THE # PREFACE.

THE GOOD ARMELLE has been heard of far and wide. Her Life has been written at large, containing several hundred pages, translated into various languages, and published almost in all parts of Europe, by persons of various persuasions. Her deep, solid, unaffected Piety, has recommended her to those of all denominations, who regarded not mere opinions, but the genuine work of God; Righteousness, Peace, and Joy in the Holy Ghost.

2. But it is impossible to give so full an account of the good young Woman, whose station in life was the same for some years. She had no such director of her conscience, who was informed (like those in the Roman Church) of the minutest particulars, relating either to her internal or external walking with God. And she wrote no circumstantial account of herself. We have only some hints occasionally written, either for her own private use, or the satisfaction of her friends. And the greatest part even of her letters are lost: particularly of those which she took the most pains in writing. So that what follows is little more than fragments.

66 But though they're little, they are golden fands,"

In several respects not inferior to any thing in the life of Armelle Nicholas: in others greatly superior thereto. For first, all here is genuine: which I fear is not the case in the account given us of Armelle. For words are there put into her mouth, which I think she could not A 2 possibly possibly utter. For instance. She is made to say, "I had always such a sense of my sins, that I never sell pride in my life." Could any one born of a woman say this? Is it not an embellishment added by her historian?

3. Secondly, All bere is strong, sterling sense, strictly agreeable to sound reason. Here are no extravagant slights, no mystic reveries, no unscriptural enthusiasm. The sentiments are all just and noble; the result of a fine natural understanding, cultivated by conversation, thinking, reading, and true christian experience. At the same time they show an heart as well improved as the understanding; truly devoted to God, and filled in a very uncommon degree, with the entire struct of his Spirit.

4. Thirdly, This strong genuine sense is expressed in such a stile, as none evould expect from a young servant maid: a stile simple and artless in the highest degree, but likewise clear, lively, proper: every phrase, every word being so well chosen, yea and so well placed, that it is not easy to mend it. And such an inexpressible sweetness runs through the whole, as Art would in wain firive to imitate.

So JANE COOPER wrote, and spoke, and lived! Thou shat readest, go and do likewise!

LIFE and DEATH

O F

JANE COOPER.

1. TANE COOPER was born at Hingham in the County of Norfolk, in the year 1738. Her father died when she was very young, and some time after, her mother married again. She was a daughter of affliction from her childhood; her father-in-law meeting with many misfortunes: but rather than be burdensome to any, when she was about twenty years of age, the chose to go out to service. For this purpose the came to London, and undertook to do all work in a small family. What sweetened all her labour was, that she had frequent opportunities of hearing what she believed to be the pure gospel. But after fome months, the judged it best to leave this place. tho' much against the desire of her master. She then lived with a gentlewoman in Pall Mall, who for a confiderable time, used her more like a companion than a fervant. Her mistress afterwards removing to Brentford, the remained with her till Spring, 1762, though exceedingly to the prejudice of her health, which .

which continually decayed. When the quitted Breatford, finding her strength so entirely lost that she was no longer capable of service, she hired a lodging in London, by the advice of her friends, designing to work plain-work: but before the settled, she took a journey into Norfolk, to visit her friends and relations. Part of the time she was in the country was spent at Norwich, where she indeed "lived as an angel here below," comforting the sick and afflicted, supporting the weak, lifting up the hands that hung down, confirming the wavering, and in every possible way, ministring to the beirs of salvation.

2. Of her spiritual experience during this time, we have no account, but in some of her letters, and in her diary: part of which runs thus: (it is dated

Jan. 16. 1762.)

"I received peace in believing four years ago. For fome time after, I felt no fin, and thought I never should any more: how far it was owing to my own unfaithfulness, I cannot tell; but it was not long, before I found my inward parts were very wickedness. I was amazed to feel that notwithstanding this, I loved Him who died for me, that I still retained my considence in God, and had the witness in myself, that I was a child of God. But withal I thought, I should always have a carnal mind, which would sometimes be at enmity suith God.

46 In this belief I continued, till about two years ago, God brought me to hear the whole gospel. Not long after, those words were continually on my mind, Once have I heard, yea twice hath God spoken, that power belongeth war. God; and I was deeply convinced that I had in effect denied his power. Even after I had tasted his love, I limited the Holy One of Israel: And from this time I began to plead the promises of sanctification: but I still set them at a distance, supposing the accomplishment of them to be afar off.

"In March ic., wing I heard a letter read from one who had enterne into the rest of the people of God. It described a happiness in religion, which I was a stranger stranger to: I was much stirred up to seek after it. and was determined to wrestle with God till I prevailed. One day in prayer, that promise was applied, The Lord whom you feek shall suddenly come to his temple. From that time I expected him, in every means I used, to come and destroy the works of the devil: I was agonizing with God in family prayer, when he gave me power to venture upon Jesus, as of God made unto me wildom, and righteoulness, and sanctification and redemption. He spoke into my heart, " The Lord. even the king of I/rael is in the midst of thee; and the enemies thou haft seen this day, thou stalt see them no more for over." From this time I have rejoiced indeed, and yet loathed myself in my own fight: I feel nodefire but to please him, and know of nothing in me that is not subjected to Jesus; I depend upon himevery moment, as my advocate with the Father: I daily feel my coming short of what I would be, yet without any condemnation. The blood of sprinkling speaks me clean. Indeed if I could perform the obedience I defire, I should still be ashamed before him."

3. In the midst of various outward trials, her souls was now kept as a watered garden. She was fatisfied with the favour, and full of the bleffing of the Lord: She' enjoyed deep communion with God, and that without any interruption: she sought for and found direction from him, in every circumstance of life. She truly proved him to be her counsellor, who instructed her by his small still voice. She walked continually in his presence, and felt her soul always approved of him. She used to say, "Would Jesus on this or the other occasion, have acted or spoken thus?" And thisrule the steadily copied after, in all her life and conversation. She knew a little of what our Lord meant when he faid, The Father subich dwelleth in me, he doth the works. To his will she was entirely given up, in fickness and health, ease and pain.

4. In the beginning of November, the seemed to have a forelight of what was coming upon her, and used frequently to sing these words.

" When

When pain o'er this weak flesh prevails, With lamb-like patience arm my breast."

And when the feat to let me know the was ill, the wrote in her note, "I fuffer the will of Jefus. All he fends is sweetened by his love. I am as happy, as if I heard a voice say,

For me my elder Brethren stay. And angels becken me away, And Jesus bids me come."

5. Upon my telling her, "I can't chuse life or death tor you," she said, "I asked the Lord, that is it was his will, I might die firit; and he told me, you should survive me, and that you should close my eyes." When we perceived it was the Small Pox, I said to her, "My dear, you wont be frighted if we tell you what is your distemper.", She said, "I can't be frighted at bis will."

