper objects. He likewife breathes and lives in a manner wholly different to what he did before. How exactly doth the parallel hold, in all thefe inftances ! While a man is in a mere natural state, before he is born of God, he has, in a fpiritual fenfe, eyes and fees not; a thick impenetrable veil lies upon them. He has ears but hears not, he is utterly deaf to what he is most of all concerned to hear. His other spiritual fenfes are all locked up; he is in the fame condition as if he had them not. Hence he has no knowledge of God, no intercourfe with him; he is not at all acquainted with him. He has no true knowledge of the things of God, either of fpiritual or eternal things. Therefore, though he is a living man, he is a dead christian. But as soon as he is born again of God, there is a total change in all thefe particulars. The eyes of his understanding are opened, (fuch is the language of the great Apostle; ) and He who of old commanded light to shine out of darkness, shining on bis heart, he fees the light of the glory of God, his glorious love, in the face of Jefus Chrift. His ears being opened, he is now capable of hearing the inward voice of God, faying, Be of good cheer, thy fins are forgiven thee : go and fin no more. This is the purport of what God speaks to his heart: although perhaps not in these very words. He is now ready to hear whatfoever he that teacheth man knowledge is pleafed from time to time to reveal to him. He "feels in his heart (to use the language of our Church) the mighty working of the Spirit of God:" not in a grofs, carnal fenfe, as the men of the world stupidly and wilfully misunderstand the expression: though they have been told again and again, we mean thereby neither more nor lefs than this-he feels, is inwardly fenfible of the graces, which the Spirit of God works in his heart. He feels, he is confcious of a peace which paffeth all under flanding. He many times feels fuch a joy in God, as is un/peakable and full of glory. He feels the love of God fled abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost which is given unte bim. And all his fpiritual fenfes are then exercifed to difcern spiritual good and evil. By the use of these he is daily increasing in the knowledge of God, of Jefus Chrift whom he hath fent, and of all things pertaining to his inward kingdom. And now he may be properly faid to live: God having quickened him by his Spirit, he is alive to God through Jefus Chrit. He lives a life which the world knoweth not of, a life which is bid with Chrift in God. God is continually breathing, as it were, upon his foul, and his foul is breathing unto God. Grace is defcending into his heart, and prayer and praise ascending to heaven. And by this intercourfe between God and man, this fellowship with the Father and Son, as by a kind of spiritual respiration, the life of God in the foul is fuftained : and the child of God grows up, till he comes to the full measure of the stature of Christ.

5. From hence it manifeftly appears, what is the mature of the New-Birth. It is that great change which God works in the foul, when he brings it into life; when he raifes it from the death of fin, to the life of righteoufnefs. It is the change wrought in the whole foul by the Almighty Spirit of God, when it is erented anew in Christ Jefus, when it is renewed after the image of God, in righteoufnefs and true holinefs; when the love of the world is changed into the love of God, pride into humility, paffion into meeknefs; hatred, envy, malice, into a fincere, tender, difinterefted love for all mankind. In a word, it is that change whereby the earthly, fenfual, devilifb mind, is turned into the mind which was in Christ Jefus. This is the nature of the New-Birth. "So is every one that is born of the Spirit."

III. 1. It is not difficult for any who has confidered these things, to see the necessity of the New-Birth, and to answer the third question, wherefore, to what end is it neceffary that we fhould be born again? It is very eafily difcerned, that this is neceffary, first, in order to holinefs. For what is holinefs, according to the oracles of God? Not a bare external religion, a round of outward duties, how many foever performed. No: gospel-holiness is no less than the image of God stamped upon the heart. It is no other than the whole mind that was in Christ Jesus. It confists of all heavenly affections and tempers mingled toge-It implies fuch a continual, thankful ther in one. love, to Him who hath not with held from us his Son, his only Son, as makes it natural, and in a manner neceffary to us, to love every child of man: as fills us with bowels of mercies, kindnefs, gentlenefs, long-fuffering. It is fuch a love of God as teaches us to be blamelefs in all manner of converfation; as enables us to prefent our fouls and bodies, all we are, and all we have, all our thoughts, words, and actions, a continual facrifice to God, acceptable through Chrift Jefus. Now this holinefs can have no existence, till we are renewed in the fpirit of our mind. It cannot commence in the foul, till that change be wrought, till by the power of the Highest overshadowing us we are brought from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God; that is, till we are born again : which therefore is abfolutely necessary in order to holinefs. 2. But without bolinefs no man fball fee the Lord, fhall fee the face of God in glory. Of confequence, the New-Birth is abfolutely neceffary, in order to falvation. Men may indeed flatter themfelves (fo defperately wicked and fo deceitful is the heart of man!) that they may live in their fins till they come to the last gasp, and yet afterwards live with God. And thousands do really believe that they have found a broad way which leadeth not to destruction. What danger, fay they, can a woman be in, that is fo harmlefs and fo virtuous? What fear is there that fo honeft a man, one of fuch ftrict morality, fhould mifs of heaven? Especially, if over and above all this, they constantly attend on church and facrament. One of these will alk with all affurance, " What, shall not I do as well as my neighbour ?" Yes, as we'l as your unholy neighbours : as well as your neighbours that die in their fins. For you will all drop into the pit together into the nethermost hell. You will all lie together in the lake of fire, the lake of fire burning with brimftone. Then, at length you will fee (but God grant you may fee it before !) the neceffity of holinefs, in order to glory: and confequently, of the New-Birth, fince none can be holy, except he be born again.