6. The distemper soon was very heavy upon her:
But so much the more was her faith strengthened.
Tuejday, Nov. 16. She said to me, "I have been worshipping with you before the throne in a glorious manner, my soul was so let into God." I said,
"Did the Lord give you any particular promise?"

" No, replied the, it was all

That facred awe that dares not move, And all the filent heaven of love.

7. Wednesday 17. Mrs. C. said to her, "Is there any thing you think me particularly deficient in?" She answered, "No, Love. He will guide you by his eye, and be your only counsellor. All around you is God and heaven. You little know, how dearly Jesus loves you." To Mr. M. she said, "I thank God for your preaching. You must still preach simple faith. Man will despise you, but God will love you; and yourself must believe." On Thur/day, upon my asking, "What have you to say to me?" She said, "Nay, nothing but what you know already, God is love." I asked, "Have you any particular promise?" She replied, "I don't seem to want any. I can live without. I shall die a lump of deformity.

but shall meet you all glorious: and mean time, I shall still have fellowship with your spirit."

"When you speak upon acquaintance with Jesus, it is food to the soul. And when you preach of devotedness to God and living to him, it is the joy of one's heart." He asked, "Have you any conviction you shall die?" She answered, "No; only from the disorder. But I feel his will so precious to me, that it is impossible for me to chuse." He said, "We leave you in the Lord's hands." She said, "We shall meet above. I have no doubt of it."

9. On Friday morning, the faid, "I believe I shall die." She then fat up in her bed and faid, "Lord, I bless thee that thou art ever with me, and all thou hast is mine. Thy love is greater than my weakness, greater than my helplessies, greater than my unworthiness. Lord, thou fayest to corruption thou art my fifter! And glory be to thee, O Jesus, thou art my brother! Let me comprehend with all faints, the length, and breadth, and depth, and height of thy love! Bless these: (some that were present) let them be every moment exercised in all things, as thou wouldst have them to be."

of death were just coming upon her. But her face was full of finiles of triumph, and she clapped her hands for joy. Mrs. C. said, "My dear, you are more more than conqueror, through the blood of the Lamb." She answered, "Yes, O yes, sweet Jesus. O death where is thy sting?" She then lay as in a doze for some time. Afterwards she strove to speak, but could not. However she testified her love, by shaking hands with all in the room. Then she took Miss. M—'s hand, with Mrs. C. and Mrs. D—'s, and put them to her heart, fpeak to him, but had not utterance. One asked of the Lord, to give her power to speak: and in a sew moments she spoke distinctly. Immediately she exhorted him to believe. He said, "I hope I do." "Do you then, replied she earnessly, find in Christ all you want? You may. And I want you to be happy now. Why won't you believe, when Christ has given all his divinity to save you?" He started, and said, "I hope I shall." "Hope! said she, that is not the thing. The hope of the byportite shall person. Indeed you are not an hypocrite. Yet unless you are on the rock, when the winds and floods come.

your building will not stand.

12. Mr. W. then came. She faid. "Sir, I did not know that I should live to see you. But I am glad the Lord has given me this opportunity, and likewife power to speak to you. I love you. You have always preached the firitest doctrine. And I loved to follow it. Do so still, whoever is pleased or difpleafed." He aiked, "Do you now believe you are faved from fin? She faid, "Yes. I have had no doubt of it for many months. That I ever had, was because I did not abide in the faith. now feel. I have kept the faith: and perfect love casteth out all fear." Mr. W. said, " Loving faith is all." She answered, "Ah Sir, I never had a grain of faith but what brought love, and I never had any love but by faith. As to you, the Lord promifed me, your latter works should exceed your former, though I do not live to fee it." He faid, " Perhaps the Lord may restore you." She said, "His will be done. I have been a great Euthusiast

(as they term it) these six months; but never lived so mear the heart of Christ in my life. You, Sir, defire to comfort the hearts of thousands. Comfort the hearts of hundreds, by following that simplicity your soul loves."

13. To one who received the love of God under her prayer, she said, "I seel I have not followed a cunningly devised sable; for I am as happy as I can live. Do you press on, and stop not short of the mark." To Miss M——s she said, "Love Christ. He loves you. I believe I shall see you at the right hand of God. But as one star differs from another star in glory, so shall it be in the resurrection. I charge you, in the presence of God, meet me at that day all-glorious within. Avoid all conformity to the world. You are robbed of many of your privileges. I know, I shall be found blameless. Do you labour to be found of him in peace, without spot."

14. Saturday morning, she prayed nearly as follows.

66 I know, Lord, my life is prolonged, only to do thy will; and tho' I should never eat or drink more, (she had not swallowed any thing for near eight and twenty hours) thy will be done. I am willing to be kept so a twelvemonth: man liveth not by bread alone. I prasse there is not a shadow of complaining in our streets. In that sense we know not what sickness means. Indeed, Lord, neither life, nor death, nor things present, nor things to come, no nor any creasure shall separate us from thy love one moment. Bless these, that there may be no lack in their souls. I believe there shall not. I pray in faith."

On Sunday and Monday she was light-headed, but fensible at times. It then plainly appeared her heart was still in heaven. One said to her, "Jesus is your mark." She replied, "I have but one mark. I am all spiritual." Miss M. said to her, "You dwell in God." She answered, "Altogether." A person asked her, "Do you love me?" She said, "O, I love Christ: I love my Christ." To another she faid, "I shall not long be here. Jesus is precious, very precious indeed." She said to Miss M.

"The Lord is very good. He keeps my foul above all." For fifteen hours before the died, the was in strong convultions. Her sufferings were extreme. One said, "You are made perfect thro' sufferings." She said, "More and more so." After lying quiet some time, the said, "Lord, thou art strong!" Then pausing a considerable space, the uttered her last words, "My Jesus is all in all to me: glory be to him through time and eternity." After this she lay still for about half an hour, and then expired without a sigh or groan.

LETTERS to Mrs. M. M.

August, 29, 1757.

Tincerely rejoice, to find you are convinced of a most important but felf-abasing truth, That you. are yourfelf utterly unable to work out your own falvation, or to form so much as one good thought, or one defire towards it. Rest not in this conviction, but feek, ask, knock: and you shall assuredly obtain that faith which is the gift of God. Give me leave to repeat, that religion consists, first, in a true knowledge of our want of Christ: Secondly, in knowing him to be not only the Saviour of the world, but our Saviour in particular; in knowing him to have died for us, that we might live through him. There is a great difference between this scheme of religion, and that we form to ourselves when we begin to define eternal happiness. I then thought I must refrain from evil words, and be constant at Church; and I should doubtless doubtless go to heaven, though I walked not in a narrow, but much frequented way. I saw not that Christ alone was the way to heaven; but though I could not but see my works were insufficient, yet I hoped God would accept this patch-work obedience, and supply what was wanting. Beware of building your hopes on this sandy soundation. Seek, but seek forgiveness and acceptance with God, through him who is the rock of ages. Let him not go until he bless you. For there is no safety, but in his friendship, and no peace, but in his favour.

May every bleffing attend my dear friend. Whereever her abode is, the has a place in my heart-

November 9.

ON'T you think me cruel, that I can rejoice to fee you under the cross? I believe both our souls would wither, did not the rough wind arise to blow away the dust from our branches. When this is done, how falutary is the rain of grace, how refreshing the beams of love! I am persuaded there is not one tree of the Lord's planting, but must be purged that it may bring forth much fruit. If you have been on the mount with Peter, James, and John, remember that was not the only proof our Lord gave them of his peculiar love; they, and they only were admitted to Gethsemane. Think on this, my dear friend, when you are under the crofs, and wonder at the grace that calls, and that enables you to drink of that cup, and to have some sellowship with Christ in his sufferings. I believe your heart and mine have faid.

"No Cros, no Suffering I decline:
Only let all my heart be thine."

This was recorded in the courts above, and is answered as we are able to bear. Look not so much at the trial, as at the grace which keeps you from finking underit. You may be greatly oppressed: but Omnipotence shall undertake for you. The enemy may thrust fore at you that you may fall: but claim bis help who can and will deliver you. The floods of temptation may feem ready to overflow your foul. But the Lord fitteth above the water-floods, and remainsth a king for ever. He shall give strength to his people; the Lord shall give his people the blessing of peace. Fear not then, thou worm in thine own eyes. Since thou hast been precious, being bought with blood, thou art fair in his fight, who yet is of purer eyes, than to behold iniquity. Therefore he sits as a refiner's fire, and as fuller's foap on the souls of his people.

I feel Jesus near: he is better to me than I could ask or think. May your spirit find him nigh at this hour, and to the end of your warfare!

London.

OUR Letter came in an acceptable time: I feared you would not write fo foon, and the thought pained me. I found fuch union of heart with you last week, as it is pleasing pain to experience. I looked upon your's as an answer to prayer. The Lord generally causes me to ask for a letter before it comes: how shall I speak his praise? He is indeed Immanuel: and what can we ask more? That we may each moment feel his power on our hearts. and testify to all, that God is with us. But what are we, that God should dwell on earth! I am lost in the enquiry. And will God make a finner happy? Or what is the fame thing, will he make us holy? He will, our hearts cry out, he will! We shall be filled with the fullness of his love. He knows I pant, I thirst to prove this, to know more fully the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ: the Lord lets me drink of the brook in the way, before I reach the fountain-head. And I feel love to you, such love as only friendship knows, animated by the love of God.

I am better in body, but I believe the days of my appointed time are short. O blessed prospect beyond the grave! There I shall see him face to face!

B 4 Help

Help me by your prayers to keep the bright prize in view, that I may be ever running toward the mark. Jefus direct us to aim aright, and keep us from Iwerving aside into crooked paths!

Let me recommend much prayer to you: not only that praying frame of mind, which a christian should continually possess, but frequent acts of secret prayer. And not only pray, but wait and expect the answer. I long, I love to hear, that you are sinking deep in the knowledge of yourself, and rising higher in the love of God.

If I had time I should give you a week's journal. Sunday se'nnight I received the sacrament from Mr. Madan. It was indeed the communion of the body and blood of Christ. His banner over me was love. I was constrained to say, How plentiful is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for the sons of men!

I hear frequent mention of persons who have great grace; fome of whom are called perfect. I do not much like the term: but I am persuaded, the only way to overcome fin, and to inherit all things, is by enjoying uninterrupted communion with our God. I found fomething of this on Monday, and was much refreshed with the presence of the Lord. But on Tuesday I found my heart ready to depart from the living God. Yet I had reason to wonder and adore the grace that would not let me go. On Thursday I heard Mr. Whitefield, and had cause to rejoice with reverence. On Friday night a watch was kept at the Foundry, and I found the promise literally sulfilled, They that trust in the Lord shall renew their strength. Indeed his mercies are so oft repeated, that if I had not the most ungrateful heart, I should be always praising him. But I often find fuch an inward contest with pride, self-will, impatience, and all that legion which is contrary to the mind of Christ, that I groan being burthened: Yet I am persuaded he can save to the uttermost, and believe he will fave even me. Even now my foul rejoices in hope. He will perfect what is lacking in either of our spirits. O trust in him with all your heart! Lean not to your own understanding. Believe the Lord; so shall you prosper. Be vigilant in all things; so shall you disappoint our enemy, and bring giory to our everlassing friend. Unto his protection I commit you, until the day we meet to part no more.

May 5, 1760.

AM glad you are so conscious of danger. It is necessary to be exceedingly assaid of our hearts departing from the living God; this never goeswithout correction: and although these chastisements are proofs of his love, yet beware you do not bring them upon yourfelf.

I look upon your being at that place, as a very particular providence; yet I feel for you. I know many of nature's latent mazes will be discovered to you. Perhaps the cause and the effects will pain you. And what shall I say to comfort my friend? I cannot give . the waters of confolation: fuch power belongeth to. God only. O may he undertake for you in every hour of oppression! You may this moment find relief, by looking to an exalted redeemer. I have been asking that we might drink deep into the spirit of a crucified Saviour; indeed I knew not the depth of what I asked. Lord, make us strong to bear the answer of our request! Make us esteem it our greatest privilege, to taste that cup of which thou drankest fo largely! Only faying with thee, If it may not pass from me, Father, thy will be done.

It is his absolute promise, From all your idols will I cleanse you; and your heart hath said amen! Do you now retract your petition? Do you not rather say still, in spite of nature's struggle, "Let all my heart be thine?" Is your Isaac called for? Ascend the mount, bid all things contrary to resignation stay behind. Have you exceed youred to do this, and are you still molested, when you would offer the sacrisce which God requires? O watch and keep off these enemies to your peace! And he that is your peace shall give you power.

Yes, "when your all of strength doth fail. You shall with the God-man prevail."

He loves, he pities you, he requires your heart. And he is worthy to have it. O may he now reign therein, the Lord of every motion there!

Jesus has not lest me comfortless. He still sustains me with his Grace. May he bring us through this wilderness, to meet and part no more!

December 4.