3. For the fame reafon, except he be born again, none can be happy even in this world. For it is not poffible, in the nature of things, that a man should be happy, who is not holy. Even the poor ungodly poet could tell us : Nemo malus felix : No wicked man ţ is happy. The reafon is plain. All unholy tempers are uneafy tempers. Not only malice, hatred, envy, jealoufy, revenge, create a prefent hell in the breaft ; but even the fofter paffions, if not kept within due bounds, give a thousand times more pain than pleafure. Even hope, when deferred (and how often must this be the cafe !) maketh the heart fick. And every defire, which is not according to the will of God, is liable to pierce us through with many forrows. And all thole general fources of fin, pride, felf-will, and idolatry, are in the fame proportion as they prevail, general fources of mifery. Therefore as long as thefe reign in any foul, happinels has no place there. But they must reign, till the bent of our nature is changed, that is, till we are born again. Confequently, the New-Birth is abfolutely neceffary in order to happinels in this world, as well as the world to come.

IV. I proposed, in the last place, to subjoin a few inferences, which naturally follow from the preceding Observations.

1. And, first, It follows that baptifm is not the New Birth : they are not one and the fame thing. Many indeed feem to imagine they are just the fame: at leaft, they speak as if they thought fo : but I do not know, that this opinion is publicly avowed by any denomination of Chriftians whatever. Certainly it is not by any within thefe kingdoms, whether of the Eftablished Church, or those who diffent from it. The judgment of the latter is clearly declared in their Large Catechifm; "What are the parts of a facrament? A. The parts of a facrament are two; the one, an outward and fenfible fign; the other, an inward and fpiritual grace thereby fignified. Q. What is baptilm? A. Baptilin is a facrament, wherein Chrift hath ordained the washing with water, to be a fign and feal of regeneration by the Spirit." Here it is manifest, baptifm, the fign, is fpoken of as diffinct from regeneration, the thing fignified.

In the Church Catechifm likewife, the judgment of our Church is declared with the utmoft clearnets. "What meaneft thou by this word Sacrament? I mean an outward and visible fign of an inward and spiritual grace. What is the outward part, or form in baptism? Water, wherein the person is baptized, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoit. What is the inward part, or thing fignified? A death unto fin, and a new birth unto righteousnels." Nothing therefore is plainer, than that, according to the Church of England, baptifm is not the New-Birth.

But indeed the reason of the thing is so clear and evident, as not to need any other authority. For what can be more plain, than that the one is an external, the other an internal work? That the one is a visible, the other an invisible thing, and therefore wholly different from each other; the one being an act of man, purifying the body; the other a change wrought by God in the foul. So that the former is just as diffinguished from the latter, as the foul from the body, or water from the Holy Ghoft.

2. A fecond inference which we may draw from what has been observed, is, that the New-birth is not the fame thing with fanctification. This is indeed taken for granted by many, particularly by an eminent writer, in his late Treatile on "The Nature and Grounds of Christian Regeneration." Τo wave feveral other weighty objections, which might be made to that tract, this is a palpable one : it all along speaks of regeneration as a progreilive work, carried on in the foul by flow degrees, from the time of our first turning to God. This is undeniably true of fanctification : but of regeneration, the New-Birth, it is not true. This is a part of fanctification, not the whole; it is the gate of it, the entrance into it. When we are born again, then our fanctification, our inward and outward holinels, begins. And henceforward we are gradually to grow up in Him, who is our Head. This expression of the Apostle admirably illustrates the difference between one and the other, and farther points out the exact analogy there is between natural and fpiritual things. A child is born of a woman in a moment, or at leaft, in a very fhort time. Afterwards he gradually and flowly grows, till he attain to the stature of a man. In like manner, a child is born of God in a fhort time, if not in a moment. But it is by flow degrees that he afterwards grows up to the measure of the stature of Chrift. The fame relation therefore, which there is between curnatural birth and growth, there is between our New-Birth and our fanetification.