Know not whether the providence of God will ever permit me to see you again. But I can leave it to him, in fure hopes that I shall meet your happy spirit, in the realms of endless day. There we shall furely exult in a Redeemer's presence. We shall see him as he is. And indeed when I have a view, tho' a transient one, of the glory which shall be revealed, I am almost impatient of delay: I am ready to cry out, why are thy chariot wheels fo long in coming? I want leave to go hence and be no more feen as an inhabitant of earth. This has been for some time pastmy habitual defire. I cannot help being glad at night that one day more of my allosted portion is past, and eternity is nearer to me than when I first believed. Yet at the same time I have reason to be ashamed before the Lord, that I do not live to his glory. I do not love him with all my heart and firength; fo far from it, that I fometimes feel I never did one action with a fingle eye to his glory. My own will has mixed,

And " Pride, that bufy fin, Spoil'd all that I perform'd."

'Till well for me, that high-priest bears the iniquity of my holy things. Indeed if the altar did not fanctify the gift, I could not approach with one offering. O may he purify the facrifice which I have often made, of all I have, or can, or am!

Watch! Stand stedfast my dear friend, and be strong in the Lord! Remember, the God of peace shall shortly bruise satan under your feet. May he give give you every thing that will forward your growth in grace!

Norwich, May 11, 1761.

AM but weak, but my foul is kept in peace. Who can express the blessing of feeling Christ our friend every moment? Indeed I see no other way to profit my soul, but to come the present moment, as I am, to Jesus: he never sends me empty away. If I wish any thing, it is for more opportunity for private prayer. Between the sick, the afflicted, and those seeking the Lord, I have very little time to myself. However I feel no desire, but to do and fusser his will. While I speak to you I taste his goodness, above what words can describe. He knoweth I defire to glorify him, to be altogether his, and to seel him all my own. I know of nothing in my soul, which is not given up to God. Pray him to examine and prove me, and to supply what is lacking.

To Mrs. J. C. M.

Nov. 29, 1761.

I KNOW nothing of myself. But I know and seel that God is love. I seel, I love him in a measure, and long for sull conformity to Jesus. My soul is happy in him, and though I have not what I used to think was implied, in the blessing which has been poured out upon many, yet, I have (what I am not sufficiently thankful for) a deeper union with the source of blessedens, a constant sense of his unmerited love, and a frequent knowledge that I am less than the least of all saints. I am persuaded nothing shall separate me from the Lord Jesus. From him is my fruit found. In him are the springs of consolation, tion, which revive and endue my foul with much frength. I trust in him, and know in whom I trust:

therefore life or death is equal. -

Labour still for all the Spirit's peaceful fruit. Jesus will bless your attempts to glorify him. He will make you unblameable in love before men, and unreproveable before God. Know that the eye of earth and heaven is upon you. Many wait for your halting: more, I truit, with you fuccess in the name of the Lord. I am fure I do, and therefore write without referve. Take heed of your own underflanding. Do not suffer yourself to think of it, but with abasement, that you have made no better use of it. Excuse this freedom: the motive is love unfeigned. I find the fruit of the cross even while I write. I fit under the shadow of my beloved, and feel him fustaining my foul. O Jesus, great is thy goodness! Great is thy mercy! Even toward the meanest, me. Bless, I pray thee, the fister of my fpirit. Let her

"Antedate the joys above: Ever feel her Saviour's love."

I, feel my insufficiency to speak of the goodness of God. It is more than I can express. He deals tenderly with me, and if I follow the best pattern, I shall be patient toward all. I have selt much bodily weakness, but no power to chuse its removal or continuance. I seem to enjoy all I want, while I pursue what I have not attained. I am daily more sensible how little I am. I think never one soul so utterly wanted a complete Saviour.

I have taken the first opportunity to write, in hopes of profiting by your answer. I want to know the most effectual way to grow in grace; how to improve by all things; how to make a good use of the dulness which often creeps upon my mind, and makes my soul stupidly unactive. I want to be all attention to God; to have every faculty of my mind fixedly waiting upon him: but I find myself beat off of this by weariness or listlessness. I often seem to stand fast in the Lord, and am steadily looking unto him; but (I suppose, through unwatchfulness) often lose the deep consciousness, that "God is here:" Yet he does not condemn me; but I abhor myself, while I see the Saviour graciously near. My heart crieth without a voice, "Come and mould thy passive clay. Keep my attention rightly exercised every moment." And while I call, my Jesus answers. O, did I pray without fainting, I should then be what I wish.

I praise the lover of your foul, that he delights to bless you. May you ever see his full infliciency to fave, and live in the fountain-head of blifs!

January 26, 1762.

LESSED be God, I only feek his approbation, and am content with that alone. The night you wrote, the Lord spake to my heart, "All is yours." I feel it true, for Christ is mine. Indeed he is precious to me: my foul is satisfied with its portion. Yet "eager I ask and pant for more." But my wants do not discourage me. I delight to feel them, for I am persuaded out of his fulness I shall receive a supply. Even while I am receiving from him, he makes me capable of more. I am amazed at his grace

" I cannot praise him as I would, But he is merciful and good,"

and does not despise the day of small things.

I know I have been unfaithful to the grace of God; yet he pardons without upbraiding. O that every future moment may prove, I feel the time past sufficient! When I consider you as a younger scholar, I am ashamed; yet I rejoice the Master loveth us both. And though he may justly say to me, "O, slow of heart to understand," yet he teaches me, as I am able to receive, the lesson of his love. I often meet your spirit, when I go in secret before our Lord. He only knows how much I desire you may increase, with all the increase of God. May you follow the Lamb in all things! I praise him that he unites me to himself, and to all whose sellowship is with him: I thank him who gives us to drink into one spirit. My heart seels God continually nigh. My only wish is his will: my only desire his glory.

Good Friday.

It is given to you to suffer: and happy are you, if our Lord counts you meet to be his companion in the garden. I love his tempted sollowers above all: and his peculiar care is toward such as drink of his cup. I am thankful to him on behalf of your soul. Faithful is he that bath called you. He will establish your heart, and keep you from all evil, unto his heavenly kingdom.

I always find a fight before a conquest. I am generally warned of approaching trials, and when I am most filled with the consolations of God, I see how amiable it is to follow my Captain, who was made perfect through sufferings. He is daily teaching me the lesson of his cross. When it ceases to be necessary, I shall suffer no more. I am often sensible my own folly obliges him to put me to pain. I know he never willingly afflicts, but chastens in order to make us partakers of his holiness.

O praise our everlasting friend, who never shews us a desect, but in order to amend it: my soul longeth to live to him. I seel his mercies new every morning. My spirit is so united to the Lord Jesus, that I am persuaded nothing shall separate me from his love. But I have no fruit of the Spirit, in the sulness I desire or expect. I am sensible my privileges are far higher than my attainments: and I want to be stirred up daily, to take the kingdom which is before me by violence.

Of late I have found private prayer the means which brought me nearest to God: but this he often varies, as his wisdom sees best. My soul is more simple than it was: I am learning to leave others to the care of our shepherd, and defire only to hear and follow him. Let your foul delight itself in him: learn to know how he hath loved you. Be very active in his cause, and passive to his will. My spirit is all peace. May yours be preserved in Christ Jesus, who hath called you to glory and immortality.

April 21.

PEACE be with your spirit! The Lord shall guide thee continually, and fatisfy thy foul in drought: Thou shalt be like a watered garden; for the Lord Jesus is your well of salvation. With joy may you draw from his fulness, grace for every moment's want. His defign is still to do us good; his delight is with the fons of men.

Ì

I find my fellowship with heaven is increased since I wrote last: the King of eternity makes me capable of communing with him, and tho' I tread but the outward borders of his fanctuary, he causes me to hear his voice, inviting me to come forward. He affures me, he will help me to overcome, and gives me to inherit all things. But at the fame time, he shews me my works are not perfect; and that I must watch and strengthen the things that remain. I find my safety and happiness depend, upon my dependence on Jesus. I want every moment to begin afresh the life of faith; to forget all things else, and be (as you said) "a perfon of one business," I have been much tempted lately, but I count it all joy, for it profiteth my foul. I have gained more felf-contempt, and I love an empty fpirit, because then there is room for Jesus.

"O what are all our forrows here, If, Lord, thou count us meet With that inraptur'd hoft to appear And worship at thy feet?"

It will foon be our employ. O let us now live in eternity! Antedate the joys above, by bringing all you have and are, to his feet. Cast all you have before him, and ascribe salvation to him, who of a stone hath made a daughter of Abraham.

I think

I think the grace you want most is thankfulness. Stir me up to patience. Pray that I may be nothing.

"Mean and vile in my own eyes,
Only in his wisdom wise."

Norwich, May 6.

THE Lord hath of late kept me much from reafoning my felf into perplexity. When any thing occurs which I cannot understand, I carry it to him, who is a wonderful comfellor: and he wipes away the tears from my eyes, by affuring me he is all my own. I feel a constant necessity of walking with the Lord, as I first received him: and I retain peace, as it was imparted, by fingle faith. Who knows the value of faith? None but they who constantly exercise it, to their own profit, and the Redeemer's glory.

I think your fears of deceiving the people, are only the refult of strong temptations. We cannot see clearly in the time of a storm. This is not a season to examine whether we be in the saith: neither is reason alone sufficient to determine in spiritual matters. One thing is needful in your present situation, even to cast yourself upon the Lord, just as you are. Now come to him who waiteth to be gracious; who saith concerning sin or infirmity, "I will cleanse the blood which I have not cleansed." I tear, you have reasoned with the enemy, while you should have been looking unto Jesus; and by living a little beneath your privileges, have been ready to give up your claim to them. But Jesus was present, though your eyes were holden: And

"Round you and beneath are spread The everlasting arms."

Sunday Night.

THE Lord who inclined your heart to write, will reward your labour of love. I find him faithful who hath promised, My grace is sufficient for thee. I feel feel a measure of that love, which shall overcome by enduring: all I have and am is but a small offering; but this I can give up to Jesus. Ever since I tasted his love, I have been led in the way of the cross. It is a royal way: the king of kings walked in it: and while I tread in his steps, I experience the rugged way is pleasantness, and the thorny path is peace. Since I have more than ever gone through evil report, I have found more increase of faith and love. I cannot sufficiently praise the friend who sticketh closer than a brother. His banner over me is love, and my soul confesses he doth all things well.

I praise him on your behalf also. He rejoices over you to do you good. O lean on your beloved with all your weight; so shall you find a fure support. If storms rise and winds blow, they will only settle you on the rock which cannot be moved. Believe simply; believe constantly; so shall you love steadily and entirely. I know no other way for the just to live, but by faith; and as we exercise faith it grows, 'till we can say in all circumstances, This is the victory.

I bless my God, I feel no defire to vindicate my conduct. I know the light of heaven shone on my path, and I am content to be approved of God alone. I feel my heart is given up without reserve, and see fresh cause to be daily more devoted to him Blessed be God for Jesus Christ! In him I enjoy all I want. Bear me on your heart before him, and ask him to lead me to the thing and place he chuseth.

July 22.

OUR's came in a feasonable time, as the return of prayer. I felt some pain because I did not hear from you sooner. But our God doth all things well; he shall supply all your wants, and make all grace to abound towards you. He delights to complete the work he begins, and happy is the soul that does not resist his will. He will call for the corn and will increase it, and will lay no famine upon you. Great is his faithfulness! Hearken diligently to the shepherd's voice. He will teach us to profit by the pretent cross, and keep us in the spirit of factifice.

I feel my need of patience. I am closely and constantly exercised, but his grace is sufficient even for me. He generally teaches me by applying his word to my heart, so that I have cause to esteem it more than fine gold. I was greatly oppressed some nights ago, and found immediate deliverance from these words, As birds string, so will the Lord of Hosts defend Jerusalem. Defending also be will deliver, and passing over he will preserve it. I find much union with you, and believe you bear my burdens, and abide in prayer for me. I cannot forget you, and our friend in heaven remembers you for good.

I can no longer refrain from faying, Be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. Let none beguile you of your simplicity, or the reward that attends. I believe your light is shining out of obscurity, and will shine unto the perfect day. You are coming unto the light that your deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God. In his light you behold yourself of the circumcision, who worship God in the spirit, rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no considence in the sich.

They have great peace who love his law, and nothing shall offend them; he keeps us night and day. I pleaded this promise last night, and made it my own by believing. He did keep my imagination while I slept, subject to himself. Since I returned into the country, I have been blest with peace, which temptation of various kinds did not rosself. My determination to know nothing but Jesus crucified, is much strengthened. This moment I can give up all for him, and do all things through him strengthening me. I have a testimony that I please him, and count his dear reproach greater treasure than the wealth or praise of men.

Be faithful in all things; this is your privilege: live up to it this moment. You know the way, walk therein, and pray away for and obliged friend.

TEJOICE in the Lord always; again I say rejoice. For he is become your everlasting light and the days of your mourning are ended. I believe your fun shall no more go down, but you shall dwell on high. Your place of defence is the munition of rocks; bread of life is given you; your waters shall not fail. Your eyes fee the king in his beauty, and he will cause you to know him who was from the beginning. I drink with you into one spirit. Help me to bless God for the consolation; it increases by being mutual. My foul feems lost in wonder, love, and praise, and is melted into thankful tears. Every fensation of gratitude in earth or heaven is bought with thy blood, O precious Jesus! The power to feel my obligations to him, proceedeth from above, and when we reach the top-stone, we shall still shout, "Grace, grace unto it."