3. One point more we may learn from the preceding Obfervations. But it is a point of fo great importance, as may excule the confidering it the more carefully, and profecuting it at fome length. What must one who loves the fouls of men, and is grieved that any of them thould perifh, fay to one whom he fees living in fabbath-breaking, drunkennefs, or any other wilful fin ? What can he fay, if the foregoing Obfervations are true; but you muft be born again. "Ne," fays a zealous man, " that cannot be. How simyou talk fo uncharitably to the man ? Has he not been baptized already? He cannot be born again now." Can he not be born again? Do you allirm this? Then he cannot be faved. Though he be as old as Nicodemus was, yet except he be born again, he cadut fee the kingdom of God. Therefore in faying, "he cannot be born again," you, in effect, deliver him over to damnation. And where lies the uncharitablenels now? On my fide, or on yours? I fay he may be born again, and fo become an heir of falvation. You fay, " he cannot be bern again." And if so, he must inevitably periffi. So you utterly block up his way to inivation, and fend him to hell out of mere charity !

But perhaps the finner himfelf, to whom in real charity we fay, "You must be born again," has been taught to fay, "I defy your new doctrine; I need not be born again. I was born again, when I was baptized. What! would you have me deny my baptifm?" I answer, first, There is nothing under heaven which can excuse a lie. Otherwise I should fay to an open finner, if you have been baptized, do not own it. For how highly does this aggravate your guilt! How will it increase your damnation? Were you devoted to God at eight days old, and have you been all these years devoting yourfelf to the devil? Were you even, before you had the use of reafon, confectated to God the Father. the Son, and the Holy Ghoft ? And have you, ever fince you had the use of it, been flying in the face of God, and confectating yourfelf to Satan ? Does the abominaconfectating yourielf to Satan? Does the abomina-tion of defolation, the love of the world, pride, an-ger, luft, foolifh defire, and a whole train of evil affections, ftand where it ought not? Have you fet up all thefe accurfed things in that foul which was once a temple of the Holy Gboft? Set apart for a ka-bitation of God through the Spirit? Yea, folemnly given up to him? And do you glory in this, that you once belonged to God? O be alhamed! Blufh! Hide yourfelf in the earth! Never boaft more of what ought to fill you with confution, to make you afha-med/before God and man! I anfwer, fecondly, you have already denied your baptifm: and that in the moft effectual manner. You have denied it a thou-fand and a thou fand times; and you do ftill day by fand and a thoufand times; and you do ftill day by day. For in your baptifm, you renounced the devil and all his works. Whenever, therefore, you give place to him again, whenever you do the works of the devil, then you deny your baptifm. Therefore you deny it by every willul fin: by every act of uncleannefs, drunkennefs, or revenge; by every obfcene or profane word; by every oath that comes out of your mouth. Every time you profane the day of the Lord, you thereby deny your baptifm; yea, every time you do any thing to another, which you would not he fhould do to you." I anfwer, thirdly, Be you baptized or unbaptized, you muft be born again. Otherwife it is not pollible you fhould be inwardly holy: and without inward as well as outward holinefs, you cannot be happy even in this world : much lefs in the world to come. Do you fay, "Nay, but I do no harm to any man: I am honeft and just in all my dealings; I do not curfe ortake the Lor d's name in vain; I do not profane the Lord's-day: I am no drunkard: I do not flander my neighbour, nor live in wilful fin." If this be fo, it were much to be wished that all men went as far as you do. But you muft go farther yet, or you cannot be faved : ftill you must be born again. Do you add, "I do go farther yet; for I not only do no harm. but do all the good I can." I doubt that fact; I fear you have had a thousand opportunities of doing good, which you have fuffered to pafs by unimproved, and for which you are accountable to God. But if you had improved them all, if you really had done all the good you poflibly could to all men, yet this does not at all alter the cafe : still you must be born Without this, nothing will do any good to again. your poor, finful, polluted foul. "Nay, but I confantly attend all the ordinances of God : I keep to my Church and facrament." It is well you do. But all this will not keep you from hell, except you be born again. Go to Church twice a day, go to the Lord's table every week, fay ever fo many prayers in private, read ever fo many good books, you still must be born again : none of these things will stand in the place of the New-Birth : no, nor any thing under heaven. Let this therefore, if you have not already experienced this inward work of God, be your continual prayer, "Lord, add this to all thy bleffings, let me be born again. Deny whatever thou pleafeft, but deny not this, let me be born from above. Take away whatfoever feemeth thee good, reputation, fortune, friends, health. Only give me this, to be born of the Spirit ! To be received among the children of God. Let me be born, not of corruptible feed, but incorruptible, by the word of God which liveto and abideth for ever. And then let me daily grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jefus Chrift !"