I have all this day been in a disposition to cast my crown at his feet. I cannot express, how much I chuse to give all the glory to Christ my Lord. All within me acknowledges he is worthy to receive all glory. My love to Mrs. ———— Tell her, not one tittle shall sail of all the good things God hath spoken to her of. Only let her be strong, and not stagger at any of the promises.

I believe, I need not fay, pray always for

To Mrs. E. D.

My dear Friend,

Know you will rejoice to hear, God has gotten himself the victory, in the most stubborn heart, that ever submitted to Jesus.

He is my king, and makes me fir, In willing bonds beneath his feet.

Praise him, O my soul, praise him, O my Sister, for still he is bringing lost sinners to God. Yea, he has brought me to God. I feel myself weak as helples infancy; but Christ my strength is with me: at last I am a fool for his take.

When I left you on Friday, and had finished my business, I fat down alone and in misery. The Lord directed me to those words: Be not affrighted, I know whom ye feek ; Jesus of Nazareth : He is not bere, be is rifen, and lo be gooth before you into Galike; there shall you see him. I believed I should, and came home in peaceful expectation. One who had feen his great falvation prayed that he would bless me also: but my own wildom opposed his coming, and the conflict was great. At length my vehement foul stood still, and the mountains flowed down at his prefence. My heart was filled with holy shame and humble joy: I was a little child. I entered the kingdom; we praised our king till morning, and his praise is ever new and sweet. The Lord causes us to cease from our own works, and he is glorified. pray for us! Pray for me, who every moment need the merit of his death. I can fay no more, but I do love Christ, and I love you better than ever-

My dear Friend,

RULY God is loving unto Ifrael, even unto me: nevertheless my feet had well nigh flipr, for I was I was grieved at the wicked, and pained by the good. I have been more exercised in mind than ever I was before, and the last conflict always felt severest: but I begin to fee that all these things work together for my good. I never was so much faved from trusting in any creature; Jesus was never more lovely in my eyes; I feel him only desirable; I cannot repeat his compassions, for they are endless. I proved them to be sufficient for me, when all besides failed me. I doubt not but I made my cross heavier than Love intended, by my own folly: but the Teacher of Ijrael rectifies mistakes with tenderness known only to himfelf. At present my desire is, to overcome by enduring. I want to think and act under the eye of him who loves me, and every moment to feel it upon me. My foul longs for nearer acquaintance with God. I know neither man nor devils need hinder my intercourse with Jesus. O that I were wise to improve what I receive, and faithful to retain what his mercy gives!

Use your interest for me at the throne of grace: and go on through your cloud of difficulties, aiming at Jesus. He alone is worthy your pursuit!

We are forced to feel as well as jee: God alone is our support. I have had much of his peaceful prefence. He is indeed greater than our fears, and better than our hopes. I was much tried on Friday: but fince that I have had no painful emotion. I feel for you in the tenderest manner my heart is capable. I see Jesus will vindicate his own, and claim all your heart for himself. He sees what wounds it, and will give medicine to heal all its fickness. I believe " all you feel is mercy." But are you strong enough to support the weight? Why should his blessings be insupportable, through our softness of spirit? O that my friend were less susceptible of those impressions ! O that a dull disciple might teach you to be in fome matters more flow of understanding, of a more insensible spirit!

I fee

I see the commandment is exceeding broad, and this makes Christ exceeding precious. How valuable the Advocate with the Father! My soul defires to know nothing but him crucified. May you seel life, abundant life in that knowledge! O how much my Siviour loves you! I feel a little of the sounding of his bowels toward you, and my heart cleaves to him, for his goodness to you. He counts you worthy to suffer. O be thankful for this special mark of his love!

LL this week I have been tried, but with intervals of rest. God is a jealous God, and will be loved alone: Jesus will convince us in time, that he alone is worthy of every power of the soul. I see a field of religion before me, which I want to walk in. I know I am called to make a perpetual offering of myself, and every enjoyment, to the will of God. I do long to be a christian. My heart goeth out after this; when will it once be? That promise is now brought to my mind, They shall grow as willows by the water-courses. 'Tis a mountful tree: I think we shall be weeping lillies till we are taken into the paradise of God. The peculiar privilege there is, all tears shall be wiped away from our eyes.

O how little do I know the meaning of Jesus? Surely tis mercy all. Even the minutest circumstance is by his order, and under his inspection. And he will suffer nothing to hurt the apple of his eye.

I am to day very weak in body. I feel the power of sympathizing with all in the house. All are tried. O Adam, what hast thou done? O Jesus, what hast thou suffered? How thou canst recover! Lord, let us know thy utmost power to save!

Y heart feels pure union with yours. I love you as difinterestedly as I think I can. Sure the Lord is pouring upon you the spirit of facrificing all to him. I wish you good luck in his name! Go on, my dear friend. Life is a noble thing, while our employment is doing the will of God from the heart. May you clearly fee what it is concerning you. I have at present, peace inward and outward. Pray, pray that I may "Be thankful and humble, But never fland still."

WANT your prayers and advice. I feel myfelf daily weaker, and more foolish than ever. I am as a little child learning to walk, and cannot go alone. At present I am guided by Jesus, and feel his grace sufficient for me: but there are depths of the Deity I want to suthom. I long to be lost in the immensity of his love!

My foul enjoys peace, folid peace at bottom; but it's furface is filled with fights and fears. I am afraid of being too outward; I want grace to deepen in my foul. Bleffed be God, my every want shall be supplied, from his fulness who filleth all.

Y dear friend gave me another proof of her tenderness, by not upbraiding me with neglect. I think you ought to go to the meetings [on Fridays] by all means: pray for those who speak not according to the law and the testimony. You will feel more deeply the help that is done upon earth, the Lord doth it himself. What is man, that he is mindful of him! What is God, that he can be gracious to us! O may our souls every moment know, by a nearer acquaintance with him, that he is love!

You are laid upon my heart to pray for: fure God is faithful to his word, he will hear and answer, and endue your foul with much strength.

"Suffering faith shall brighter grow,
As gold when in the furnace tried."

I am persuaded your Lord will be with you, and make your weakness more than conquer. He is wonderful in counsel: he has a way in the whirlwind: he cannot mean any thing but mercy to your soul; for he has given himself and all that he counted dear to you!

What

What then would you with-hold from him? Methinks I hear you fay, "Nothing. I would offer all I have or am to his will, when I know it is his." And can you doubt this? Is there an evil in the city, and the Lord hath not done it? Can a sparrow fall, or Shimei curse David without permission? Nay, Satan himself can do nothing without leave. O my God, shine on thy servant's heart, that she may see, thy hand of love holds the cup. And it she is called

"To bear the full anguish,
The uttermost load,
Yet give her to languish
And tuffer like God!"

My dear triend, what shall I say, to dissuade you from overmuch forrow? I can only love you, and speak to Jesus, that he may order your conduct to his glory.

Norwich, May, 1762.

Join to praise the Lord, who still supports my feebleness of mind, carries all my burdens, and suffers me to desire nothing but his righteous, glorious will. I see infinite wisdom and unsathomable love, in all his dispensations towards me: I can now believe that all things shall work together for good: I want words to tell you the sense I have of the goodness of God, far better selt than described: I find his consolations sufficient to support me under present difficulties, and am persuaded his grace will be equal to every future trial. I like your proposal, but dare scarce form one plan. May the Lord do with me as is good in his sight.

To the Reverend Mr.

Feb. 21, 1761.

OUR obliging request lays me under a happy necessity, of calling to mind the past mercies of God

God. May every review of them being trust for future blessings, and thankfulness for the present!

Ever since I can remember, I was desirous of happiness; but I did not seek it in God. I thought if I was religious, I should go to heaven; but I knew not the nature of true religion, and I was unwilling to be under the restraint of that I did know: Yet so great a stranger was I to myself, that I often thought, if I knew what God required I would perform it. At sixteen I was consirmed, and made many resolutions; but they soon wore off. I had a strong impression on my mind, that I should die when I was sour-and-twenty. I ressected on those who were put apprentice seven years to learn a trade, and thought I ought to use like application, to learn the business of éternity.

I went to the facrament the day I was eighteen, and found uncommon fatisfaction: I exhorted others to do the fame, thinking I had now done all that was commanded me, and that if I continued in the fame way, I should be a very profitable fervant.

Soon after this I went to London for eight weeks, where I heard Mr. Jones (of Southwark) preach, and was affected at hearing of the fufferings of Christ, much as I used to be at seeing or reading of a tragedv. I was afterwards asked to hear Mr. Romaine. did so, but I could not understand him. The night I left London, some persons were debating about the Milennium. One of them repeated part of the 20th chapter of the Revelation. I was struck at the awful words, and thought if Christ was then to come, I was not prepared to meet him. I went home very ferious, and began to search the scriptures, and to be more strict than ever. I was often troubled. but knew not the cause, and was ashamed to confess my fears. My friends thought I had a fever on my spirits, and I thought so too; but as I read much, I began to fear, that with all my religion I was not converted. I wanted to go to London, that I might hear Mr. Romaine. A year after I went to London with my father-in-law. At the inn where we lay, I faw Mr. Whitfield's fermons. I read what I could, and determined determined to hear him. He was not in town: but I was much affected with Mr. Dyer's preaching. Afterwards I not only went to St. Dunflan's, but to all the methodist places of worship I knew, and one evening heard Mr. Wallh, at West-street. He preached the Neceffity of that Holiness without which none can see the Lord. His words were as arrows in my heart: found all my former righteousness deficient: I knew this could not obtain mercy; but I did not feel I deferved hell. I wrote to Mr. Romaine to know, what I should do to be faved? He defired to fee me, and told me, two things were necessary, to know my want of Christ, and my interest in him. I went home with the greatest reluctance; for I knew no christian in the town where I lived. My former acquaintance thought me mad: my mother was greatly alarmed. Not long after I went to Norwich for a few days, and found out Mr. Mitchell. He spoke to me of the peace which faith brings to the conscience. I knew myself a stranger to this; but would willingly have suffered the rack, so I might attain it. I went home, and was, for five or fix weeks, in a most unhappy situation. Before, I was not bad enough to come to Christ; now, I was too bad for him to receive: yet the Lord dealt tenderly with me, and at different times brought many encouraging scriptures to my mind. But still the stupidity and unbelief I felt, caused me to mourn in secret. Still I was constrained to say,

"Scarce I begin my fad complaint, When all my warmest wishes faint: Hardly I lift my weeping eye, When all my kindling ardors die: Nor hopes nor fears my bosom move, For still I cannot, cannot love!"

I could not rest thus, though I concluded it would always be the case: I expected to be miserable all my life, and to perish at the last: I found it as easy to reach heaven with my hand, as to believe Jesus died for me. I selt, no one can come to Christ, except the Father draw bim. Now I knew, it was the work of God, to believe on him whom he hath sent. I prayed, he would work faith in me, but seemed as distant from God as hell from heaven: I was cut off from all self-dependence: I was a finner stript of all.

I was on my knees striving to pray, when I heard inwardly a voice say, "Thy sins are forgiven thee." I selt the truth of it in my heart, and in a moment prayer was lost in praise. I called upon the angels to join with me, in blessing him who died for me! He caused his goodness to pass before me, and I rejoiced with joy unspeakable.

Yet in a few hours after I began to fear 1 had deceived myself, and all was delusion. I was much distressed, and had recourse to prayer, and the Lord repeated his mercies, and impressed the same words on my mind, more strongly than before. I was more assured of his forgiving love, and enjoyed much peace in believing. I now thought I could never sin more. My wind was taken up with God, and I conversed with him as a man would with his friend. My considence in him was unshaken, and my hope full of immortality.

I wanted others to rejoice with me; but they were frangers to Jesus, and intermeddled not with my Joy. I lamented being alone: my nearest friends thought I carried things too far. My mother was more alarmed; for I could not speak but on religious subjects. A neighbouring clergyman advised her to confine me, if I offered to hear the methodists. This I did at all opportunities, though none was nearer than four miles off. Her tenderness gave me much pain. I was forry to grieve her in any thing; and yet I did not dare to oblige her, by acting contrary to my conscience. I could not play at cards, nor join in trisling discourse, though my refusal was deemed preciseness.

I was near two years at home after this. Then the Lord fulfilled his promife: he gave me the bread of adversity and the water of affliction; but my eyes did see my teachers. I was now more desirous than ever, to be made conformable to the will of God: but I thought,

thought, to believe the doctrine of perfection, was derogating from the priestly office of Christ.

When I first faw you, Sir, at Norwich, notwithflanding my prejudice to your opinions, I found that reverence and effeem for you which have increased ever fince. My understanding was then better informed, and my defires more fervent for all the grace God had in store for me. I trust my foul is still alive to God, and athirst for righteousness. He hath borne my manners in the wilderness, and sustains me in my utter helplessness. He continues to multiply his pardons, and heap his benefits upon me. Every trial is fent in mercy; every temptation is permitted for my good; every cross has proved a bleffing in difguile. In his light I fee this: I believe he is able to keep me from falling, and to make me perfect and entire, lacking nothing. My present situation requires more of every grace, than any I have been in before: but I trust, he in whom all fullness dwells, will supply my every want.

I would not have troubled you with fo long a letter, but indeed "I had not time to make it shorter." And I am defirous to prove by every means, that I regard your advice, and on all occasions speak with freedom. I am, Dear Sir,

Your obliged fervant,

J. C.

April 14, 1761.

Reverend and dear Sir, .

OD has been more gracious to my foul than I could ask or think. I find him as a place of broad waters, deep and large, and I feel my inability to fathom that depth of love. In Jesus are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hid: and he has begun to reveal them to the most ignorant soul. But it is impossible to describe the goodness of God, the great God, to so unworthy an object!

From the last morning you preached, I was stirred up to seek him more diligently than ever. You then discovered my heart to me, and what was wanting there. I was kept in prayer, and would have parted with all things, so I might win Christ. I wanted to love him with all my heart; but my own wisdom was his rival. Nothing less than Omnipotence could destroy this: and his own right hand got the victory. I was made fensible how compleatly foolish, and entirely helpless I was. My vehement foul stood still; and I saw Jesus was all my salvation. He was all my defire, and I knew he was made unto me fanctification and redemption. He appears as a priest, upon the throne, who shall bear the glory for ever. I feel my continual need of him, in all his offices. He is truly precious to my foul; but I want to know him more, and the power of his refurrection. I am happy in his love: but I want a more intimate acquaintance and a deeper union with him. I fee the just shall live by faith: and unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given. If I were an archangel, I should veil my face before him, and let filence speak his praise!

May 2.

BELIEVE while memory remains in me, gratitude will continue. I know many are the troubles of the righteous; but out of them all doth the Lord deliver. I have never defired to hide any diffress or difficulty from you at any time. Is this any reason, why you should tell me, what those are which now surround you? If I could remove the least of them by knowing it, I should be importunate.

From the time you preached on Galatians v. 5. I faw clearly the true state of my soul. That sermon described my heart, and what it wanted to be truly happy. You read Mr. M's letter, and it described the religion which I desired. From that time the prize appeared in view, and I was enabled to sollow hard after it, I was kept watching unto prayer, sometimes in much distress, at others in patient expectation of the bleffing. For some days before you left London, my foul was stayed on a promise I had applied to me in prayer; the Lord whom you feek shall fuddenly come to his temple. I believed he would, and that he would fit there as a refiner's fire. The Tucfday after you went, I thought I could not fleep, unless he fulfilled his word that night. I never knew as I did then the force of those words, Be fill and know that I am God. I became nothing before him and enjoyed perfect calmness in my foul. I knew not whether he had destroyed my fin: but I desired to know, that I might praise him. Yet I soon found the return of unbelief, and groaned, being burdened. On Wednelday I went to London, and fought the Lord without ceasing. I promised, if he would save me from sin, I would praise him. I could part with all things, so I might win Christ. But I sound all these pleas nothing worth, and that if he faved me, it must be freely for his own name's sake. On Thursday, after I had been with S. Guilford, and B. Dixon, I was fo much tempted, that I thought of destroying myself or never conversing more with the people of God. And yet I had no doubt of his pardoning love; but "twas worse than death my God to love, and not my God alone." On Friday my distress was deepened. I endeavoured to pray, and could not. I went to Mrs. D. who prayed for me, and told me, it was the death of nature. I opened the bible on the feorful and unbelieving-shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimfione. I could not bear it. I opened it again on Mark xvi. 6, 7. Be not affrighted : ye seek Jesus of Nazareth. Go your way; tell bis disciples, he goeth before you into Galilee : there shall ye see him. I was encouraged, and enabled to pray, believing I should see Jesus at home. I returned that night, and found Mrs. G. She prayed for me: and the predestinarian had no plea, but "Lord, thou art no respecter of persons." He proved he was not, by bleffing me. I was in a moment enabled to lay hold on Jesus Christ, and found salvation by simple faith. He affured me, the Lord, the King was in in the midst of me, and that I should see evil no more. I now bleffed him who had vifited and redeemed me, and was become my wisdom, righteousness, fanctification and redemption. I faw Jesus altogether lovely, and knew he was mine in all his offices. And glory be to him, he now reigns in my heart without a rival. I find no will but his: I feel no pride, nor any affection, but what is placed on him. I know, it is by faith I stand, and that watching unto prayer must be the guard of faith. I am happy in God this moment, and I believe for the next. I have often read the chapter you mention, and compared my heart and life with it. In fo doing I feel my short comings, and the need I have of the atoning blood. Yet I dare not fay I do not feel a measure of the love there described; though I am not all I shall be. defire to be loft in that love which paffeth knowledge. I wish for no joy but what increases love.

London, Sept. 29, 1762.

Reverend and dear Sir,

THANK you for another proof of your care for my foul, in the enquiries you make. I bless my Lord, his grace is sufficient to make me answer without hefitation every question you propose. I have for many months enjoyed fuch a continuance of the prefence of my beloved, as makes me feel I am less than the least of his mercies. The beholding of him, who is fairer than the fons of men, the fight of Christ crucified, prevents the touch of pride, and makes me hate the garment spotted by the flesh. The testimony that I defire is not from man, and the approbation of God never makes me high-minded. Rather I rejoice unto him with reverence. He teaches me to delight myself in him. And I feel, I cannot be displeased with any thing that is his choice. I know that I please him; for he testifies of my works, that they are wrought in him.

Indeed Jefus is unspeakably precious.

"Words are too mean to speak his worth,

" Too mean to fet my Saviour forth."

He daily makes to me new discoveries of his grace and power, and every fresh manifestation more esfectually unites my heart to him who is altogether lovely: I love my friends in him: he gives the affection I feel, and it always leads to him. I believe when I quit the inconveniencies of mortality, I shall love, with greater "frength and elegance," every friend to whom Jesus has now united my soul. And what we now know in part, we shall prove in eternity, God is love, and who/o dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God and God in him. My defire for you is, that you may increase with all the increase of God, and return to us in the fulneis of the gospel of peace. I believe you will, and that you will be a bleffing to me and many.

I think Mr. Bell is willing to take any advice you think proper to give him. I repeat what I have faid before: they that feek diffention are not friends to the work of God. I truit you labour for peace, and the God of peace shall be with you always.

I daily give up all to Jesus, and have no facrifice to make which is not offered up already. He gives me strength for all he calls me to bear: and I find it eafy for the love which believes, to endure all things.

May the God whom you ferve blefs your labours with great fuccess! I wish you good luck in his name. The weapons of your warfare are mighty through him: you need not fight uncertainly, as one that beateth the air, but prove in every circumstance; This is the wictory, even our faith. Continue to shew your care over me, by reproving and advising me as you judge needful. I am sensible of all my obligations to you, and am,

Dear Sir.

Your obliged and affectionate servant.

The END.
